— No. 1. —

Mr. Horsfall, M.P., to the Right Honourable W. E. Gladstone, M.P.

My dear Sir,

28, Portland-place, 26 June 1865.

ABOUT a month ago I troubled you with a memorial from certain officers of the Landing Department of the Port of London, and you were good enough to say that you would at once place yourself in communication with the Board of Customs on the subject. The officers, not having heard anything from the Board, have requested me to forward the accompanying documents to you, and to say that they are still most anxious to have the honour of an interview with you, if you have no objection to receive a deputation.

Yours, &c.,
(signed) Thomas B. Horsfall.

Enclosure 1, in No. 1.

STATEMENT of the PROMOTIONS of the OFFICERS of the OLD LANDING DEPARTMENT who entered the Service between November 1827 and August 1854, showing the Date of each Officer's several Promotions and the Time occupied by him in passing through each Class.

FROM this Statement it appears, with respect to the Landing Waiters,—

| 1st.—                                                                                   |   |   |                      |   |   | Yrs. Mhs.                          |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---|---|----------------------|---|---|------------------------------------|
| That 103 officers passed through the 6th or 160 l. class in an average period of |   |   |                      |   |   | - 3 3 <sup>6</sup> / <sub>10</sub> |
| 105                                                                                     | “ | “ | 5th or 200 l. | “ | “ | - 4 7                              |
| 84                                                                                      | “ | “ | 4th or 250 l. | “ | “ | - 4 6 <sup>3</sup> / <sub>10</sub> |
| 62                                                                                      | “ | “ | 3rd or 300 l. | “ | “ | - 3 11                             |
| 41                                                                                      | “ | “ | 2nd or 350 l. | “ | “ | - 4 5 <sup>6</sup> / <sub>10</sub> |

Showing a general average period of continuance in, or passage through, each of the classes of 4 years 1<sup>53</sup>/<sub>100</sub> months.

Nota.—(Discounting at 3 per cent., this is nearly equivalent to an annual average increment of 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ .)

2nd.—Confining our attention to the 41 officers who, in the period named, attained the highest grade of Landing Waiters, it appears—

(a.) That prior to 1836, when the minimum salary was 200*l.*, 19 officers acquired the maximum salary of 400*l.* in an average period of 16 years 8·47 months; that is, took four steps of 50*l.* after an average interval of 4 years 2·12 months.

(b.) That subsequent to 1836, when the minimum salary was 160*l.*, 22 officers acquired the maximum salary of 400*l.* in an average period of 18 years 1·7 months; that is, took one step of 40*l.*, and four of 50*l.* each, after an average interval of 3 years 7·5 months; or, discarding the period of continuance in the 6th class, acquired the maximum in 16 years; that is, took four steps of 50*l.* each after an average interval of 4 years.

Nota.—(The rate of augmentation of salary of these 41 officers was nearly equivalent to an annual average increment of 12*l.*)

It also appears, with respect to the Landing Surveyors, that out of (27?) Landing Waiters eligible for promotion by reason of their seniority, 22 were selected as Surveyors.

That 21 of these officers remained in the highest (400*l.*) class of Landing Waiters during an average period of 3 years 0·85 months.

That 9 officers passed through the 3rd or 500*l.* class in an average period of 4 years 5·7 months, and that 2 officers passed through the 2nd or 550*l.* class in an average period of 3 years 11 months.

(The data respecting the promotions of Surveyors which the compiler of this statement has been able to collect are insufficient for the preparation of a very accurate average. It is, however, believed that the averages drawn from the careers of a much larger number of officers would not materially differ from those given above.)

Mr. G. A. Hamilton, to the Commissioners of Customs.

Gentlemen,

Treasury Chambers, 11 July 1865.

WITH reference to former correspondence relative to an application of certain officers of the (out-door) department in London complaining of the injury caused to their prospects by the amalgamation of the Landing and Waterguard Departments, and praying for redress, I am commanded by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to transmit to you a letter from Mr. Horsfall, dated 26th ultimo, with its enclosures, on this subject, and I am to request that you will inform my Lords as to the circumstances under which officers in the customs generally, and more particularly the officers in the departments referred to in these papers, were allowed to retire from, or to remain in, the public service, on the occasion of the reductions consequent upon the alterations in the tariff of 1860, and whether an option was afforded to such officers as chose either to remain in the service, or retire with the allowance for abolition of office.

Their Lordships also request to be favoured with any remarks you may have to make with reference to the statements transmitted in Mr. Horsfall's letter.

The Commissioners of Customs.

I am, &c.

REPORT of the Commissioners of Customs, dated 29 July 1865.

To the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

MR. HAMILTON having, by his letter of the 11th instant, signified that with reference to former correspondence relative to an application of certain officers of the out-door department in London, complaining of the injury caused to their prospects by the amalgamation of the Landing and Waterguard Departments, and praying for redress, he was directed to transmit to us the annexed letter from Mr. Horsfall, dated 26th ultimo, with its enclosures on this subject, and signified the desire of your Lordships to be informed as to the circumstances under which officers in the Customs generally, and more particularly the officers referred to in the enclosed papers, were allowed to retire from, or to remain in, the public service, on the occasion of the reductions consequent upon the alterations in the tariff of 1860, and whether an option was afforded to such officers as chose either to remain in the service or to retire with the allowance for abolition of office, and to be furnished with any remarks we may have to make with reference to the statements transmitted in Mr. Horsfall's letter, —

We report, That in our report to your Lordships, dated 20th March 1860, we stated that in consequence of the recent Resolutions of the House of Commons, whereby the duties of Customs on various articles had been altogether abolished, and the warehousing of timber and wood goods discontinued, a considerable number of officers and clerks would become redundant, and the salaries and classifications of the officers affected would require revision. We referred to the course sanctioned by your Lordships in 1824 and 1825, on the reduction of the Customs establishment in Ireland, consequent on the alterations then made in the trade between Great Britain and Ireland, and on the abolition of the local boards of Customs in Dublin and Leith, and we suggested that similar steps should be taken on the present occasion by transferring those officers who were fit for re-employment to other offices where vacancies might arise, and by granting to the remainder of the officers not included in the new establishment, either redundant allowances until otherwise provided for, or such special annual allowance by way of compensation for loss of office, under the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, as on a full consideration of the circumstances of each case might seem to your Lordships to be reasonable and just; and your Lordships were pleased by Mr. Stephenson's letter, dated 30th March 1860, to approve of our recommendation, and to direct that the cases of all those officers who were about to be reduced, and for whom opportunities of other employment might not immediately offer, should be at once reported to your Lordships, in order that they might be awarded such compensation allowances as their respective services might warrant, such allowances being regulated by the provisions of the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and the minute of your Lordships, dated 14th June 1859.

That on receipt of your Lordships' order, immediate steps were taken by a Committee of the Board, in conjunction with the Surveyors General, to carry into effect the directions therein contained.

It was at once evident that a large reduction in the number of the officers must be effected, and it was considered necessary to amalgamate the Landing and Waterguard Departments in the port of London, and to allow as many of the officers of both departments as could be spared to retire upon compensation.

In the first instance, those officers who, from age or other causes, were least fit for the service were selected for retirement.

A new scheme of an amalgamated establishment was then framed, a memorandum was prepared giving an outline of the nature of the duties which would in future be required to be performed, and the hours of attendance which would be required to be given, and after a provisional list had been prepared of the names of the officers belonging to the former establishment whom the Board proposed to appoint to the offices of surveyor and assistant surveyor on the new establishment, the Surveyors General were directed to, and did, communicate personally to each of the officers named for these new offices, the new arrangements proposed to be adopted, and each officer who was not disposed to accept the situation offered to him had full opportunity of retiring from the service on compensation—a permission of which many availed themselves; amongst others, Messrs. Luccock, Tritton, Bussell, and Horsfall.

A similar course was adopted in regard to the searchers and subordinate officers retained in the service, and although in consequence of the death of Mr. St. John, Surveyor General, who was principally employed in framing and giving effect to the new arrangements of the service, we have experienced some difficulty in obtaining positive information that each officer below the rank of surveyor had the offer of retiring on a compensation allowance, as sanctioned by your Lordships' order of 30th March 1860, yet we feel satisfied that the provisions of that order were known to every officer in the Landing Department in London, and many officers applied to retire under its conditions, and we are not aware of any case in which the request was refused.

As evidence of the extent to which the privilege was availed of, the following is a summary of the superior officers of the Landing and Waterguard Department in London who retired on compensation allowances, viz. :—

From the before-going recital of the steps taken by us in the formation of the new amalgamated establishment of the out-door department in London, your

your Lordships will perceive that the officers who accepted re-employment on that establishment did so with a full knowledge of the proposed reductions of salary and classes, of the duties which they would have to perform, and the hours during which they would have to give attendance; we do not therefore think that your Lordships will expect us to offer any remarks on the annexed return of increased attendance given since 1860, by the officers of the old Landing Department, except that although there are no official records by which its details can be checked, we believe it to be substantially correct, as such additional attendance was a well-understood and necessary condition on which each officer joined the new establishment; every means, however, in our power have been adopted to mitigate the operation of the increased hours of attendance on the old officers, by confining their employment, as far as practicable, to the duties and hours of attendance formerly assigned to them on the old establishment.

A further statement is annexed of the promotions of the officers of the old Landing Department who entered the service between November 1827 and August 1854, showing the date of each officer's several promotions, and the time occupied by him in passing through each class.

In several previous reports to your Lordships we have stated that we are quite aware that the revision of the out-door establishment in the port of London in 1860 has pressed severely on the officers of the former Landing Department, and that they would suffer for the future as regarded position, emoluments, and prospects, but that your Lordships had never recognized that the loss of a possible prospective advancement established a public claim to compensation.

In order, however, to afford some relief to those officers whose promotion had been retarded by recent departmental regulations, your Lordships have been pleased by your order dated 9th May last, on our recommendation, to award as a special indulgence to the examining officers in the port of London whose salary was under 300 l., and who have served seven years without promotion, personal allowances varying from 15 l. to 30 l., in which arrangement 14 officers of the former Landing Department in London were included.

As the principle of compensation for the loss of promotion has not been admitted, we have not thought it necessary to incur the expense of checking the details of the annexed account, or to cause another account to be prepared showing the progress of each officer who had been on the establishment of the Landing Department in London, between 1827 and 1860; from a partial examination of the annexed account, however, we believe that it fairly represents the former average promotion of the officers on the different classes of the old Landing Department in London.

In order, however, to show to your Lordships the difficulty which would necessarily attend the consideration of claims of this nature if they were admitted, we would take leave to remark that as the condition and prospects of this department since 1860 have been those of depression, so between 1827 and 1860 the promotion of the Landing Department in London was most favourably affected by frequent alterations of establishment caused by the increase of business and responsibilities of the officers.

During the last-named period the following augmentations of establishment took place.

In September 1832.—Five additional offices of landing waiter at 300 l. were created, and 10 offices at 250 l. were substituted for 15 offices at 200 l.

In March 1837.—Twenty-five additional offices of landing waiter were appointed; 20 new offices at 350 l. were created; the classes at 300 l. and 250 l. were reduced 5 l. each; that at 200 l. was reduced 15 l., and a new class of 30 created at 160 l.

In July 1839.—One additional office of landing surveyor was created with a salary of 500 l.

In 1844.—Two new offices of inspector general at 700 l. were created; in 1848 an additional office with the same salary was created, but the number was again reduced to two in 1853; three additional offices of landing surveyor were created, one at 550 l., and two at 500 l.

In 1846.—One additional office of landing surveyor was created at 500 l.

In 1855.—Three additional offices of landing surveyor were created, viz., one at 600 l., one at 550 l., and one at 500 l., and at the same time a reduction of three landing waiters was made in the class at 200 l., and of five in that at 250 l. but the class at 350 l. was increased by two, and that at 300 l. by three.

Having in the foregoing remarks explained to your Lordships the endeavours made by us to give effect to the necessary alterations of establishment consequent on the legislative changes in the tariff in 1860, with every fair consideration for the officers of the former establishment which was consistent with our views of our duty to the public, we would only in conclusion take leave to submit, as it may admit of a doubt whether every officer who joined the amalgamated establishment was aware of the option given by your Lordships' order of 30th March 1860, to retire on compensation, whether your Lordships may not allow the offer to be repeated, and sanction payment to those officers of the former Landing Department in London who may now wish to relinquish their present employment, to be paid retired allowances regulated by the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict., c. 26, and your Lordships' minute of the 14th June 1859.

The Secretary to the Treasury to the Commissioners of Customs.

Gentlemen,

Treasury Chambers, 22 September 1865.

THE Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury having had before them your report of the 29th July last upon a petition, &c., from certain out-door officers of your department in London, complaining of the alleged injury caused to their prospects by the amalgamation of the Landing and Waterguard Departments, I am directed by their Lordships to transmit herewith, for your information and guidance, copy of a minute of this Board on the subject, dated 12th instant.

I am, &c.
The Commissioners of Customs. (signed) Hugh C. E. Childers.

— No. 5. —

COPY of TREASURY MINUTE dated 12 September 1865.

WRITE to Mr. Horsfall, M.P., that his letters to the Chancellor of the Exchequer of 9th May and 26th June have been submitted to this Board, together with the statement and petition enclosed, and that my Lords have been in further communication with the Commissioners of Customs on the subject.

My Lords desire to observe that in cases in which, for the public interest, whether by the consolidation or amalgamation of departments, or by extensive alterations in the Customs duties, as in 1860, the abolition of offices becomes necessary, provision has been made by law for retiring allowances to those persons whose offices are abolished, but the Legislature has in no manner acknowledged claims founded, not upon any actual loss of income, but upon a diminution in the prospect of a future and contingent advantage, such as that of promotion, and in order to justify this Board in any such acknowledgment, the nature of the injury sustained in that respect must be clear, and its amount more or less significant. My Lords have not found that these conditions are in any manner realised in the case now before them.

My Lords have to remark that while promotion from an inferior into a superior class is now held out as the reward of official merit, and the opportunities for attaining it may reasonably be regarded as a part of the conditions of public service, it is an advantage necessarily subject to the casualties and contingencies, as well as to the exigencies of the service, and experience and inquiry have only served to convince their Lordships that it would be impossible to adopt any general rule for measuring the loss, depending upon many contingencies, and exceedingly varying in degree, which individuals may sustain, so as to make it a subject of fixed compensation, when the contraction in the business of a department admits of a diminution in the number of its officers, or when a simplification in the business renders alteration in their duties both necessary and practicable.

It is further to be borne in mind that it happens, not unfrequently, that an increase in the number of superior officers becomes necessary, and that a benefit is thus conferred on the inferior classes by improving their prospects of advancement.

It would be easy to adduce instances in which the promotion in the landing and other departments in London was most favourably affected by alterations of establishment caused by the increase of business and responsibilities of the officers, and at the present time my Lords have under their consideration a proposition made by the Commissioners of Customs as regards a Department of the Customs in the Port of London, by which no fewer than 25 clerks in that single branch will at once receive an increase of salary by advancement from a lower to a higher class.

This large advantage will be a result of the increased business in the department, but my Lords may observe that had the Commissioners of Customs been actuated by mere considerations of economy, without reference to the interests of those employed under them, as seems to be improperly and unjustly imputed to them in the memorial of the clerks in the London Docks of April last, the additional work might have been provided for by the appointment of supernumerary and extra clerks.

To a certain extent the favourable incidents of any given employment must be regarded as balancing those which are adverse; and in regard to promotion generally, the loss from reduction of establishments, and the advantages attendant upon their increase, must be regarded as such incidents of the public service.

Their Lordships have already expressed their regret that they are unable in the circumstances of the present case to entertain claims of the nature of those urged in the petition, as arising from the diminished prospect of promotion among the officers of the Customs, in consequence of the alterations in the Customs tariff of 1860.

But, with reference to such cases in which very different and even irreconcilable estimates of the amount and character of the detriment sustained may be proved on the one side by the parties, and on the other by Her Majesty's Government, my Lords have satisfaction in observing that there is another alternative, besides direct compliance with the prayer of the petition, which is open to them, and which may seem to meet the fair claims of those who consider themselves to have suffered in their personal interests from changes required by the general welfare.

Provision has been made by the equitable and liberal forethought of the Legislature for compensation to the holders of offices which it may be found necessary to abolish. It would not be justifiable to admit generally the title of the holders of public offices to claim the benefit of this provision on every occasion when any change is made which bears more or less remotely on the nature and conditions of their service; but it appears well suited for rare cases like that of 1860, when the alterations made are of wide scope, and are of a character so important in its bearing on the employments held by particular officers and classes of officers in the department.

As soon as it became evident that, in the interest of the public, an amalgamation ought to be effected between the Landing and Waterguard Departments in the Port of London, the Commissioners of Customs adopted a course which evinced all due regard to the interests of the officers affected.

In the first instance those officers who, from age or other causes, were least fit for the service, were selected for retirement.

A new scheme for an amalgamated establishment was then framed; a memorandum was prepared giving an outline of the duties which would in future have to be performed, and stating the hours of attendance required, and after a provisional list had been prepared of the names of the officers belonging to the former establishments whom the Board proposed to appoint to the offices of surveyor and assistant surveyor on the new establishment, the Surveyor General was directed to, and did, communicate personally to each of the officers named the new arrangement contemplated, and each officer who was not disposed to accept the situation offered to him had an opportunity of retiring from the service on compensation, a permission of which many availed themselves.

Order 30 March
1860.

A similar course was adopted with regard to the searchers and subordinate officers retained, and although a personal communication may not have been made to each officer separately, my Lords are satisfied that every officer in the Landing Department in London was aware of the duties required of him under the new arrangement, and knew that he had the option of retiring on a compensation allowance.

Many officers applied to retire accordingly, and my Lords are not aware of any case in which the request was refused.

It is obvious, therefore, that the officers who accepted re-employment in the amalgamated establishment of the out-door department did so with a full knowledge of the proposed reduction of salary and classes, of the duties which they would have to perform, and the hours during which they would have to give attendance, as well as of the option afforded of retiring on a compensation allowance.

But, in order to obviate any further grounds of complaint or objection, my Lords are now prepared to repeat the offer, and in the case of any officer of the former Landing Department in London who may now wish to relinquish his present employment, to sanction the payment of a retired allowance, regulated by the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and the Treasury Minute of 14th June 1859.

Add that they would be disposed to apply a similar rule to any other class of cases in the Customs Department with respect to which, in connection with the new tariff of 1860, sufficient cause could be shown.

Transmit copy of this Minute to the Commissioners of Customs for their information and guidance.

The Secretary to the Treasury to Mr. Horsfall, M.P.

Sir,

Treasury Chambers, 22 September 1865.

I AM directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to acquaint you that my Lords have had before them your letters of the 9th May and 26th June last, addressed to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, together with the statements and petition enclosed, relative to the complaints made by certain out-door officers of Customs in London of the alleged injury caused to their prospects by the amalgamation of the Landing and Waterguard Departments; and that they have been in further communication with the Commissioners of Customs on the subject.

My Lords desire to observe that in cases in which, for the public interest, whether by the consolidation or amalgamation of departments, or by extensive alterations in the Customs duties, as in 1860, the abolition of offices becomes necessary, provision has been made by law for retiring allowances to those persons whose offices are abolished; but the Legislature has in no manner acknowledged claims founded, not upon any actual loss of income, but upon a diminution in the prospect of a future and contingent advantage such as that of promotion; and in order to justify this Board in any such acknowledgment, the nature of the injury sustained in that respect must be clear, and its amount more or less significant. My Lords have not found that these conditions are in any manner realised in the case now before them.

My Lords have to remark that while promotion from an inferior to a superior class is now held out as the reward of official merit, and the opportunities for attaining it may reasonably be regarded as a part of the conditions of public service, it is an advantage necessarily subject to the casualties and contingencies, as well as to the exigencies of the service, and experience and inquiry have only served to convince their Lordships that it would be impossible to adopt any general rule for measuring the loss depending upon many contingencies, and exceedingly varying in degree, which individuals may sustain, so as to make it the subject of a fixed compensation, when the contraction in the business of a department admits of a diminution in the number of its officers, or when a simplification in the business renders alteration in their duties both necessary and practicable.

It is further to be borne in mind, that it happens, not unfrequently, that an increase in the number of superior officers becomes necessary, and that a benefit is thus conferred on the inferior classes by improving their prospects of advancement.

It would be easy to adduce instances in which the promotion in the landing and other departments in London was most favourably affected by alteration of establishment caused by the increase of business and the responsibilities of the officers, and at the present time my Lords have under their consideration a proposition made by the Commissioners of Customs as regards a department of the Customs in the port of London, by which no fewer than 25 clerks in that single branch will at once receive an increase of salary, by advancement from a lower to a higher class.

This large advantage will be the result of the increased business in the department, but my Lords may observe that had the Commissioners of Customs been actuated by mere considerations of economy, without reference to the interests of those employed under them, as seems to be improperly and unjustly imputed to them in the memorial of the clerks in the London Docks of April last, the additional work might have been provided for by the appointment of supernumerary and extra clerks.

To a certain extent the favourable incidents of any given employment must be regarded as balancing those which are adverse, and in regard to promotion generally the loss from reduction of establishments, and the advantages attendant upon their increase, must be regarded as such incidents of the public service.

Their Lordships have already expressed their regret that in the circumstances of the present case they are unable to entertain claims of the nature of those urged in the petition as arising from the diminished prospect of promotion among the officers of the Customs in consequence of the alterations in the Customs' tariff of 1860, but with reference to such cases in which very different and even irreconcilable estimates of the amount and character of the detriment sustained may be proved on the one side by the parties, and on the other by Her Majesty's Government, my Lords have satisfaction in observing that there is another alternative besides direct compliance with the prayer of the petition which is open to them, and which may serve to meet the fair claims of those who consider themselves to have suffered in their personal interests from changes required by the public welfare.

Provision has been made by the equitable and liberal forethought of the Legislature for compensation to the holders of offices which it may be found necessary to abolish.

It would not be justifiable to admit generally the title of the holders of public offices to claim the benefit of this provision on every occasion when any change is made which bears more or less remotely on the nature and conditions of their service; but it appears well suited for rare cases like that of 1860, when the alterations are of wide scope, and are of a character so important in its bearing on the employments held by particular officers and classes of officers in the department.

As soon as it became evident that, in the interest of the public, an amalgamation ought to be effected between the Landing and Waterguard Departments in the port of London, the Commissioners of Customs adopted a course which evinced all due regard to the interests of the officers affected.

In the first instance those officers who, from age or other causes, were least fit for the service, were selected for retirement.

A new scheme for an amalgamated establishment was then framed; a memorandum was prepared, giving an outline of the duties which would in future have to be performed, and stating the hours of attendance required, and after a provisional list had been prepared of the names of the officers belonging to the former establishments whom the Board proposed to appoint to the offices of surveyor and assistant surveyor on the new establishment, the Surveyor General was directed to, and did, communicate personally to each of the officers named the new arrangement contemplated, and each officer who was not disposed to accept the situation offered to him had an opportunity of retiring from the service on compensation, a permission of which many availed themselves.

A similar course was adopted with regard to the searchers and subordinate officers retained, and although a personal communication may not have been made to each officer separately, my Lords are satisfied that every officer in the Landing Department in London was aware of the duties required of him under the new arrangement, and knew that he had the option of retiring on a compensation allowance.

Many officers applied to retire accordingly, and my Lords are not aware of any case in which the request was refused.

It is obvious, therefore, that the officer, who accepted re-employment in the amalgamated establishment of the out-door department did so with a full knowledge of the proposed reduction of salary and classes, of the duties which they would have to perform, and the hours during which they would have to give their attendance, as well as of the option afforded of retiring on a compensation allowance.

But in order to obviate any further grounds of complaint or objection, my Lords are now prepared to repeat the offer, and, in the case of any officer of the former Landing Department in London who may now wish to relinquish his present employment, to sanction the payment of a retired allowance, regulated by the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and the Treasury Minute of 14th June 1859.

I am to add that they would be disposed to apply a similar rule to any other class of cases in the Customs' Department, with respect to which, in connection with the new tariff of 1860, sufficient cause could be shown.

COPY of a MINUTE of the Board of Customs, dated 14 November 1865.

THE Board have carefully considered the order of the Lords of the Treasury, dated 22nd September last, and their Lordships' Minute dated 12th preceding, recorded on the Minutes of this Board of the 10th instant, conveying their Lordships' decision on the application of certain officers of the out-door department in London, complaining of the alleged injury to their prospects by the amalgamation of the former Landing and Waterguard Departments.

And with reference to that part of the order of the Lords of the Treasury which directs the Board, in making known the offer of retirement under the terms of the Minute to the officers of the out-door department in the Port of London, to name a reasonable limit as to the time within which the offer should be accepted; the Board consider that a period of three months from this date would be a proper time within which any application for retirement from an officer of the out-door department in London should be received by the Board.

And copies of this Minute, with copies of their Lordships' order and Minute referred to, are to be delivered to the heads of the out-door department in London, with directions to make their Lordships' orders known to the several officers in London under their survey, and also the limit fixed by this Minute for the receipt of applications for retirement.

Mr. R. Gladstone to the Right Honourable W. E. Gladstone, M.P.

Liverpool, 10 November 1865.

I HAVE been asked by Mr. John Mudie, of the Customs here, to forward to you the accompanying letter.

He addresses you, presuming on your having stated that in the event of any Customs officers being enabled to allege that their reasonable expectations had been disappointed, through the acts of the Government, the Government were bound to make them compensation, and that you would see them redressed.

I am informed that Mr. S. Price-Edwards, the late Collector of Customs here, when reporting to the Board some years since, entered fully into the details of the grievances of the officers at this port; and from Statement A, appended to Mr. Mudie's letter, it is shown that had Mr. Price-Edwards' recommendation been acted upon, the ultimate saving to the Government would have been 1,550 l. per annum.

I am, &amp;c.

(signed) Robertson Gladstone.

The Right Hon.
W. E. Gladstone, M.P.

Enclosure in No. 8.

Mr. J. Mudie to the Right Honourable W. E. Gladstone, M.P., Chancellor of the Exchequer, &c. &c. &c.

Sir,

Liverpool, 7 June 1865.

I HAVE been induced to address you in consequence of the sentiments expressed by you with regard to the claims of the Customs officers in your speech upon Mr. Hennessy's Motion.

I am aware that I take a great liberty in writing to you individually, and that, to a certain extent, I am infringing on the conventional rules of the service. I yet feel assured there is no public Minister less likely to take offence at such a liberty, or to allow the obscurity of the individual addressing him to militate against the recognition of his claims, should they prove upon inquiry to be well founded. You lay down the principle with regard to the officers who have claims for consideration on account of being "enabled to allege that their reasonable expectations, grounded upon the rules of the public service existing when they entered that service, have been disappointed through the act of the Government; that they have a grievance, and were it proved that officers had not had their fair chance of promotion, and were consequently suffering from the alterations of 1860, you are quite willing to acknowledge that they were bound to make them compensation." So aptly do you describe the position of myself and my brother officers, and fully and clearly admit the principle we have been contending for in vain for the last 15 years, that I resolved to throw myself upon your consideration, and lay my own case before you as a type of the sufferings which have been endured by the landing waiters generally at this port, in the assurance that were I so fortunate as to enlist your sympathy on our behalf, our case would receive that consideration which, upon the principle laid down by you, could not fail to secure to us the redress we have so long sought in vain.

I entered the service in 1840 as sub-controller, and exchanged to Liverpool in 1846, when I took my place at the foot of the following establishment, my salary being 150*l.* per annum:—

|           |   |   |   |                |   |   | £.    |
|-----------|---|---|---|----------------|---|---|-------|
| 1st class | - | - | - | 15 officers at | - | - | 350   |
| 2nd „     | - | - | - | 20 „           | - | - | 300   |
| 3rd „     | - | - | - | 20 „           | - | - | 250   |
| 4th „     | - | - | - | 25 „           | - | - | 200   |
| 5th „     | - | - | - | 30 „           | - | - | 150   |
|           |   |   |   |                |   |   | <hr/> |
|           |   |   |   |                |   |   | 110   |

My prospects then were that, upon obtaining 30 vacancies, I should be advanced to the next class, and so on until I attained the maximum of 350*l.*; but in 1849, in consequence of the free trade policy, it was found necessary to reduce the number of landing waiters, which was accordingly done in the following manner:—

| Number of Classes. | Number of Officers upon Establishments. |      | Salaries. | Steps Lost to each Class by Reductions. | Loss per Cent. inflicted upon the Prospective Incomes of the Officers on the different Classes. |      |      |      |      |

Another reduction took place in 1851, occasioned by the transfer of certain duties, formerly performed by the landing waiters, being transferred to the Tide Department; it was as follows:—

These reductions, as will be seen by the Tables, were carried out in a manner most prejudicial to the present and future prospects of the officers, no adjustment of the numbers upon the different classes being made so as to secure to the officers their usual rate of promotion. The consequence was that I had to wait for 49 vacancies instead of 30 before I obtained my first step of promotion.

In 1855, Mr. Edwards, the late Collector, arrived at this port, and his attention was soon directed to the Landing Department, when he was surprised to find such good grounds for the great discontent which manifested itself among the officers; and in the first report to the Board on the condition of the Out Door Department, he declared that they were in a state of dissatisfaction and disorganisation, and that he never expected they would be otherwise until their situation was improved, as their treatment hitherto had been such as could not fail to raise such a spirit; so strongly did Mr. Edwards express himself, that he felt obliged in conclusion to remark that the terms he had used were dictated by a regard to the best interests of the service; and a few weeks afterwards, when forwarding a memorial from the landing waiters, he entered fully into the details of their case, made an elaborate recapitulation of the losses they had sustained, and wound up by recommending, upon the grounds that they were entitled to compensation for the past, as well as an improved classification for the future, a special classification for those officers who had suffered the losses (December 1855).

We thus find Mr. Edwards upwards of 10 years ago urging the Board to act upon the principle you now admit to be founded upon justice and good faith; and as the classification recommended by him was one specially framed to meet an extraordinary and peculiar emergency, and would, if adopted, have effectually remedied the evil it was intended to obviate, I have annexed a copy of it (A).

But Mr. Edwards' recommendation was not adopted; and, having thus failed to obtain the direct advantage he had sought for the general body, he suggested an amalgamation of the landing and ganging departments, which was carried out, and slightly benefited some of the officers.

In 1859, I again attained to the top of my class, and a vacancy having occurred, I was recommended to the Board for promotion, but upon the very day the order was expected, realising my long deferred hopes, the announcement was received of another reduction as follows:—

By this, being then in the 4th class, I was put down eight steps. Thus in the course of 10 years I suffered from the effects of three reductions, and was altogether deprived of 27 vacancies upon which I had reckoned as my legitimate means of promotion, so that in 1860, when the general amalgamation took place, I still stood upon the 4th or next to the last class, although I had obtained no less than 72 vacancies out of the 109 officers originally above me. At the amalgamation, I was placed upon the 250L. class of the following establishment, where I still remain.

I have gone minutely into the question of the position I should have occupied had the original establishment upon which I entered remained intact, and I find that I should have stood nine up the 300L. class; this is supposing all those officers who were prematurely superannuated in 1860 had remained in the service, but deducting those who have since died or been incapacitated by age, sickness, or other causes; whereas I now remain upon the 250L. class, from which I will probably get, but beyond it I have little prospect of rising, the officers above me being, with few exceptions, all much of the same age as myself; I have already lost by those reductions upwards of 500L., and am still losing at the rate of 50L. per annum. When I joined the Landing Department, I had a prospect of rising to a maximum of 350L.; now, the highest is only 300L.; it is true I am eligible for the office of surveyor, but this appointment, which was formerly looked to with much solicitude, being one requiring ability and experience, but not of so laborious a nature but that men in the decline of life could perform the duties efficiently is now viewed with dread, and necessity alone obliges the officers to accept of it.

The reason of this is the long hours, night and Sunday visits, together with the degrading duties, such as rummaging vessels, which has been thrust upon officers who never contemplated having to discharge these duties when they entered the service. When you stated that you did not regard the lengthening of the hours in the same light as the other grievances, “because the contract by which the officers were bound did not specify any particular number of hours or minutes,” you must have overlooked the fact that the hours of attendance were clearly defined, and that no alteration was ever anticipated; whereas the rate of advancement was always to a certain extent dependent upon fortune, and officers when required to attend extra hours for the convenience of the merchants have always been remunerated by them at a rate fixed by the Board, so that the principle which you have admitted with regard to the one applies with still greater force to the other, for many of the officers are physically incapacitated to perform the duties which are thus described by Mr. St. John with regard to London, and the same rule will apply to Liverpool.

“The hours for the discharge of ships used to be confined strictly to between eight and four in summer, and nine to four in winter; now all foreign free and low duty goods can be discharged between the hours of six to six, and the officers have to attend without any additional remuneration. It of course adds greatly to their labour; the officer must live at a great distance, and if he has to attend at six o'clock in the morning, it involves his getting up at four o'clock, for he must breakfast before coming down. The officer naturally naturally complains; his prospects are greatly injured, and his work is greatly increased. Men who entered the service with the prospect of obtaining good salaries have now no such prospects; and great dissatisfaction has arisen among the officers, as it is quite natural should be the case."

I have never been called upon to work those hours, but my only alternative is either to do so or forfeit all prospect of advancement to a higher grade. To show you that this is no visionary description of the hardships which those officers have to contend with, I may state that two surveyors in this port, by no means old men, have already declared their inability to perform the duty, and have been excused from it, and are now employed as examining officers. These are the prospects I have to look forward to in my old age. Officers working those hours forfeit in a great measure all social and domestic enjoyment, and become all but aliens to their own families.

The amalgamation of 1860 having been carried out upon the principle of regulating the position upon the establishment by the rate of salary, irrespective of service, increased the anomalies which had previously existed in this port, consequent upon the reductions in the Landing Department, while the other departments had received improved establishments. I may mention one instance illustrative of this: a landing waiter's appointment was offered for competition; among the unsuccessful candidates on this occasion was a tide surveyor, who, at the amalgamation six years afterwards, was actually placed two classes above the officer who had beaten him, and he is still in receipt of 100 £. per annum more than his successful competitor. This fortunate officer is in the class above me, although I was in receipt of 200 £. per annum when he was unsuccessfully competing for 150 £.

The establishment of 1860 is a perfect delusion, all the elements of a classification having been destroyed before it was formed; for without disparity of age, which is assumed as the basis upon which a classification is formed, its object, viz., progressive promotion from one class to another, cannot be obtained; all the old and superior officers having been weeded out, those remaining are all much of the same age, the older officers (if anything) predominating in the lower classes.

I addressed a Memorial to the Board of Customs in 1859, from which I extract the following:

"We all feel that we at present occupy an exceptional position, and that the same measure has not been meted out to us as to the officers of the other departments, either in this port or throughout the kingdom; we are painfully reminded of this at all times, and on all occasions; in our official life we cannot meet an officer of another department without his presence suggesting to us the very different position he occupies; in our leisure hours we brood over our past disappointment and still darker prospects; for, precluded as we are from entering upon any other pursuit, and having nothing but our official advancement to look to as a provision for ourselves and families, this must naturally be the thought uppermost in our minds; at our firesides the subject is literally brought home to us, for we cannot shut our eyes to facts so palpably brought before us in our every domestic arrangement; we all see and hear of wants and wishes we can neither supply or gratify; we know of long-cherished plans of sending this one to school, and providing something for another when the next step of promotion is attained; plans only formed to be disappointed."

"It is only persons situated as we are, struggling to keep up a respectable position, with growing families and increasing expenditure, who can fully understand the value of the promotion, the loss of which we have again and again had to suffer." To this memorial I appended a list showing the actual amounts lost by each individual officer by the various reductions, a copy of which I annex (B). This list and the foregoing extract derive peculiar value from the fact of their having been accepted by the Board of Customs; and, while the one illustrates the feelings of the officers previous to the amalgamation, the other shows that my case is by no means an isolated one. Only 30 officers out of the 57 who appear upon this list now remain in the service, and 12 of them have been promoted to a higher grade, but their places have to some extent been supplied by the sufferers for the reductions of 1859 and the amalgamation of 1860.

The great advantage of Government appointments used formerly to be their certainty, and this was looked upon in a great measure as compensating for the otherwise comparatively low rate of remuneration; of late years nothing could be more uncertain than the advancement here; changes after changes having during the last 15 years taken place all militating against their interests, and keeping them in a continual state of dread and uncertainty, so that the service from being one of the most certain, is now most precarious, every change having prejudiced the interests of the officers without the very smallest compensation being allowed.

The officers felt very keenly an admission made by Mr. Dobell before the Parliamentary Committee, by which it appeared that their interests had been made subservient to a pledge given by you to Parliament. He stated, "I am afraid that we were a little too anxious that the Chancellor of the Exchequer might realise a half promise he made to Parliament that he would save 150,000 £.; having this in view, I think we went a little too far in cutting down salaries."

You cannot wonder if the officers felt indignant at seeing proceedings by which they suffered so much so coolly described by one of the chief agents in the work.

The progress of Liverpool, during the time the officers have been suffering, has been truly wonderful; all classes having reaped the advantages of increased wealth, and abundant employment, the natural consequence has been greatly enhanced cost of living, thereby thereby inflicting another hardship upon those whose prospects of advancement were suspended. Every shackle removed from commerce was another loss to them, and nothing can better illustrate this unnatural state of affairs than the fact, that the rumour that you had a surplus to dispose of, while gladdening the hearts of the nation, only struck the officers with dread as the almost certain precursor of further losses.

I am very much deceived if I have not succeeded in showing you that my own case, and that of some of my brother officers, does not possess all the requisitions specified by you, as only necessary to secure your interposition in their behalf.

I have shown,

1st. That our reasonable expectations have been disappointed through the acts of the Government.

2nd. That the losses and sufferings have been admitted by their superior officers, and in one instance a practical remedy suggested.

3rd. That no relief or compensation whatever has been conceded to the officers.

It is thus obvious that the officers are complaining of no imaginary grievance, that they are not selfishly endeavouring to extort from the guardian of the public purse aught that is not due; on the contrary, they seek for what they believe to be most righteously due. They simply ask to be placed in the position they would have occupied if equitably dealt with, and it is now admitted that their claims are founded on justice and public faith, for when they entered the service there was an establishment with a classification based upon the principle, that whoever entered that department should during good behaviour progress from class to class as vacancies arose, until he reached the maximum salary; such only could be the principle where promotion is regulated by seniority, and such only could be the intention of the framers.

In conclusion, I have to apologise for the great length to which this statement has extended; my excuse is, the solemn conviction I entertain of the justice of our claims, and my extreme anxiety that you should be enabled fully to estimate the grounds upon which they are founded.

Should I have succeeded in doing this, I feel assured that my object would be virtually attained, and that our claims would receive as a necessary consequence the redress that I so firmly believe they deserve.

I have, &c.

The present cost of the establishment would be an increase of 450 l. per annum, but this would decrease at every vacancy until there would ultimately be a saving of 1,550 l.

| Increase at present - - -               | £. 450 | saving ultimately £. 1,550 |

One of the very great advantages of this plan was, that that the greatest increase was given to the junior and worst paid officers, who on all former occasions had been the principal sufferers.

REPORT of the Commissioners of Customs, dated 25th November 1865.

To the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

THE Chancellor of the Exchequer having forwarded to the Chairman the annexed letter from Mr. Robertson Gladstone, enclosing a representation from Mr. J. Mudie, an Examining Officer of the Second Class at Liverpool, requesting that compensation may be granted to himself and the other Examining Officers who formerly belonged to the Landing Department at that port, for the injury sustained by them in the loss of their prospects of promotion in consequence of the reductions and changes of establishment effected since the year 1849,

We report, That Mr. Mudie holds the situation of Examining Officer of the Second Class at Liverpool, with a salary of 250 l.; he has been in the service of this revenue upwards of 25 years, and bears the character of an intelligent, competent, and attentive officer.

The applicant has correctly stated the establishment and salaries of searchers at the port of Liverpool in the year 1846, when he joined that establishment; he has also accurately given the reduction in the number of officers and their salaries between the years 1846 and 1851, and assigned the true reason for these reductions, viz., the diminution of the business requiring to be performed by the Landing Department. The reference, however, made by the applicant to the proposition submitted to us by Mr. Price Edwards, Collector at Liverpool in 1855, for an improvement of the prospects of the Landing Establishment by an amended classification recommended by him, and the statement in Appendix (A), that the adoption of this establishment would have only entailed an immediate increased expense of 450 l., and would have been productive of an ultimate saving of 1,550 l., are not consistent with the correct facts of the case.

In 1855, when the proposition of Mr. Edwards was made, the approved establishment consisted of 85 searchers.

|                          |   |   |   | £.  | £.      |

| 12 of the 1st Class at - | - | - | - | 350 | = 4,200 |
| 14 „ 2nd „               | - | - | - | 300 | = 4,200 |

| 19 „ 4th „               | - | - | - | 200 | = 3,800 |
| 24 „ 5th „               | - | - | - | 150 | = 3,600 |
| 85                       |   |   |   |     | £19,800 |

But a prospective reduction of the numbers had been decided on, and as it was carried out by allowing the promotions to go on as vacancies occurred on the superior classes, but ceasing to fill the junior vacancies, and there existed 10 vacancies on the junior class, with salaries amounting to 1,500 l., the total number on the establishment was 75, and not 85, and the total expense was 18,300 l., and not 19,800 l., as stated by the applicant; and the immediate increase of expense, caused by the adoption of Mr. Edwards' proposition, would have been 1,950 l. a year, and not 450 l., as stated by the applicant, and the prospective saving only 50 l., and not 1,550 l., when all the old searchers admitted prior to 1849 had left the service, many of whom still form part of the establishment.

We did not, on these and other grounds, think fit to recommend to your Lordships the adoption of Mr. Edwards' proposition; but, as stated by the applicant, in the year 1856, we submitted and obtained your Lordships' approval of a revised establishment, combining the landing and gauging offices in one classification, and under this arrangement 16 searchers obtained an immediate increase of salary of 50 l. per annum each.

As regards the effect of the revision of the establishment in the year 1860, when the amalgamation of the Landing and Waterguard Departments took place, we would take leave to refer to our Report to your Lordships, dated the 30th June 1864, on an application from the Examining Officers at Liverpool, praying redress, wherein we explained very fully the salaries and prospects of this class of officers prior to and under the revised establishment approved by your Lordships' Order of the 27th August 1860.

We stated that in consequence of the alterations in the Tariff under which numerous articles, previously liable to duty, became free, the business which attached to the officers who comprised the establishment of Landing Surveyors, Landing Waiters, Gaugers, Timber Measurers, and Superintendent Lockers, was materially affected, and the reduction of the force to a considerable extent, and a consolidation of the remainder with the Waterguard Establishment, became necessary, not only at Liverpool, but at the several ports in the United Kingdom.

We further stated that we were ready to admit that the prospects of the officers at Liverpool, especially of those formerly Landing Waiters, had, in common with those of the officers at other ports, been seriously affected by the reductions in the establishment which were carried out in 1860, and if, at a future period, it might become necessary, from the increasing trade of the port, to augment the establishment, we should be glad to avail ourselves of the opportunity which might then be afforded of recommending any improvement in the classification which we might then feel justified in proposing.

Your Lordships were subsequently pleased, on our recommendation, by your Order, dated 9th May last, to sanction, as a special indulgence, the payment of personal allowances to those Examining Officers at the outports who had remained without increase of salary for a period of seven years, and whose advancement had been retarded by the departmental changes in the year 1860; and the Examining Officers at the port of Liverpool participated in the benefit of this arrangement, five having obtained a personal allowance of 25 l. per annum each, and nine of 20 l. per annum each.

Having thus briefly referred to the several alterations of establishment which have affected the prospects of the applicant and other officers of the old Landing Department, we would observe, that the claims now urged on behalf of himself and his brother officers at Liverpool, by Mr. Mudie, for compensation for the loss of prospective advantages under these departmental changes, are similar to and preferred on the same grounds as those advanced by the officers of the former Landing Department in London, recently under your Lordships' consideration, and which formed the subject of our Report to your Lordships, dated the 29th July last, No. 443, and the decision come to on those claims, by your Lordships' Minute of the 12th September last, applies with equal force to the present application.

In that Minute your Lordships observe, that in cases in which for the public interest, whether by the consolidation and amalgamation of departments, or by extensive alterations in the Customs duties, as in 1860, the abolition of offices becomes necessary, provision has been made by law for retiring allowances to those persons whose offices are abolished, but that the Legislature has in no manner acknowledged claims founded, not upon any actual loss of income, but upon a diminution in the prospect of a future and contingent advantage, such as that of promotion, and that, in order to justify your Lordships in any such acknowledgment, the nature of the injury sustained in that respect must be clear, and its amount more or less significant, and that your Lordships had not found that these conditions were in any manner realised in the case before you.

Your Lordships remark, that while promotion from an inferior into a superior class is now held out as the reward of official merit, and the opportunities for attaining it may reasonably be regarded as a part of the conditions of public service, it is an advantage necessarily subject to the casualties and contingencies, as well as to the exigencies of the service, and that experience and inquiry have only served to convince your Lordships that it would be impossible to adopt any general rule for measuring the loss depending upon many contingencies and exceedingly varying in degrees which individuals may sustain, so as to make it the subject of a fixed compensation when the contraction in the business of a department admits of a diminution in the number of its officers, or when a simplification in the business renders alteration in their duties both necessary and practicable.

Your Lordships further state that you had already expressed your regret that, in the circumstances of the case, you were unable to entertain claims of the nature of those urged in the petition as arising from the diminished prospect of promotion among the officers of the Customs, in consequence of the alterations in the Customs Tariff of 1860; but that with reference to such cases in which very different and even irreconcilable estimates of the amount and character of

of the detriment sustained may be formed on the one side by the parties, and on the other by Her Majesty's Government, your Lordships have satisfaction in observing that there is another alternative besides direct compliance with the prayer of the Petition, which is open to you, and which may serve to meet the fair claims of those who consider themselves to have suffered in their personal interests from changes required by the public welfare; that provision has been made by the equitable and liberal forethought of the Legislature for compensation to the holders of offices which it may be found necessary to abolish; that it would not be justifiable to admit generally the title of the holders of public offices to claim the benefit of this provision on every occasion when any change is made which bears more or less remotely on the nature and conditions of their service, but that it appears well suited for rare cases like that of 1860, when the alterations made are of wide scope, and are of a character so important in its bearing on the employments held by particular officers and classes of officers in the department.

Your Lordships further expressed your opinion that the officers who accepted re-employment in the amalgamated establishment of the Out-door Department, did so with a full knowledge of the proposed reduction of salary and of the duties they would have to perform; but in order to obviate any further grounds of complaint or objection, your Lordships were prepared to repeat the offer, and in the case of any officer of the former Landing Department in London, who may now wish to relinquish his present employment, to sanction the payment of a retired allowance regulated by the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict., cap. 26, and your Lordships' Minute of 14th June, 1859.

Your Lordships added that you would be disposed to apply a similar rule to any other class of cases in the Customs' Department, with respect to which, in connection with the new Tariff of 1860, sufficient cause could be shown.

Although Mr. Mudie obtained an increase of income of 50*l.* per annum under the amalgamated establishment approved in the year 1860, yet there is no doubt, as hereinbefore stated, that the prospects of himself and the other examining officers formerly holding offices in the Landing Department have been injuriously affected by the reductions and alterations made by the revision of the establishment in 1860, and we shall be prepared to extend to this class of officers the offer authorised to be made to the late Landing Department in London by your Minute of the 12th September last, and in any well-established case of injury sustained under the alterations of establishment made in 1860, to submit that the officer may be allowed to relinquish his present employment, and to receive a retired allowance regulated by the Act 22 Vict., chapter 26, and your Lordships' Minute of 14th June 1859.

Enclosure in No. 10.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

The Memorial of the undersigned Officers formerly belonging to the Landing Department of the Customs at this Port,

Most respectfully sheweth—

THAT your Memorialists have had communicated to them copies of your Lordships' Minute and Order, dated respectively the 22nd and 12th of September last, setting forth certain terms subject to which Memorialists may resign their present appointments.

Memorialists humbly pray your Lordships to reconsider their case, with a view to such modification of the Order in question as may render it possible for some, at least of those concerned, to avail themselves of an opportunity of retiring from active service, which, as at present advised, Memorialists do not see to be open to them.

The grounds on which this prayer is preferred are the following, viz.

1. That the measures adopted in connection with the tariff alterations in 1860 affected Memorialists in a most serious manner, almost annihilating the old classes of landing surveyors, and totally destroying the most highly paid landing waiters' class, besides reducing the numbers in those which were left; and that their superannuation allowances, when overtaken by infirmity or old age, will be cruelly reduced in consequence, while their appointments are further lessened in present value by assimilation with officers of inferior grade, and the diminution of general comfort and respectability.

2. Although your Lordships are pleased to narrow the basis on which the offer in question is made to causes arising in 1860, Memorialists cannot think it will be deemed out of place for them to refer to the fact, that the officers at this port were subjected, from causes nearly analogous, to three several reductions in the eleven years preceding; and to plead these injuries in aggravation of, if not in addition to, the still more ruinous event of 1860.

3. No particulars were communicated to Memorialists in 1860, of "a new scheme for an amalgamated establishment," nor any "memorandum giving an outline of the duties which would in future have to be performed," nor a statement of "the hours of attendance required;" nor was "a provisional list of the names of the officers belonging to the former establishment, whom the Board proposed to appoint to the offices of surveyors and assistant surveyors on the new establishment," communicated to those who received such appointments; neither was the option of retiring offered, on the conditions of future service, above quoted, to those who were retained. On the contrary, the officers appointed as assistant surveyors had no intimation that they would receive such appointments, and their duties were so far unsettled, that they at first performed that of searcher, and neither they nor the surveyors performed, until within the last two years, a duty in connection with the supervision of the water-guard, which renders their office much more onerous, and much less desirable than before.

Moreover, when the nature of the duties, independently of that above adverted to, became known, one of the newly-appointed assistant surveyors applied for leave to retire, on the specific ground that they affected his health, and "the request was refused." That officer and another of the same rank, are now doing the duty of examining officers, in consequence of their objection to perform those which specially appertain to their class.

4. That the terms mentioned in your Lordships' Minute are such as, if acted on in their primary sense, would probably afford material relief, as it may be that a sufficient number of officers would retire to give such promotion to those who remained as partially to compensate them for past and prospective losses, as well as present injury. And Memorialists doubt not that further consideration and inquiry will satisfy your Lordships, that an allowance calculated on the service and income of a former period, cannot be regarded as an equitable settlement of a grievance not only long existing, but still operating and becoming every year less capable of reparation.

For those who have been retained in active service during the past five years have lost more, in advancing age and diminished chances of finding a fresh career, than they have gained in income and additional servitude; and consequently would be at a disadvantage, relatively to those who left at the earlier date, even when receiving compensation on the most favourable terms. This view is illustrated by a series of tables appended to the present document.

Memorialists would further observe with deference that, under the order in question, they are in a measure deprived of the ordinary benefit of superannuation as laid down in the Act of Parliament, which entitles them to an allowance calculated on their entire service at the average salary for the last three years thereof; whereas, under your Lordships' Order, the allowance is computed by an arbitrary rule on terms less favourable than those set forth by the law.

5. That the offer of retirement in 1860 is described in your Lordships' Minute as having been made without reserve or limitation; and the same impression with respect to the present offer is conveyed to Memorialists by the language used in that document, but by the Order of the 22nd September, the conditions are so altered, that Memorialists cannot but feel that the later portion of the Minute is virtually of no effect.

Finally, your Memorialists anxiously, but with confidence, appeal to your Lordships to lend a favourable ear to their prayer, that the option of retirement on an allowance regulated by the 7th Section of the Act 22 Vict., c. 26, and the Treasury Minute of the 14th June 1859, may be granted to "any officer" of the old Landing Department, "who may wish to relinquish his present appointment," on the basis of his present service and average salary for the last three years, and free from the other limitations set forth in your Lordships' Order, before adverted to.

And your Memorialists will ever pray, &c.,

The difference per cent. will not be so great in respect of officers of longer service, but, on the other hand, the disparity between the amounts of superannuation and compensation, when calculated at present salaries, and according to the Act, as contrasted with what they would receive under the Treasury Order, will show still more plainly how disadvantageously the officers are affected by the provisions of the latter.

REPORT of the Commissioners of Customs, dated 30 December 1865.

To the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

YOUR Lordships having referred to us the annexed application of certain officers of the Out-door Department of this Service at Liverpool, who were formerly attached to the Landing Department, setting forth the injurious effect upon their prospects of the revision of the establishment, consequent on the alterations of the tariff effected in the year 1860, and requesting that they may be allowed to retire on compensation allowances, calculated with reference solely to their present income and length of service—

We report, That in our Report of the 25th ultimo, No. 629, upon a representation from Mr. J. Mudie, Examining Officer of the 2nd Class at Liverpool, (forwarded to the Chancellor of the Exchequer by Mr. Robertson Gladstone), we fully placed before your Lordships the effect of the several alterations made during recent years in the establishment of the Landing Department at Liverpool, upon the prospects of the officers belonging thereto, and we referred to your Lordships' Minute of the 12th September last, whereby you expressed your readiness to permit any officer of the former Landing Department in London who may now wish to relinquish his present employment to retire upon an allowance regulated by the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and your Lordships' Minute of the 14th June 1859, and added that you would be disposed to apply a similar rule to any other class of cases in the Customs Department, with respect to which, in connection with the new tariff of 1860, sufficient cause could be shown.

We stated that there was no doubt that the prospects of Mr. Mudie (whose case was then under consideration), and of the other examining officers at Liverpool, formerly holding offices in the Landing Department, had been injuriously affected by the reduction and alterations made by the revision of the establishment in 1860, and that we should be prepared to extend to that class of officers the offer authorised to be made to the late Landing Department in London by your Lordships' Minute of 12th September last, and in any well-established case of injury sustained under the alterations of the establishment in 1860, to submit that the officer might be allowed to relinquish his present employment, and to receive a retired allowance regulated by the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and your Lordships' Minute of 14th June 1859.

Your Lordships' Minute of 12th September last was forwarded to us in a letter from Mr. Childers, dated 22nd following, wherein he stated, that, with reference to the amount to be allowed in each case where the option of retiring at the present time is accepted, it is your Lordships' desire that the retiring allowance be calculated upon the salary enjoyed by each officer at the time of the amalgamation of 1860, the number of extra years to which such officer would then have been entitled under the 7th section of the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and your Lordships' Minute of 14th June 1859, being added to his service, and that for the additional year's service up to the present time, an ordinary superannuation allowance be calculated upon the salary he at present enjoys, provided he shall have been in the receipt thereof for three years, otherwise upon his average salary for that time.

It is for a modification of the principle on which the retired allowance is to be calculated as laid down by your Lordships in Mr. Childer's letter, above quoted, that the Memorialists apply to your Lordships, they being desirous that any officer who may retire from the service under the permission granted by your Lordships' Minute of the 12th September last may receive a compensation allowance calculated on his present income for his total service, with the addition of the seven or ten years allowed by the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and your Lordships' Minute of the 14th June 1859. We beg to state our opinion that the principle laid down by your Lordships in Mr. Childer's letter is equitable and just, and we can only submit the request for your Lordships' decision.

The Secretary to the Treasury to the Commissioners of Customs.

Gentlemen,

Treasury Chambers, 7 February 1866

I AM directed by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to acquaint you that my Lords have fully considered the memorial of the officers of the Out-door Department of Customs at Liverpool, and your Report relating thereto of 30th December last, together with several other memorials which have been received by this Board on the same subject.

The memorialists, with reference to the offer contained in the Treasury Minute of 12th September last, submit that the compensation allowances on retirement, as sanctioned by that Minute, should be calculated according to their present income and length of service, instead of being calculated in the manner set forth in that Minute, namely, upon the salary enjoyed by each officer at the time of the amalgamation of 1860; the number of extra years to which such officer would then have been entitled under the 7th section of the 22nd Vict. c. 26, and the Treasury Minute of 14th June 1859, being added to his service, and that for the additional years' service up to the present time an ordinary superannuation allowance be calculated upon the salary he at present enjoys, provided he shall have been in the receipt thereof for three years, otherwise upon his average salary for that time.

My Lords do not consider that the officers, referred to have any claim to the concession they now seek for, but they are prepared so far to alter the terms of retirement set forth in their Minute of 12th September last, as to allow the calculation of the superannuation of an officer who may now adopt the option of retirement, to be made upon his present salary and service, according to the ordinary rule of computation for superannuation, and as regards the additional amount by way of compensation that it shall be calculated on the salary and service of 1860. Thus, for example, in the case of an officer who in 1860 had served 18 years, and had a salary of 400 l., and who in 1865 had attained a salary of 450 l., and a service of 23 years, my Lords are of opinion that he may receive his ordinary superannuation allowance due in 1865, viz.,  $\frac{23}{50}$  of 450 l., and that there should be added to this, under the 7th section of the Act, not  $\frac{10}{50}$  of 450 l. (the salary and compensation of 1865), but  $\frac{7}{50}$  of 400 l. (the salary and compensation of 1860). In all cases, however, the maximum sum awarded must be limited, according to the Act of 1859, to  $\frac{40}{50}$  of salary and emoluments.

My Lords desire that this may be made known by you to the officers who may be entitled to claim the option of retirement, and that some extension of time, say, to the end of the present month, be given, within which the option should be exercised.

With regard, however, to officers who may have acquired an advance by promotion since 1860, my Lords hope that great caution will be used by you in bringing under their notice applications for retirement, inasmuch as the promotion of such officers since 1860 would apparently be inconsistent with their having sustained an injury by the amalgamations or reductions of that period.

I am, &c.

The Commissioner of Customs.

Custom House, London,
9 February 1866.

Sir,

WITH reference to General Order No. 114—1865, transmitting for the information of the officers at your port, a copy of an Order of the Lords of the Treasury, dated the 22nd September last, together with a copy of their Lordships' Minute of the 12th preceding, stating the terms on which their Lordships would sanction the retirement from the service of any officer who can establish to the satisfaction of their Lordships a well founded case of loss or injury under the alterations of establishment made in 1860 :—

I am desired by the Board to enclose herewith, for the further information of the officers, an extract from an Order of the Lords of the Treasury, dated the 7th instant, modifying the terms of retirement set forth in their Minute of the 12th September last; and I am directed to instruct you to make known to the several officers at your port the conditions of their Lordships' Order of the 7th instant, herewith transmitted, and, at the same time, to draw their attention to the extension of time allowed for making applications for retirement, viz, up to the end of the present month.

To the Collector at _____.

EXTRACT from TREASURY ORDER, dated the 7th February 1866.

MY Lords are prepared so far to alter the terms of retirement set forth in their Minute of the 12th September last, as to allow the calculation of the superannuation of an officer, who may now adopt the option of retirement, to be made upon his present salary and service, according to the ordinary rule of computation for superannuation, and as regards the additional amount by way of compensation that it shall be calculated on the salary and service of 1860. Thus, for example, in the case of an officer who in 1860 had served 18 years, and had a salary of 400 l., and who in 1865 had attained a salary of 450 l., and a service of 23 years, my Lords are of opinion that he may receive his ordinary superannuation allowance due in 1865, viz.,  $\frac{23}{60}$  ths of 450 l.; and that there should be added to this, under the 7th section of the Act, not  $\frac{18}{60}$  ths of 450 l. (the salary and compensation of 1865), but  $\frac{7}{60}$  ths of 400 l. (the salary and compensation of 1860). In all cases, however, the maximum sum awarded must be limited, according to the Act 1859, to  $\frac{40}{60}$  ths of salary and emoluments.

My Lords desire that this may be made known by you to the officers who may be entitled to claim the option of retirement, and that some extension of time—say to the end of the present month—be given, within which the option should be exercised.

With regard, however, to officers who may have acquired an advance by promotion since 1860, my Lords hope that great caution will be used by you in bringing under their notice applications for retirement, inasmuch as the promotion of such officers since 1860 would apparently be inconsistent with their having sustained an injury by the amalgamations or reductions of that period.

— No. 14. —

Mr. T. Satchell to the Commissioners of Customs.

Honourable Sirs,

London, 6 July 1867.

I AM desired by the members of the deputation of the officers of the old Landing Department, with whom the Board had an interview on Thursday afternoon, to express their grateful thanks for the courteous and patient hearing accorded to the details of their grievances on that occasion.

I have also to intimate that we would gladly procure the declarations of every officer in the service as to whether he was or was not aware that the option of retiring was open to him in 1860, should the Board deem further evidence on this point essential to the formation of any judgment on our case, and to express the hope that any point requiring, in the opinion of the Board, further elucidation or the support of additional evidence, may be notified to the officers.

Aware of the facility of mastering the details of any subject which is afforded by the presentation of the same in a printed form, the officers have sent the paper read on Thursday to the printer, and now beg to forward copies for the use of the members of the Board.

Respectfully,
(signed) Thos. Satchell.

Enclosure in No. 14.

A MEMORANDUM OF THE FACTS AND ARGUMENTS RELATING TO THE DETAILS OF THE CASE.

(1.) The grievances complained of may be ranged under four heads:—

1. Diminished prospects of promotion;
2. Lengthened hours of attendance;
3. The imposition of new and disagreeable duties, and
4. The loss of official position.

The diminished prospects of promotion are due to three causes, viz.:—

1st. The reduction in the maximum of the salaries of both the surveyors and the landing waiters.

(In the first case from 600 £. to 500 £., and in the second from 400 £. to 300 £. per annum.)

2nd. The reduction in the number of superior positions.

(In the old classification there were 24 appointments to which salaries of 500 £. and upwards were attached; in 1860, 13 of these were abolished, a reduction of nearly 63 per cent.

The number of positions with salaries exceeding 300 £. per annum was reduced from 66 to 32, or 52 per cent.)

3rd. The exclusion of the older men from the new classification.

(Almost all the men above 50 years of age were removed; six only of the old officers, of whom the oldest was 54, were retained. This step produced a certain uniformity of age, the effect of which is best shown by the fact that there have been only two deaths (both of young men) and no ordinary superannuation during the last seven years among the officers remaining in the service, in place of 15 vacancies (by death and superannuation) which, according to the experience of the department, would otherwise have occurred during the same period.)

The second head of grievance is the lengthened hours of attendance, including the obligation of making Sunday and night visits on the part of those officers holding superior positions.

(The official hours of the landing officers now extend from 6 to 6, in place of from 8 to 4 during eight months, and from 8 to 4, in place of from 9 to 4 during the remainder of the year, without intervals for rest or refreshment. All attendance beyond the regular hours of business was formerly remunerated according to a scale sanctioned by the Government. The additional unpaid attendance is not habitually enforced, but is given whenever the importers may desire it. But few of the officers have escaped the application of the liability, although it is due to the heads of the department to remark that it has been rendered as little onerous as the circumstances permitted. An approximate return prepared in 1865 showed that during the first five years that elapsed after the alterations, the liability of giving extra attendance had been applied to 45 officers out of 72, and that these officers had attended, in the aggregate, 12,543 hours; the money value of which, according to the scale of payment previously existing, was 2,961 £.; 65 £. to each officer for the whole period, or 13 £. each per annum.)

On this point the Board, when objecting to a recommendation of Mr. Mitchell's Committee in 1852, that the attendance during the six summer months should be from 7 to 5, "with a break in the middle of the day"—an attendance falling far short of that to which the officers have since been rendered liable—made this observation: "We should exceedingly regret the introduction of any change by which the respectability of the officers might be impaired, or their zeal checked by an indiscriminate and needlessly prolonged attendance."

The Treasury Minute of 14th April 1853, on the same subject, adds, "My Lords could not expect to establish any general increase in the hours of attendance, without adding to the present emolument of the officers."

This liability to increased attendance has now been applied, concurrently, however, with a decrease of their emoluments.)

The third head of grievance is the imposition of new and disagreeable duties.

(The "rummaging," or thorough searching of vessels, involving the risk of life and limb in climbing their sides, descending into their holds, examining the berths of sailors, returned soldiers, and sick passengers, penetrating into lazarettes, engine-rooms and coal bunkers, it will be admitted, is an unpleasant, and indeed repulsive duty to men not trained to the labour from early years, and thereby habituated to its disagreeable features; and this more especially when the men called upon to perform it for the first time had reached middle age. The night visits, the river duty, and the duty generally, which had previously been discharged by the tide surveyors and inspectors of the river are all of more or less objectionable character, and did not accord with the previous habits and tastes of the officers.

This is in no way disproved by the fact that many of the old officers are always found ready and willing to discharge these duties; and it may be here remarked that, although they have felt sorely aggrieved by the injuries which have been inflicted upon them, they have never failed to discharge, to the best of their ability, one and all of the new duties which have been imposed.)

The fourth head of grievance is the loss of position consequent on the amalgamation with a body of men previously engaged in the discharge of undeniably inferior duties.

(This head of grievance should not be treated lightly or held as a merely sentimental one. It involves an injury likely to be keenly felt by all men of proper self-esteem and self-respect. The endeavour to improve their position; to raise themselves in the social scale, is a legitimate ambition which pervades all ranks and conditions of men, and is justly esteemed so, since it tends to elevate the moral tone of the individuals or classes who are animated by its influence. On the contrary, it is well known that the loss of social position sooner tends to induce a low sense of duty than any other cause.

That the officers of the old Landing Department have suffered from the loss of position is undoubted. The department had always been previously held in high estimation; a more mature age, a heavier security, and a more lengthened and careful pupilage and examination than for any other branches of the Customs, were demanded of those receiving appointments as landing waiters. The responsibility of the position was greater, and the pay higher, than in any other office under the Board. From the ranks of the department the highest practical officers of the Customs, the Surveyors General, have hitherto been selected, and other officers have been, from time to time, chosen for the performance of many difficult and responsible duties connected with fiscal legislation.

The Board had publicly borne testimony to the high state of efficiency and respectability of the department, when replying to the report of Mr. Mitchell's Committee, a few years previous to 1860; and in their Fifth Report for 1859, had been pleased to describe the officers as "Men of superior intelligence and qualifications, performing functions requiring no small amount of tact, temper, and patience, together with a power of discrimination and an intimate acquaintance with the law only to be gained by long experience." The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Gladstone) also, speaking in the House on the 28th February 1860, alluded to the department as "consisting of a class of costly but highly accomplished officers."

The amalgamation had this effect: it placed officers of the position and standing just stated on the same class with men who had entered the service in the capacity of tidewaiters and weighing porters.

There is no wish to disparage, by this assertion, a body of men who had conducted themselves in their humble positions respectfully and efficiently.

The honourable Board have themselves pointed out the wide difference between the respective positions and duties of the landing waiters, and the "subordinate officers," in their reply to the report of Mitchell's Committee; have, at the same time, alluded to the line which the Lords of the Treasury "had deemed it" advisable to draw, with a view of keeping up the respectability of the Landing Department," by "excluding persons of these inferior grades from succession to the office of landing waiter, leading eventually to that of Surveyor and Surveyor General;" have deprecated any step "tending to the disparagement of the superior classes equally entitled to consideration;" have declared the officers of the waterguard "not qualified for transfer to the Landing Department;" and intimated that "their promotion could not fail to be attended with prejudicial consequences."

These expressions of opinion were given by the Board when it was proposed to open the ranks of the Landing Department, at that time closed against the admission, under any circumstances, of the subordinate officers, as "a means of rewarding those officers who, on account of peculiar qualifications and extraordinary merit, may be selected as worthy of the distinction."

These quotations are made, not with any wish or intention of questioning the right of the Board to alter the position of their subordinates at discretion, but simply for the purpose of establishing the allegation that the status of the landing officers has been materially lowered by their amalgamation with men who previously held so much inferior a position.

In 1860 these men were admitted to the ranks of the department in a body, and, in the course of the amalgamation, it is considered that undue precedence was given to the inferior class of officers. While the landing waiters were put back on their respective classes, in some cases to the extent of five or even ten places, or placed on lower classes, and their promotions thereby greatly retarded, the tide surveyors either received an immediate increase of salary, or were placed in such positions on the new classification, that promotion was speedily secured for them. To such an extent was this carried that three landing waiters, who had been for some time in receipt of 250 £. per annum, were put back to the 200 £. class, to make room for the promotion of three tide surveyors, whose salaries had, up to that time, been only 200 £.)

(2.) The nature and extent of these grievances have been repeatedly acknowledged by the Board, and also by others whose position enabled them to speak on the subject with authority.

(The Board, in their Fifth Report for the year 1860 (page 37), speak of the "distress and hardship" inseparable from such extensive reductions;" adding, that "the prospects of promotion of all [the officers] that remain, have been most materially interfered with."

Again, in another place (page 33), "The hours of attendance for the officers, formerly in the Waterside or Landing Department, are consequently much lengthened, without any increase of pay, and with worse prospects of promotion."

Mr. Dobell (question 2834), when before Mr. Horsfall's Committee, admitted, with respect to these reductions, that "we were a little too anxious that the Chancellor of the Exchequer might realise a sort of half promise that he had made to Parliament, that he would save 150,000 £. a year. Having that in view, I think we went a little too far in cutting down salaries."

In the report proposed by Mr. Cardwell, in the interests of the Government, before this same Committee, it is stated, "The Committee have observed that the work of retrenchment has been carried so far as to produce, in some branches of the service, a feeling that their labours have been unduly increased, and their prospects of promotion diminished, almost further than the superior officers of that department, by whom these retrenchments were effected, were prepared to justify.")

(3.) The course pursued by the Government on a former similar occasion of reorganisation of establishment, which occurred in the Post Office in 1854, was of a very different character.

(On that occasion a Commission, consisting of Lord Elcho, Sir S. H. Northcote, Bart., Sir Charles Trevelyan, Bart., and Mr. E. A. Hoffer, was appointed to inquire and report as to the necessity for certain proposed alterations, and the mode of carrying them into effect, and these Commissioners having recommended considerable reductions, reported with reference to the new classifications:—

"When these have been formed, the remaining clerks in the old establishment should be re-arranged in classes on the present footing, the number in each class bearing the same proportion to its present number, that the total number of clerks left in the establishment may have to its present total number; that is to say, if the old establishment is reduced by one-third to form the new classes, the numbers to be borne on each of its classes must be reduced also by one-third; after this, promotion should take place from class to class on the old establishment, exactly as at present, but the lowest class should not be recruited by fresh appointments; the old establishment will thus gradually wear itself out." These recommendations were approved and adopted; and it is noted on the yearly estimates that such members of the old establishment "as are not receiving more under the new scale of wages than their old scale would have given them are placed on their former scale of wages, both as regards present payment and promotion from class to class of that scale."

With this precedent and others of a similar nature before them, they cannot help feeling that the course pursued by the Government in their case was of an exceptional character, and strangely at variance with the principles laid down by the late Chancellor of the Exchequer in the House of Commons, on the 28th April 1865, as binding upon the Government in circumstances identical with their own. The precise words of the Right Honourable Gentleman were as follows: "In the case of public officers who were enabled to allege that in their reasonable expectations, grounded upon the rules of public service existing when they entered that service, they had been disappointed through the acts of the Government, there was, he admitted, a grievance." . . . . . "That between the period of 1860 and 1864 the Commissioners of Customs reported that with regard to certain classes of officers, they had suffered with respect to their chances of promotion. He admitted that that was a fair subject of consideration; and he thought, with regard to the promotion of public servants, that when there was an absence of misconduct, and when

"there

"there was no incompetency, the Government could not justly estimate the position of the public servants, if they neglected their prospects of promotion." . . . . . "If it were proved that those gentlemen had not had their fair share of promotion, and were, consequently, sufferers from the alterations of 1860, he was quite willing to acknowledge that they were bound to make them compensation." . . . . . "He was also willing to admit that if the likelihood of promotion were diminished, the Government were bound to make some satisfaction." . . . . . "The Honourable Gentleman had quoted an extract from the Report of the then Commissioners of Customs, stating that in certain cases the hours of the officers connected with the Waterside and Landing Department had been lengthened, without the officers receiving any increase of pay." . . . . . "He believed that, as far as the statement was correct, it was deserving of attention on the part of the Government. He was, however, assured, on the best authority, that it was only in rare and exceptional cases that any complaint of this nature could be made.")

(4.) Notwithstanding these admissions, that injuries have been sustained, and that the obligation of repairing them rests with the Government, the officers have hitherto remained without any adequate measure of redress.

(It is true that the course adopted by the Government prior to the alterations of 1860 is alleged by Mr. Childers, then Secretary to the Treasury, in his letter of 12th September 1865, to have evinced all due regard to the interests of the officers affected; but the allegation is not substantiated by the facts. The course adopted is described by Mr. Childers in the following terms: "In the first instance, those officers who from age or other causes were least fit for the service, were selected for retirement." "A new scheme for an amalgamated establishment was then framed, a memorandum was prepared, giving an outline of the duties which would in future have to be performed, and stating the hours of attendance required; and, after a provisional list had been prepared of the names of the officers belonging to the former establishment, whom the Board proposed to appoint to the offices of Surveyor and Assistant Surveyor on the new establishment, the Surveyor General was directed to, and did communicate, personally, to each of the officers named, the new arrangements contemplated, and each officer who was not disposed to accept the situation offered to him, had an opportunity of retiring from the service on compensation, a permission of which many availed themselves." "A similar course was adopted with regard to the searchers and subordinate officers retained, and although a personal communication may not have been made to each officer separately, my Lords are satisfied that every officer in the Landing Department in London was aware of the duties required of him under the new arrangement, and knew that he had the option of retiring on a compensation allowance.")

Without touching for the moment on the question whether the compensation offered in 1860 was of that "reasonable and just" nature which the Legislature contemplated, when placing the power of compensating civil servants, on the abolition or reorganisation of office, in the hands of the Treasury, by the 7th section of the Superannuation Act, they must join issue with Mr. Childers as to the fact of the offer itself ever having been made. They deny that a definite offer was made to any officer in the service.

The Surveyor General (Mr. Brown) communicated the contents of the memorandum referred to, vis à vis to the officers selected for the positions of Surveyor and Assistant Surveyor; but when he was asked the terms on which they were permitted to retire, he was obliged to tell them that he was without instructions or information on the subject. "The terms would be liberal," he said, "but of their precise nature he had no knowledge."

If the Surveyor General could not communicate the terms of retirement to those officers whom he saw personally, it is manifest that these terms could scarcely have reached those officers with whom he had no communication. So far from the subordinate officers having been generally made aware that any alternative was offered to them, it is certain that, with a few exceptions, they knew nothing whatever of the course pursued by the Executive until every new arrangement had been completed, when they were informed that they had been retained in the service.

Turning to the adequacy of the offer itself, it may be remarked that, in the opinion of the officers, it signally failed to provide that "reasonable and just" compensation mentioned in the 7th section of the Superannuation Act, and this more especially in the case of the younger officers.

It appears to them that an equitable scale of compensation should be based upon the value of the prospective benefits of which the officers have been deprived; but the reverse of this principle appears to have governed the awards of compensation in 1860. To men advanced in years, who had attained the highest salaries to which they could reasonably aspire, and whose periods of service were drawing to a close, the allowances were in their application liberal, and were gladly availed of; but as regards officers who had served seven to nineteen years the allowances gave no adequate compensation.

Take the case of an officer who had served 19 years, and whose salary was 350*l.* a year. The whole sum allowed him would only be 151 l. 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, of which the sum awarded in the shape of compensation would be only 40 l. 16*s.* 8*d.* a year, and this could not be said to be compensation for the loss of 200 l. a year, present income, and the relinquishment of the prospective advantages awaiting such an officer, had he been permitted to complete his career in the service, on the terms held out to him when he entered.

The case of a junior officer compelled to retire on what has been misnamed compensation would present a still more deplorable aspect.

Take the case of an officer who had served eight years, and whose salary was 200 l. per annum. The total sum awarded him on retirement would have been 36 l. 13*s.* 4*d.*, of which 10 l. a year would have been his compensation for the immediate loss of 163 l. 6*s.* 8*d.* per annum, besides the loss of his prospective advancement.

It may be said that both these men would be free to take up other pursuits; the one being 43 and the other 32 years of age, and having incomes of 151 l. 13*s.* 4*d.* and 36 l. 13*s.* 4*d.* secured to them for life. But such a statement would not be quite accurate, as it was made a condition that all the officers retiring on compensation were liable to return to the public service if required, or relinquish their allowances.

To some few men, who were fortunate enough to have influential business connections, this view of the case afforded a favourable solution of their difficulty, but to the bulk of the officers, ranging from 30 to 45 years of age, the alternative of retirement held out no prospect but one of certain penury for the remainder of their lives.

The nominal renewal of the offer of retirement in 1866 was in its practical application still more inequitable than that made, or supposed to have been made, in 1860, inasmuch as the compensations were based, not on present services, but on those of 1860, and being in the form of a life annuity, were of less value than the same annual sum would have been on the same life six years previously.

It may also be remarked that the limitation of the offer to an interval of a few months rendered it practically useless to all men of short service, save those who had already something in view, or such private means as enabled them to dispense with other sources of income.

It may be mentioned that several junior officers, whose services in 1860 had not extended to five years, were transferred to the Inland Revenue Department, where the majority of them are now in receipt of larger salaries, and all of them possess infinitely better prospects than men several years their seniors in this service, who were retained on the new establishment.

Thus the case of the old officers was fairly met by the compensations awarded them, and that of the very young ones by the kind consideration of the Board and the Treasury, whilst the men in middle life have been left to bear the full weight of the blow, and compelled to accept one of two alternatives, either of which was wholly destructive of their prospects.)

(5.) As a practical and equitable remedy for these grievances, it is suggested that personal allowances, based on the experience of promotion in the department prior to 1860, should be granted, by which the salaries of the officers remaining in the service may be made up to what they might have expected to receive under the old system; and that those officers who may at any time have opportunities of engaging in other pursuits, or who, for any other reason, desire to relinquish their position, may be permitted to retire on such terms of compensation as shall be more commensurate with the injury sustained than those afforded by the scale sanctioned by the Treasury in 1860.

MINUTE of the Board of Customs.

At the Board, 9 July 1867.

THE Board have considered the papers read to them on the 4th instant, by the deputation of examining officers who formerly held the rank of Landing Waiters in London, and the arguments urged by them in support of their request for the grant of personal allowances, and for permission to retire from the service at any time with compensation allowances.

The Board have also referred to the Minute of the Lords of the Treasury, dated 12th September 1865.

The applicants range their claim under four heads of grievance:—

Diminished prospects of promotion.

Lengthened hours of attendance.

The imposition of new and disagreeable duties; and,

The loss of official position.

These matters have already been embodied in representations made to the Lords of the Treasury by the applicants, and other examining officers; they have been fully and carefully considered; and, by the Minute above mentioned, their Lordships, in reply to the applications then before them, and in explanation of the law, stated that the Legislature had in no manner acknowledged claims founded, not upon any actual loss of income, but upon a diminution in the prospect of a future and contingent advantage, such as that of promotion. Their Lordships, however, in order to obviate any further ground of complaint or objection that the officers in 1860 had not been fully apprised of the proposed reduction of salaries, of the duties they would have to perform, and the hours during which they would have to give attendance, repeated to all those officers who could establish a well founded case of loss or injury under the reduction of the establishment made in 1860, the offer of permission to retire from the service with the compensation allowances regulated by the Act 22 Vict. c. 26, and the Treasury Minute of 14th June 1859.

The Board are of opinion that an answer to all the material points put forward in the present paper, is contained in the Minute of the Lords of the Treasury. The terms then offered were made known to all the officers in the department, and accepted by some of them, and the applicants with others who remain in the service, must be deemed to have assented to their present positions with the duties and salaries assigned to them.

The Board, therefore, do not feel justified in recommending to the Treasury that the request of the applicants should be acceded to.

REPORT of the Commissioners of Customs, dated 18 April 1860.

To the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty’s Treasury.

WE beg to state to your Lordships that in consequence of the Resolutions of the House of Commons, under which so many additional articles have been declared free of duty, we have had under our special consideration what arrangement it would be desirable to establish for the future performance of the duty of the Landing Department.

Under the present regulations a great number of the articles free of duty, and goods subject to low rates of duty, such as corn, &c., have been discharged under the supervision of the waterguard ; and, adverting to the simple nature of the duty which will henceforth devolve upon the Landing Department, we have arrived at the conclusion, that in order to afford every facility to the merchants and ship-owners in the landing and shipping of goods, and, at the same time, ensure proper economy in the employment of officers of this revenue, it would be advisable that the Landing and Waterguard Departments, which are now distinct branches, should be consolidated, excepting, however, the gauging, which, from the peculiar nature of the duty, it would be expedient to continue as a separate body in London.

In proceeding with the preparation of a scheme of consolidated establishments, we have adverted to the department of the Surveyors General. It will not be necessary to trouble your Lordships with a lengthened statement of the numerous duties which attach to the Surveyors General: it may be sufficient to observe that the business of their office will be materially affected by the simplification of the tariff, and that the establishment, which now consists of four officers, may be reduced to two without inconvenience to the service.

With these observations we beg leave to lay before your Lordships the following detailed statement of the establishment of the Surveyors General and of the Landing and Waterguard Departments, which we propose for the future : viz.—

Showing a reduction of 282 in the number of persons employed, and of 47,020 l. per annum in the permanent expense of the establishment.

In submitting this consolidated establishment for your Lordships' approval, we think it right to observe that we have had some difficulty in forming an estimate of the number of officers which may be required, and it will be manifest to your Lordships that the same can scarcely be ascertained with accuracy, until the proposed arrangement shall have been some time in operation. We shall, however, not fail to report to your Lordships any amendment that may hereafter appear to us to be desirable for your Lordships' consideration and directions; taking leave to add, with reference to your order of the 30th ultimo, that we shall submit to your Lordships, with the least possible delay, the names of the officers whose services may at once be altogether dispensed with, and of those who will be eligible for reappointment to the Public Service.

We beg further to state that there are other classes of officers in the Water-guard Department, which we have not been enabled to include in the foregoing establishment: viz.--

The gatekeepers, the watchmen, and the watermen; and in respect to these officers, we propose hereafter to make a further report to your Lordships.

That the official hours of attendance were from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. during eight summer months, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. during four winter months; and that further attendance, when required, was remunerated by extra pay, under the regulations of the Honourable Board of Customs.

That the duty of the Landing Department of the port of London was to examine goods when landed, and assess the proper duties thereon; and upon the ability and integrity of its officers essentially depended the safe collection of a revenue of 12,000,000 l. per annum. From its ranks the highest practical officers of the Customs, the Surveyors General, have hitherto been selected, and officers frequently chosen for the performance of other difficult and responsible duties connected with fiscal legislation.

That, therefore, the Government and the Honourable Board of Customs have always attached considerable importance to appointments in this department, requiring at entrance a more mature age, a heavier security, and a more lengthened and careful pupilage and examination than were deemed necessary for the other departments of the Customs.

That such were the emoluments, prospects, hours of attendance, duties, and official status presented to your petitioners, when, by competition or otherwise, they obtained their commissions, and cast their lot for life into this branch of the public service.

That, however, the recent fiscal changes intended to promote national prosperity have most grievously affected all these original conditions of your petitioners' service.

Average salary, 234 l. 16 s. per annum.

That thus the heavy reduction of 15,000 l. per annum has fallen upon your petitioners' department, numbering only 171 persons out of a total establishment in the United Kingdom of nearly 6,000 persons, though chiefly responsible for the collection of the Customs revenue of the port of London, which is nearly one-half that of the entire country.

That the maximum salary of landing surveyors, attainable by selection, has been reduced from 600 l. to 500 l. per annum, or nearly 17 per cent. ; the maximum salary of landing waiters, attainable by all by seniority and average good conduct. from 400 l. to 300 l. per annum, or 25 per cent. ; and the number of offices above 300 l. per annum, and open to your petitioners, no less than 50 per cent.

That even these reduced maximums are practically beyond the reach of most of your petitioners, as, concurrently with these reductions in salary, a large number of the senior officers have been superannuated, and their responsible positions filled by some of your petitioners, or by officers so young, that all hope of further promotion in the department must be abandoned for many years.

That the injury inflicted on your petitioners does not terminate with their official services, but that a reduction corresponding to the diminution of salary will ensue in the superannuation allowance granted to them when the infirmities of old age compel them to retire from active life.

That in the amalgamation of the Landing and Tide Departments which has taken place your petitioners have become liable to additional duties, hitherto performed by the latter, such as the making occasional night visits of inspection ; attendance, when required, for the clearing of free goods, from six a.m. to six p.m., during eight months of the year ; and the supervision of 820 inferior officers on land and afloat, without extra remuneration.

That thus your petitioners have to complain that they have suffered loss in the diminished number of the superior appointments, the reduced maximums of salary and consequent diminution of pension, the disheartening check to promotion, the liability to uncertain and lengthened hours of attendance, and new and additional duties, their lowered official status, and the detrimental effect to their social relations ; in short, that your petitioners have suffered a depreciation of all those conditions and prospects presented to them on receiving their appointments, which, could they have anticipated, would certainly have deterred them from entering this department of the public service.

Your petitioners respectfully submit for your Lordships' consideration that they have always been led to believe that the comparatively few superior appointments, and consequently slow promotion, and the small average amount of salary to be expected in the civil service of the Crown, was compensated for in a great measure by the certainty of the one and the permanency of the other ; and in reliance upon this official and prospectively improving position, your petitioners have entered into engagements and relations in life, such as the education of children, &c., which they can now see no prospect of being able to fulfil.

That your petitioners gave up their power of self-support and free action in the faith of the involved responsibility of the Government to realise their prospects, and render permanent the conditions under which they entered the service; and that the imposition on them now of very inferior conditions of service, without compensation, is neither just nor consistent with the considerate treatment the civil servants of the Crown have hitherto experienced at your Lordships' hands under similar circumstances.

That your petitioners' position in life is thus injured, and their means diminished, whilst they have, in common with others, to bear the burden of heavier direct taxation and the increasing price of the necessities of life in this country.

That your Lordships have provided for some of the officers of the late Landing Department by appointments in other branches of the Civil Service, and have granted compensation to the officers leaving the service; to those whose term of service exceeded 20 years, a retiring allowance computed at 10 years additional, or 30 years' service, &c. That your Lordships have thus favourably recognised the claims of those for the most part less injuriously affected than your Lordships' petitioners, whose want of opportunity or means of otherwise providing for themselves and families has left them no alternative but to cling to that public service in which they have passed a considerable portion of their lives, and in which, by an efficient discharge of their duties, they had entertained a reasonable hope of gradually but surely securing increased means to meet with respectability, the enlarged requirements of maturer life.

That your petitioners, believing the injury inflicted on them to be of unparalleled severity, and being fully persuaded that the grievances of which they complain are not less worthy of consideration than claims which have arisen from previous changes or abolition of office, and which have been favourably treated by your Lordships, beg respectfully to lay their case before your Lordships, with the earnest prayer and expectation that your Lordships may be pleased to award them compensation, equivalent to the great injuries they have sustained, by granting them such an addition to their salaries as shall, by small annual increments, advance it gradually to the maximum to which, under their late classification, they would have attained by length and efficiency of service; or by affording your petitioners some other redress for the loss and injury they have suffered, both with respect to the additional duties and increased hours of attendance imposed upon them, without any additional remuneration, and the restrictions on their future promotion, as well as to the consequent diminution of their retiring pensions; and your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

REPORT of the Commissioners of Customs, dated 24 April 1861.

To the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

YOUR Lordships, by Mr. Hamilton's letter of the 6th instant, transmitted to us a Memorial from the officers of the late Landing Department in London, now forming part of the amalgamated out-door establishment, praying for compensation on account of the loss and injury they have suffered with respect to the additional duties and increased hours of attendance imposed upon them without any additional remuneration, and the restrictions on their future promotion, as well as to the consequent diminution of their retiring pensions. Your Lordships at the same time desired that the Memorialists might be informed that you could not receive the application except through this Board, and in the event of its being so forwarded, your Lordships requested that it might be accompanied by such remarks on our part as we might consider that it called for.

We beg to return the Memorial to your Lordships, and to state that the applicants forwarded a copy thereof to us in the month of February last, with a request that we would permit them to bring their case under your Lordships' consideration; and we informed them in reply that we would not withhold our sanction to their forwarding the application to your Lordships; but that their statements were exaggerated, and that we disapproved of the course they had taken.

In reporting upon the allegations of the applicants, we would, in the first instance, refer to the comparison which they have drawn between the late establishment for landing officers, and the new classification for the out-door department generally. They correctly state that the former consisted of 171 officers, with salaries amounting to 53,250 l. per annum, or an average salary of 311 l. 8 s. per annum for each officer; and the latter, of 162 officers, with salaries amounting to 38,040 l. per annum, or an average of 234 l. 16 s. for each; but they have omitted to add that the present establishment provides for duties which were previously performed by the waterguard officers and superintending lockers, as well as by the landing officers, numbering in all 295 officers, with the average salary of 250 l. 18 s. 5 d. for each person. The average salary upon the present amalgamated establishment is 234 l. 16 s.; but so far as the applicants are concerned, it may be taken at 295 l. 6 s. 9 d. by the exclusion of the last two classes, in neither of which have any of them been placed, while their former average salary was 311 l. 8 s. per annum.

In respect to the additional duties which they will be required to perform, and the extension of the hours of attendance, we have to state that, although under the revised arrangements, all the officers upon the out-door establishment are, in strictness, liable to be called upon to perform the duties of waterguard officers, which involve night visits of inspection at the different docks and stations, and to attend from six a.m. to six p.m. for the delivery of free goods, the duties of the applicants have been, as far as practicable, confined to those which had been previously performed by them in the Landing Department.

A few of the applicants have obtained an increase of salary, and none of them have been placed upon the new establishment at a lower rate of pay than they formerly received. It is, however, quite true, as alleged by them, that the higher classes of officers in the department have been reduced in number, and the salaries diminished, and that, in consequence of the retirement of many of the senior officers, the establishment is now filled generally by young men, and the promotion of the present holders of office will necessarily be slow. They will, therefore, suffer severely for the future as regards position, emoluments, and prospects; but the altered condition in which they are placed has been the unavoidable result of the extensive reductions of the establishment, which have been required by the abolition of Customs duties on all articles of import excepting those of general consumption, and by the simplification of the duties performed by the officers of the department; and inasmuch as claims for compensation on account of the loss of possible prospective advancement have never been recognised, we cannot recommend to your Lordships that the request of the applicants should be complied with.

COPY of TREASURY MINUTE, dated 1 May 1861.

WRITE to the Memorialists that my Lords regret that the recent fiscal arrangements should have had the effect of interfering injuriously with their future prospects and emoluments; but the altered condition in which they are placed has been the unavoidable result of the extensive reductions of the Customs establishment, which have been required by the abolition of Customs duties on all articles of imports, excepting those of general consumption, and by the consequent simplification of the duties performed by the officers of the department. Add, that claims for compensation on account of the loss of prospective advancement have never been recognised, in the reorganisation of public establishments; and their Lordships regret their inability to do so on the present occasion.

Enclosure in No. 7.

To the Right honourable the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

My Lords,

WE, the undersigned officers of Her Majesty's Customs, humbly beg to be allowed to lay before your Lordships the following statement:

In the year 1860, it pleased your Lordships to direct that the Landing Department and the Waterguard Department should be amalgamated, and for the future form only one department, for the more efficient despatch of business consequent on the great alteration in the tariff, by making free of duty a large number of articles.

The undersigned belonged to the Landing Department, and entered the service as landing waiters, with a salary commencing at 160 l. per annum, and as a reward for many years of steady and faithful service, were selected to fill the office of landing surveyors.

The classification for landing surveyors when we were appointed was—and we entered on the duties of this office with the implied understanding that it carried with it the existing advantages enjoyed by all who had before been placed on that classification, and, as vacancies occurred, we should advance step by step to the maximum of 600 l. a-year.

The services of all the landing surveyors being no longer required upon the amalgamation of the out-door departments, several of them were superannuated (the majority being our seniors), ten years being added to their period of service as compensation for the loss sustained by their forced retirement.

We most respectfully ask that the same principle may be applied to us, and that we should be compensated for the loss we have sustained by remaining in the service, for the purpose of giving effect to the amalgamation referred to, and we can with confidence state that all our energies were exerted to assist in bringing this great change to a successful issue.

We are now suffering from an arrangement made for the benefit of the public, but we submit that we should not be called upon to sacrifice all that had cost us many years of toil and faithful servitude; for by making the maximum salary 500 l. a-year in the place of 600 l., the amount we had every reason to anticipate when we received our appointments, we are considerable losers, both with regard to our present income, but more particularly with respect to advantages we should have derived in superannuation by being entitled to quit the service when in receipt of a higher rate of pay.

Our labours and responsibilities have not been reduced in consequence of the amalgamation, the great impetus given to all branches of commerce, and the very great increase in the imports, by which the revenue has sustained its former amount, notwithstanding the reduced duties, has of necessity increased instead of lessened our labours, and we may state incidentally that our hours of attendance have been much increased.

We do not ask for any revision of the present establishment, but we trust that we may be compensated for the loss we have sustained by the withdrawal of the first and second class of landing surveyors which, as before observed, affects our present and prospective incomes.

We are fully assured your Lordships will consider the injury we have sustained, and relying on the justice of our claims, we beg to enclose an individual statement of them, and have the honour to subscribe ourselves,

Yours, &c.

— No. 8. —

REPORT of the Commissioners of Customs, dated 3 June 1865, to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

YOUR Lordships having referred to us the annexed application of Messrs. A. Compton, E. Scanlan, C. J. Cox, and Alexander Campbell, surveyors of the first class in the service of this department in London, requesting that compensation may be granted to them for the injury caused to their prospects by the revision of the establishment of the Landing Department in 1860, we report, that the applicants formerly belonged to the establishment of landing surveyors, which in 1860, consisted of—

|                    |   |   |   |                               |
|--------------------|---|---|---|-------------------------------|
| 4 of the 1st Class | - | - | - | each 600 l. per annum. |
| 6 „ 2nd „          | - | - | - | „ 550 l. „             |
| 9 „ 3rd „          | - | - | - | „ 500 l. „             |

Mr. Compton was then the fourth officer on the 2nd class; and Messrs. Scanlan, Cox, and Campbell were respectively the second, third, and seventh officers on the 3rd class.

In the year 1860, in consequence of the alterations effected in the tariff, whereby the ad valorem duties, and the duties on silk and various other goods, the dealing with which involved much judgment and responsibility, were abolished, and the duties retained being only on sugar, tea, and a few other articles of large consumption, whereby the business attaching to the Landing Department was much reduced and simplified, it was deemed proper to revise the rates of pay, and also for the interests of the service, and of the mercantile community, to amalgamate that department with the Waterguard Establishment, the two more highly-paid classes of landing surveyor were abolished, and 12 offices of surveyor, since increased to 14, were created, their salaries being regulated as follows, viz. :—

|--------------------|---|---|---|-------------------------------|
| 6 of the 1st Class | - | - | - | each 500 l. per annum. |
| 8 „ 2nd „          | - | - | - | „ 450 l. „             |

These new offices were filled by officers selected from the former Landing and Waterguard Departments.

Messrs. Compton, Scanlan, Cox, and Campbell now stand respectively first, second, third, and fourth on the 1st class of surveyors; Mr. Compton receiving a personal allowance of 50 l. per annum to make up his income to the amount which he formerly received on the establishment, viz., 550 l. per annum.

In carrying out the arrangements for revising the establishment in 1860, the four landing surveyors of the 1st class, four of the 2nd class, including all the officers senior to Mr. Compton, and three of the officers of the 3rd class, senior to Mr. Campbell, were placed upon the compensation list.

All these retired officers are still living; but with reference to the age, state of health, &c., of five of the number, viz., of three who retired from the 1st class, of one (the senior) who retired from the 2nd, and of one who retired from the 3rd class, and who was senior to Messrs. Scanlan, Cox, and Campbell, it is probable that by this time vacancies would have occurred by their superannuation. If, therefore, the establishment of landing surveyors had remained unchanged, Mr. Compton would probably have been at the present time upon the 1st class, with a salary of 600 l. per annum. Mr. Scanlan and Mr. Cox upon the 2nd class, with salaries of 550 l. per annum, and Mr. Campbell, probably, first or second of the 3rd class, at 500 l.

In our report to your Lordships of the 24th April 1861, No. 206, upon a memorial of the officers of the late Landing Department in London, praying for compensation for the loss and injury which they had sustained by the revision of the establishment, we stated that the officers generally would suffer severely for the future, as regards position, emoluments, and prospects; but that the altered condition in which they had been placed had been the unavoidable result of the extensive reductions of the establishment which had been required by the abolition of Customs duties on all articles of import, excepting those of general consumption, and by the simplification of the duties performed by the officers of this department; and that inasmuch as claims for compensation on account of the loss of possible prospective advancement have never been recognized, we could not recommend to your Lordships' favourable consideration the application then under reference.

In our report to your Lordships of the 6th March last, No. 129, however, we recommended the grant of personal allowances to officers with salaries under 300 l. per annum who had not obtained any increase of salary during the last seven years, but we have not felt ourselves justified in suggesting the extension of the grant of personal allowances to officers having higher salaries.

From

From what we have already stated in this report, there is no doubt that the position of the applicants has been materially affected by the changes introduced in 1860; and we are bound to admit that the trade of the port has greatly advanced since that period, and that the applicants are liable to be called upon to give attendance without additional remuneration beyond the hours during which they were required to attend in the capacity of Landing Surveyor.

With these observations we can only submit the application for such directions as your Lordships may see fit to give thereon.

Custom House, 3 June 1865.

The Secretary to the Treasury to the Commissioners of Customs.

Gentlemen,

Treasury Chambers, 15 June 1865.

THE Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury having had before them your report of the 3rd instant, upon an application of Messrs. A. Compton, E. Scanlan, C. J. Cox, and Alexander Campbell, Surveyors of the 1st class in the service of your department in London, requesting that compensation may be granted to them for the injury caused to their prospects by the revision of the establishment of the Landing Department in 1860, I am directed by their Lordships to request that you will inform the memorialists that, although my Lords regret that the fiscal arrangements of 1860 should have injuriously interfered with their future prospects and emoluments, they do not feel that they would be warranted in entertaining their present application.

I am, &c.

No. 1.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, February 12, 1862.

IN order to insure regularity being observed in regard to the periods for which leave of absence is granted to the Diplomatic Servants of the Crown, I have thought it expedient to establish as a rule, that every Diplomatic Officer who has been permitted to absent himself from his duties for an undefined term shall report to the Secretary of State every two months his intentions with regard to his return to his post; and that every Diplomatic Officer who has been granted leave of absence for a fixed period of more than two months shall, on its expiration, report in like manner his intention respecting the resumption of his duties. I have accordingly to instruct you to act yourself in conformity with this rule, and to acquaint the members of Her Majesty’s that I desire them strictly to adhere to the same.

I am, &c.

(Signed) RUSSELL.

No. 2.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, September 15, 1862.

I TRANSMIT to you herewith, copies of certain Regulations which, in pursuance of the recommendations of the Diplomatic Committee, I have framed for Her Majesty’s Diplomatic Service.

They apply, as you will perceive, more particularly to the junior members of the Service; but I have been happy to take advantage of the opportunity to afford a certain amount of relief to the heads of Missions in regard to the rate of deduction to be hereafter made from their salaries while on leave of absence.

You will communicate these Regulations to the several parties employed in your Mission to whom they apply; and it will be necessary for such of the Attachés, now unpaid, as under the Regulations will either at once, or at no distant day, have completed the period of four years from the date of their entrance into the Diplomatic Service, to establish, at the proper time, to my satisfaction, that they have fulfilled the condition as to actual residence abroad, specified under the 13th Head of the Regulations as requisite to entitle them to receive Commissions as Secretaries of the Third Class.

The allowance to be made under the head of journeys to the junior members of the Diplomatic Service will be chargeable in the Extraordinary Accounts of the Mission to which they belong at the time that the journeys are completed; but heads of Missions will not issue such allowances until the Account of Expenditure has been submitted to, and sanctioned by, the Secretary of State, and direct authority given for its payment.

I am, &c.

(Signed) RUSSELL.

Inclosure in No. 2.

Regulations for Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service.

1. Nomination, qualification, and examination of candidates for Unpaid Attachés.

CANDIDATES for the situation of Attaché in Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service will continue to be nominated by Her Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; and they must be prepared to undergo an examination before the Civil Service Commissioners within six months after their nomination if they elect to undergo only one examination (which single examination will, in that case, exempt them from any further examination previously to their receiving Commissions as Secretaries), or within three months if they prefer to undergo two examinations as heretofore. In the latter case the second examination may be deferred until the candidate is prepared to undergo it.

Candidates on presenting themselves for examination on their nomination must have completed the twenty-first year of their age, and not have exceeded the twenty-sixth.

In the case of candidates electing to undergo only one examination, such examination will comprise the following matters:—

- a. Orthography and handwriting.
- b. General intelligence, as evinced by the manner in which the candidate acquires himself, and specifically by the quickness he may show in seizing the points in papers read to him, or read over by him, once or twice.
- c. Précis.
- d. The candidate must satisfy the Examiners that he is thoroughly well grounded in the Latin grammar, and that he is able to construe and parse a portion of some good classical Latin author, and to give the derivation of words.
- e. An accurate knowledge of French grammar, fluency in French conversation, correctness of translation from French into English, and from English into French, and French composition.
- f. An accurate knowledge of German grammar, a tolerable degree of fluency in German conversation, and correctness of translation from German into English and from English into German.
- g. A fair knowledge of the political history of Europe, and of North and South America, from the year 1660 to 1860 inclusive, and of the most important international transactions during that period.
- h. A general knowledge of geography.
- i. The first four rules of arithmetic and decimal fractions as given with examples in Colenso's Arithmetic.
- j. The first book of Euclid.
- k. A general knowledge of maritime and international law, to be acquired from Wheaton's "Elements of International Law," and the first volume of Kent's "Commentary."
- l. Candidates will be allowed, at their option, to be examined in Spanish and Italian in addition to the above subjects.

In the case of candidates electing to undergo two examinations, the first examination will comprise the following subjects:—

1. Orthography; 2. Handwriting; 3. Précis; 4. Latin; 5. Arithmetic; 6. Geography.
7. General intelligence, except as regards specific tests.
8. An accurate knowledge of French grammar, correctness of translation from French into English, and such a facility of speaking French as may show aptitude for acquiring fluency after a residence abroad.
9. An accurate knowledge of German grammar
10. A general knowledge of the political history of Europe and of North and South America, from 1790 to 1815, comprising an acquaintance with the most important international transactions of that period.

In either case, candidates who have passed the first public examination in Classics at one of the Universities in Great Britain or Ireland will be exempted from being examined in Latin.

Candidates who shall have elected to undergo two examinations must be prepared to satisfy the Examiners, if required to do so, as to their acquaintance with the various matters which come within the single examination (except as regards Latin, geography, and arithmetic, in which such candidates are exempted from being re-examined); and they will, moreover, be required for their second examination, to draw up a report on the general commercial and political relations of the several countries in which they may have resided and on the internal polity and administration, the social institutions, and the character of the people of such countries.

If a candidate offering himself for the single examination should fail to satisfy the Commissioners to the required extent, but should evince such a knowledge of the subjects on which he may have been examined as would have obtained for him a certificate of fitness if he had only offered himself for a first examination, the Commissioners will, in such a case, give a certificate as for a first examination: and the candidate will eventually have to present himself again before the Commissioners for the second examination.

The service of Attachés will reckon from the date of the certificate first granted by the Civil Service Commissioners, and will be considered as probationary for four years from that date, during which period the Attachés must have been employed for six months in the Foreign Office, and must also have actually resided at one of Her Majesty's Embassies or Missions abroad, or have been actually employed in the Foreign Office, for a further period of three years. If these conditions as to employment and residence have not been fulfilled at the expiration of four years from the date of the certificate of the Civil Service Commissioners, the probationary period will be prolonged until they have been fulfilled; and it will likewise be prolonged in the case of candidates who may have elected to undergo two examinations, until the final certificate of the Commissioners has been obtained.

A salary at the rate of 150*l.* a-year will be granted to Attachés on the termination of the period of probation, and on the receipt from the Minister under whom they have last served of a certificate showing that their general character and conduct, during the time they have so served, have been satisfactory; and that, as far as such Minister has means of forming an opinion, they understand and speak French well, and also one other foreign language.

The designation of First and Second Paid Attaché is abolished; and in lieu thereof will be substituted the designation of Second Secretaries, which will be conferred by Commissions under Her Majesty's Sign-Manual.

Commissions as Third Secretaries will also be granted under Her Majesty's Sign-Manual to persons now serving as Unpaid Attachés, or who shall hereafter be appointed Unpaid Attachés, on the fulfilment of the conditions, applicable to such persons, as specified in the present Regulations.

It is clearly to be understood that the aforesaid Commissions of Second and Third Secretaries will not imply appointment to any particular Embassy or Mission; but the holders thereof will be subject to the same conditions and liabilities as to removal from one Mission to another, at the discretion of the Secretary of State, as those to which Attachés of all classes are now liable.

Secretaries of the Second and Third Classes may be indiscriminately attached either to an Embassy or to a Mission; and the circumstance of having been attached in either of the above capacities to an Embassy will not preclude transfers in the same capacity to a Mission. Moreover, there may be more than one Secretary of either of the above classes attached, at the pleasure of the Secretary of State, to any Embassy or Mission.

There will be a fixed number of Second Secretaries, determined by the number of First and Second Paid Attachés at the date of the issue of these Regulations.

The salaries of Second Secretaries will be fixed at the same rates as those now assigned to First and Second Paid Attachés in the respective Embassies and Missions; it being understood that such rates have reference to the character of the Embassy or Mission, and not to the services of the Second Secretaries, who may be removed, without claim to compensation, from an Embassy or Mission where the rates are higher, to an Embassy or Mission where the rates are lower.

In virtue of Her Majesty's Commissions, the service of Second and Third Secretaries will count for their pensions, under the Act of 2 & 3 Wm. IV, cap. 116, from the date of the issue of their first Commission; but the amount of pension to be assigned to them will be calculated, so long as they are eligible for a pension of the fourth class only, for each year that has elapsed since the date of their first Commission at one-thirtieth part of the last salary of which they were in receipt at the time of the pension being granted; provided that no pension shall continue to be issued to a person not incapacitated by ill-health, medically certified, who may decline active service before he has reached the sixtieth year of his age, after which age no person shall be required to serve as Second or Third Secretary.

2. Period of service of Attachés.

3. A salary of 150*l.* a-year will be granted, contingently, to Attachés on completion of their probation.

4. Abolition of the designation of Paid Attachés. Commissions as Second Secretaries to be granted to Paid Attachés.

5. Commissions as Third Secretaries to be granted to Unpaid Attachés on completion of their probation.

6. Number of Second Secretaries.

7. Rules as to pensions of the fourth class.

8. Provisions for the transfer of the Junior Members of the Diplomatic Service from one post to another; and payment of their expenses of removal.

Second or Third Secretaries, and Attachés, as a general rule, will not be employed for more than two years consecutively, irrespective of the periods during which they may have been absent on leave, in the same Embassy or Mission, unless for special public reasons. Secretaries of Embassy or Legation, Second and Third Secretaries, and Attachés, will, on their first appointment, or on any subsequent removal by reason of promotion or otherwise on public grounds, receive such an allowance as shall be sufficient to cover the actual expense of their personal journey by land, or the actual amount paid for their personal passage by sea, either from England to their post, or from one foreign post to another; and in the case of Secretaries of Embassy or Legation, and of Second Secretaries, a similar allowance for one servant, if they have one; but no allowance will be made under the head of subsistence during a journey by land; neither will any allowance be made for the expense of the journey or subsistence of the families of any such Secretaries or Attachés. In the event of a passage being afforded to Secretaries or Attachés on board of one of Her Majesty's ships of war, the allowance made will be in conformity with the Admiralty Regulations.

No allowance will be made to the Junior Members of the Diplomatic Service for journeys undertaken for their own convenience, in pursuance of leave of absence; but in all such cases the expense of the journeys from and on returning to their post will be exclusively at their own charge.

It is understood, moreover, that in the case of any journey of which the expense is to be allowed, Secretaries or Attachés, unless specially excused from doing so, will be bound to take charge of despatches, if required; and, in that case, they will be expected to perform the journey without delaying on the road.

9. Interchange of employment between Second and Third Secretaries, and Junior Clerks in the Foreign Office.

The Secretary of State will, should he see occasion for the advantage of the Public Service, allow Second and Third Secretaries, and Attachés, to interchange for a time their duties with Clerks of the three Junior Classes in the Foreign Office; the several parties being bound, for the whole period through which the interchange extends, in every respect to perform the duties and to submit to the obligations attaching to the situation which they may temporarily occupy.

The Secretary of State will, moreover, if he sees reason to do so, direct such temporary interchange of duties to be made, irrespective of the wishes of the parties between Second or Third Secretaries, or Attachés, and Clerks in the Foreign Office; or he will direct such persons to be employed for a time, at home or abroad, without any interchange, making in either case such an allowance to the parties as he may consider just and reasonable. In the event of any Attaché being so employed in the Foreign Office, the period, over and above the six months which are obligatory as stated in section 2, during which he shall be actually employed in the Foreign Office, shall reckon towards the three years during which he is by these Regulations to reside at an Embassy or Mission abroad.

In the case of temporary interchanges between Secretaries and Clerks, they will respectively rank, during the period for which the interchange shall last, after the Junior in the classes of Secretaries or Clerks to which each of them belongs, the Clerks receiving an acting appointment as Secretary of such class. The same principle will apply in cases of permanent interchange.

If a Clerk in the Foreign Office should be permanently transferred to the Diplomatic Service, or should be temporarily employed with a Special, or with an Ordinary, Embassy or Mission, he will receive a Commission or an acting appointment, as the case may be, as Secretary of the Second or Third Class, according to the length of his service in the Foreign Office; but he will, as regards others then in the same class, enter it as the Junior.

10. Deductions to be made from salaries of Heads of Missions on leave of absence.

With a view to relieve Heads of Missions on leave of absence on private grounds, the deduction to be made from their salaries will in future be limited, for a period not exceeding sixty days from the date of their departure from their posts, to the sum required to provide for the allowances of the Acting Chargés d'Affaires according to the present Regulations; on the expiration of which period the deduction will be at the rate of one half of their salaries. Such period of sixty days may either be one of sixty consecutive days, or of sixty days occurring at intervals in the course of one year beginning on the 1st of January.

11. Allowances during war or interruption of relations.

Should an Ambassador, Minister, or Secretary, by reason of war or other interruption of Diplomatic relations, be withdrawn from active service before his services shall have qualified him for a Diplomatic Pension of the class under which he would otherwise come, the Secretary of State will, as he may see fit, assign to any such person a temporary allowance calculated on the rate of pension assigned to the class to which he belongs, regard being had to the length and general character of his services; such allowance being, however, strictly subject to the condition in regard to employment specified in the 7th section of the Act of 2nd and 3rd William IV, c. 116.

The foregoing Regulations shall take effect from the 1st day of October, 1862; but Unpaid Attachés appointed previously to the 1st of January, 1861, will be allowed until the 1st of July, 1863, to undergo their second examination, according to the Regulations now in force; and if, on such second examination, they obtain their certificates, they will retain their present precedence, but not otherwise.

All persons nominated as Attachés subsequently to the date of the present Regulations will be subject to the provisions as to examination therein contained.

The condition of employment for six months in the Foreign Office will not be enforced with regard to Unpaid Attachés in the service abroad at the date of these Regulations; but such Unpaid Attachés must have passed both examinations under the existing Regulations, must have actually resided for a period of three years at one or more of Her Majesty's Embassies or Missions abroad, must have completed four years from the time of their entering the service, and must be provided with the certificate from the Head of the Mission under whom they have last served, specified in Clause 3 of these Regulations, before they can receive a Commission as a Secretary of the Third Class, or the salary at the rate of 150*l.* a-year assigned to that Class. Those persons who continue in the service, or who shall hereafter enter the service, as Unpaid Attachés, will be denominated "Attachés."

RUSSELL.

No. 3.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, November 5, 1862.

VISCOUNT PALMERSTON, when Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the year 1849, decided that the sum allowed for house rent to Her Majesty's Embassies and Missions should not be considered as a mere addition to the salaries of the Ambassadors or Ministers, but rather as an allowance for providing a suitable residence for the Embassy or Mission, and for the transaction of public business.

Acting on this principle, his Lordship confirmed the rule then existing that no Ambassador or Minister should be entitled to the allowance for house rent for any period antecedent to his actual arrival at his post on first going out after his appointment, nor for any period subsequent to his departure from his post on his being recalled.

Viscount Palmerston further laid down that no allowance whatever, on account of house rent, should be paid to an Ambassador or Minister for any period during which he might be absent from his post on leave, unless he should show that during such period he continued to pay the rent of his usual house of residence at his post.

Viscount Palmerston, lastly, decided that as the allowance made for house rent had reference not only to the private accommodation of the Ambassador or Minister, but also to the transaction of public business, any Ambassador or Minister who might continue to hold his house during his absence on leave, should, on the application of the person in temporary charge of the Embassy or Mission, either allow such person to occupy a suitable portion of his house for the transaction of the public business, or, in lieu thereof, should pay him one-third of the amount of the house-rent allowance,—the option of either course being left with the Ambassador or Minister.

There being reason to suppose that the rules thus laid down by Viscount Palmerston are not generally known by Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service, I think it advisable to confirm and promulgate them; and, moreover, in order to remove any uncertainty as to the amount of accommodation which is to be held necessary for the transaction of public business, I further lay down that such accommodation must consist of the Chancery, or Office of the Embassy or Mission, of a sitting-room for the use of the person in charge of the Mission, and of a waiting-room for those who may have business to transact with the Embassy or Mission. The charge for warming and lighting the rooms thus appropriated for the transaction of public business is to be borne by the person in charge of the Embassy or Mission, if there is no public allowance for expenditure of that sort; if there is, such allowance will be at the disposal of such person for the time being; and any Chancery servants paid by the public are for the time being to be at the disposal of the person in charge of the Embassy or Mission.

As a consequence of the rules laid down by Viscount Palmerston, and now confirmed, every Ambassador or Minister, on quitting his post on leave of absence, must, with a view to enable the Chief Clerk to prepare the quarterly salary list, report to this Office whether he continues to pay rent for his house during his absence on leave; and what option he has made in regard to allowing the person in charge of the Embassy or Mission during his absence to occupy the portion of his house necessary for the transaction of public business, or paying to him one-third of the allowance for house rent.

If, on either of the grounds stated in this despatch, no allowance for house rent is issuable to an Ambassador or Minister, a third portion of the allowance fixed by the regulations will be issued to the person in charge of the Embassy or Mission.

The deduction from the allowance for house rent, in the event of the Ambassador or Minister electing for that alternative, will be made by the Chief Clerk of the Foreign Office in the quarterly salary list, and will not form matter of personal adjustment between the Ambassador or Minister and the person to whom it is payable.

I am, &c.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, December 23, 1862.

MY attention having been called to the nature of the expenses for which Her Majesty's Ambassadors, Ministers, and Chargé d'Affaires have been allowed to charge when absent from their ordinary place of residence on public duty, and therefore allowed to continue to draw their full salary, irrespective of any allowance which may be awarded to the person left in charge of the Embassy or Mission as Chargé d'Affaires or Chargé des Archives, I have to state to you, that under such circumstances an Ambassador, Minister, or Chargé d'Affaires will, from the 1st of January next, be only allowed to charge to the public the expenses which he may incur in travelling from place to place, and such other expenses as he may be obliged to incur in the execution of the Public Service on which he is engaged: but he will not be allowed to charge any other expenses on account of the maintenance of himself and of his establishment while in the receipt of the full salary assigned to his post.

In the event of the Public Service requiring that an Ambassador, Minister, or Chargé d'Affaires, employed as aforesaid, should be accompanied by one or more of the junior members of the Diplomatic Service, an allowance of 1*l.* a-day for each person so employed with the sanction of the Secretary of State, while not otherwise subsisted at the public expense, may be included in the account to be rendered by the Ambassador, Minister, or Chargé d'Affaires of the expenses which he is allowed to charge.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, May 23, 1864.

I WISH to direct the attention of Her Majesty's Representatives at foreign Courts to the adoption in their respective Chanceries of a practice similar to that to which Secretaries of Embassy and Legation are now required to conform, and to suggest to them the expediency of requiring the junior members of their several Chanceries, as often as opportunity may arise, to draw up reports on matters of public interest, more especially those relating to the commerce and industry of the country in which they reside, upon which it is necessary that heads of Missions should be accurately informed, in order that in their turn they may keep Her Majesty's Government fully acquainted with all matters bearing on the commerce and industry of the country.

The general occupations of heads of Missions may prevent them from devoting to the examination and digestion of materials the amount of time and attention which may be absolutely necessary in order that they may be presented to Her Majesty's Government, and through them to the trading and manufacturing interests of the country, in a clear and practical shape.

But this may be done by the industry and ability of the junior members of Missions, if rightly encouraged and directed; while, on the other hand, those gentlemen will derive great advantage from having their minds exercised and their attention engaged on subjects requiring more thought and consideration than the ordinary routine business of a Chancery.

I have dwelt more particularly on questions of commercial industry, to which the attention of the junior members of the Diplomatic Service may be directed, because they generally involve details which it requires time and industry to reduce into shape; but I by no means desire to exclude matters of general political interest. My object is, that every encouragement should be held out to those gentlemen to improve the opportunities which are afforded to them in foreign countries, of acquiring knowledge and habits of observation which may qualify them hereafter for the higher duties to which they aspire.

I am, &c.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, June 21, 1864.

IT appears from the answers which I have received from certain of Her Majesty's Ministers that the exact purport of my circular of the 23rd of May has in some instances been misapprehended, and that my intention was supposed to be, that the Reports on which I recommended that the junior members of Missions should, as occasion might arise, be employed, were to be sent home in the same manner as those of the Secretaries of Embassy and Legation now are.

This, however, was not my intention. The Reports to which I referred as those on which the junior members of Missions might usefully be employed, were such as are daily drawn up by clerks in the Foreign Office for the special information of the Secretary of State, on any subject in regard to which he requires information without having his time taken up by reading through masses of papers when urgent affairs require his attention. The compilation of such Reports requires great assiduity, and a habit of condensation in writing, so that they afford instruction to the individual who draws them up; while, if well done, they save great trouble to his principal, who in this case will be the Head of the Mission.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, September 10, 1864.

ON examining the collection of the Reports of Her Majesty's Secretaries of Embassies and Legations, of which copies were forwarded to you in my Circular despatch of the 2nd instant, it will be seen that while at most places very commendable diligence has been shown in complying with the instructions of the Secretary of State on this matter, at others, I am sorry to say, they have been altogether neglected.

It is not my purpose, however, to say more as regards the past; but as regards the future, I wish to point out to Heads of Embassies and Missions, that although the duty of compiling these Reports devolves upon the Secretaries, the responsibility of taking care that the Secretaries perform that duty rests with the Heads of Missions.

These Reports have of late attracted so much public attention, and excited so much interest, that the credit of the Diplomatic Service in general, no less than that of the Secretaries in particular, is involved in their being ably and punctually drawn up; and I trust that for the future the Secretary of State will have no occasion to call the attention of Heads of Embassies and Missions to any such shortcomings on the part of their Secretaries as have rendered it necessary for me to address to them the present Circular despatch.

I TRANSMIT to you herewith, for your information, and to be deposited in the archives of your Mission, a Memorandum setting forth the construction to be given to the 10th section of the Regulations for Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service, which were inclosed in my circular despatch of the 15th of September, 1862.

Memorandum respecting the Construction of the Tenth Section of the Regulations for the Diplomatic Service of September 15, 1862.

A QUESTION having been raised as to the construction to be placed on the tenth section of the Regulations for the Diplomatic Service of September 15, 1862, Lord Russell rules as follows:—

That the period for which no deduction other than that which may be required to provide for the allowances of the persons acting as Chargé d'Affaires or in charge of the archives, according to the present Regulations, shall be made from the salaries of Heads of Missions absent from their posts on private grounds, shall in no case exceed sixty days in any one year commencing on the 1st of January and ending on the 31st of December; and that no portion of such sixty days allowed for one year shall be carried over to the next or any subsequent year. For any number of days beyond sixty in any one year during which Ministers may be absent from their posts on private grounds the deduction from their salaries will be at the rate of one-half.

If, however, Ministers are absent from their posts on private grounds on the 1st of January, they will be allowed, provided they receive leave of absence on or before that day for any part of the ensuing year, to enter on that day upon the sixty days allowed for the year then commencing; and this notwithstanding that in the previous year the sixty days' grace may have expired before the 31st of December, and that they may consequently have, for a period antecedent to the 1st of January, been on half salary.

This construction of the tenth section of the Regulations of September 15, 1862, is to take effect from the 1st of January, 1865.

Lord Russell must, however, remind Her Majesty's Ministers abroad that they are not entitled as of right to annual leave of absence from their posts. The granting or withholding any leave of absence, and the length of its duration, must in all cases rest with the Secretary of State, according to his estimation of the requirements of the public service.

A copy of this Memorandum is to be sent to each of Her Majesty's Ministers, to be deposited in the archives.

AFTER an experience of nearly three years of the system of examination for Attachés in Her Majesty's Diplomatic service, established by the Regulations of the 15th of September, 1862, and looking at the result of examinations held under them, I have thought it advisable to revise those Regulations; and I now transmit to you, to be deposited in the archives of your Mission, copies of the new Regulations which have been finally adopted after communication with the Civil Service Commissioners, and which take effect from this day.

Regulations for the Examination of Attachés in Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service.

LORD RUSSELL having seen occasion, after an experience of nearly three years, to revise the Regulations for the examination of Attachés in Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service which were issued on the 15th of September, 1862, has deemed it advisable to amend those Regulations, and to lay down in lieu thereof the following Regulations, which will take effect from the present date.

Lord Russell considers it proper that the junior members of the Diplomatic Service should prove their competency, in all cases, in two examinations by the Civil Service Commissioners.

In the first examination, which candidates for Attachéships must be prepared to undergo within three months from the date of their nomination, they must satisfy the examiners in regard to the following points:—

1. Orthography.
2. Handwriting.
3. General intelligence.
4. Précis writing.
5. That they are well grounded in Latin grammar, and are able to construe and parse a portion of some good classical Latin author, and to give the derivation of words.*
6. That they are acquainted with the first four rules of arithmetic and decimal fractions, as given with examples in Colenso's Arithmetic, and with the first book of Euclid.
7. That they have a general knowledge of geography.
8. That they have a general knowledge of French grammar, and can translate correctly from French into English.
9. That they have a general knowledge of German grammar.
10. That they have a general knowledge of the constitutional history of England, to be acquired from Blackstone's "Commentaries" (Ker's Edition, 1862), and Hallam's "Constitutional History of England."
11. That they have a general knowledge of the political history of Europe, and of the United States of North America, from the Treaty of Paris in 1815, to the Treaty of Villafranca, in 1860, comprising an acquaintance with the most important international transactions during that period.

In the second examination, which must be undergone in the interval between the grant of a commission as Third Secretary and that of a commission as Second Secretary, candidates will be exempted from re-examination in the 1st, 2nd, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 10th subjects in which they have passed in their previous examinations; but they must satisfy the examiners in regard to the following points:—

1. General intelligence, as evinced by the manner in which they acquit themselves, and specifically by the quickness they may show in seizing the points in papers read by them, or read over to them, once or twice.
2. Précis writing.
3. That they have a general knowledge of French grammar; that they can converse fluently in that language on ordinary topics; and can translate correctly from English into French, as well as from French into English.
4. That they have a general knowledge of German grammar, and can translate correctly from German into English; or if the candidates, between the first and second examinations, have not resided a reasonable time, twelve months for instance, in Germany, they may, if they desire it, substitute in their second examination, for a general knowledge of German grammar and for correct translation from German into English, the same qualifications in some other foreign language besides French.
5. That they have a general knowledge of the political history of Europe, and of the United States of North America, from the Treaty of Versailles, in 1783, to the Treaty of Villafranca, in 1860, comprising the most important international transactions during that period.
6. That they have a general knowledge of political economy, to be acquired from Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," and Mill's "Political Economy."
7. That they have a general knowledge of Maritime and International Law, to be acquired from Vattel, Wheaton's "Elements of International Law," and the first volume of Kent's "Commentaries."
8. They must satisfy the examiners, by submitting to them a general report on the * Candidates who have passed the first public examination in Classics at one of the Universities in Great Britain or Ireland will be exempted from being examined in Latin; but candidates claiming this exemption must, on going up for examination, exhibit to the Civil Service Commissioners a certificate from the duly constituted authorities, examiners, or others, as the case may be, in such University that they have passed the first public examination in Classics, in whatever manner that examination may have been conducted, and to whatever point directed.

commerce of the several countries in which they have resided, and on their political relations with other countries, that they are competent to draw up such a report: and they must be prepared to answer any questions put to them by the examiners within the limits of such report.

Candidates for Attachéships, on presenting themselves for examination, must have completed the 21st year of their age and not exceeded the 26th.

No. 10.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, April 19, 1866.

CONSIDERABLE inconvenience has arisen from a practice which has grown up, of Heads of Missions recommending for leave of absence the junior members of their Diplomatic establishments, and on such leave being granted and availed of, forthwith representing to the Secretary of State that temporary assistance is required to enable the business of the Mission to be carried on in the absence of the person or persons on leave. I accordingly think it necessary to call the attention of Heads of Missions to the passage in the 6th paragraph of Lord Russell's circular of the 10th of February, 1860, in which it is laid down that the leave of absence to which the junior members of a Mission are to be considered entitled is "subject, of course, to its being limited, if the public service requires it."

If, therefore, the grant of leave of absence to one of its junior members, of whatever grade, is at any time incompatible with the carrying on of the business of a Mission, much as I should regret that any such gentleman should be obliged to forego the indulgence which he desires, he must, I fear, resign himself to the necessities of the public service.

In the Foreign Office, during the absence on leave of any of the clerks in the respective divisions, those who remain in attendance, of whatever rank, arrange for carrying on the business of the division with a limited staff, so that the public service suffers no delay nor prejudice; although, of course, the absence of their colleagues entails upon them, for the time, additional labour: so likewise in Her Majesty's Missions abroad,—in regard to the junior members of which the principle of annual leave granted to the clerks of the Foreign Office was applied, for the first time, under Lord Russell's circular,—whenever any junior member of a Mission is absent on leave those who remain in attendance, of whatever rank, must make arrangements for duly carrying on the public business of the Mission.

As a general rule, regular attendance in the Chancery for five hours a-day should, I conceive, suffice for the daily work of any Mission, though, of course, that time is liable to be prolonged in case of emergency: but assuming five hours as the stated period of daily attendance, any extra work occasioned by the absence of a colleague on leave might easily be met, as in the Foreign Office, by coming to the Chancery earlier, or staying later, in order to dispose of it.

You will communicate the contents of this despatch to the junior members of your Mission.

I am, &c.

(Signed) CLARENDON.

These Regulations are to be considered as having taken effect on the 16th of June, and as superseding the previous Regulations on the same subject of the 15th of September, 1862, and the 17th of July, 1865.

Regulations for Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service.—(Revised and confirmed by the Earl of Clarendon, June 16, 1866.)

THE junior members of the Diplomatic Service must pass two examinations before the Civil Service Commissioners; and at the time of presenting themselves for the first they must have completed the twenty-first year of their age, and have not exceeded the twenty-sixth.

In the first examination, which candidates for Attachéships must be prepared to undergo within three months from the date of their nomination, they must satisfy the examiners in regard to the following points:—

9. That they have a general knowledge of German grammar.
10. That they have general knowledge of the constitutional history of England, to be acquired from Blackstone's "Commentaries" (Ker's Edition, 1862), and Hallam's "Constitutional History of England."
11. That they have a general knowledge of the political history of Europe, and of the United States of North America, from the Treaty of Paris, in 1815, to the Treaty of Versailles, in 1860, comprising an acquaintance with the most important international transactions during that period.

In the second examination, which must be undergone in the interval between the grant of a commission as Third Secretary and that of a commission as Second Secretary, candidates will be exempted from re-examination in the 1st, 2nd, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 10th subjects in which they have passed in their previous examinations; but they must satisfy the examiners in regard to the following points:—

4. That they have a general knowledge of German grammar, and can translate correctly from German into English; or if the candidates, between their first and second examinations, have not resided a reasonable time, twelve months for instance, in Germany, they may, if they desire it, substitute in their second examination, for a general knowledge of German grammar and for correct translation from German into English, the same qualifications in some other foreign language besides French.
5. That they have a general knowledge of the political history of Europe, and of the United States of North America, from the Treaty of Versailles in 1783, to the Treaty of Versailles, in 1860, comprising the most important international transactions during that period.
6. That they have a general knowledge of political economy, to be acquired from Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," and Mill's "Political Economy."
7. That they have a general knowledge of Maritime and International Law, to be acquired from Vattel, Wheaton's "Elements of International Law," and the first volume of Kent's "Commentaries."

1. Nomination, qualification, and examination of candidates for Attachéships.

* Candidates who have passed the first public examination in Classics at one of the Universities in Great Britain or Ireland, or at the Royal Academy at Woolwich, or one of the public examinations for the Army or Navy, will be exempted from being examined in Latin; but candidates claiming this exemption must, on going up for examination, exhibit to the Civil Service Commissioners a certificate from the duly constituted authorities, examiners, or others, under whom they have been examined, that they have passed the first public examination in Classics, in whatever manner that examination may have been conducted, and to whatever point directed.

8. They must satisfy the examiners, by submitting to them a general report on the commerce of the several countries in which they have resided, and on their political relations with other countries, that they are competent to draw up such a report: and they must be prepared to answer any questions put to them by the examiners within the limit of such report.

2. Period of service of Attachés.

The service of Attachés will reckon from the date of the certificate first granted by the Civil Service Commissioners, and will be considered as probationary for four years from that date, during which period the Attachés must have been employed for six months in the Foreign Office, and must also have actually resided at one of Her Majesty's Embassies or Missions abroad, or have been actually employed in the Foreign Office for such a time as in the aggregate will make up a further period of three years. If these conditions at the second examination, employment, and residence have not been fulfilled at the expiration of four years from the date of the certificate of the Civil Service Commissioners of the Foreign Office, having passed the first examination, the probationary period will be prolonged until the conditions have been fulfilled.

3. Commissions as Third Secretaries to be granted to Attachés on completion of their probation.

4. A salary of 150*l.* a-year will be granted, contingently, to Attachés on completion of their probation.

Commissions as Third Secretaries under Her Majesty's Sign-Manual will be granted to Attachés, on the termination of the probationary period, and on the fulfilment of the conditions specified in the present Regulations, together with a salary at the rate of 150*l.* a-year; provided that the Minister under whom they have last served certifies that they are of good general character and conduct, during the time they have so served, have been satisfactory in their duties, and that, as far as such Minister has the means of forming an opinion, they understand and speak French well, and also one other foreign language.

Second Secretaries will constitute an intermediate Class between Third Secretaries and Secretaries of Legation.

The Secretary of State will assign to each Embassy or Mission such a number of Secretaries of the Second and Third Classes as he may deem fit; it being always understood that Secretaries of these two classes may be named indiscriminately to either Embassy or Mission, without reference to their previous employment in one or other of them. They are to be designated as Third or Second Secretary in the specific Embassy or Mission in which they may at the time be employed, but not as Third or Second Secretary of Embassy or Legation.

5. Number of Second Secretaries.

The number of Second Secretaries is restricted to the number of First and Second Paid Attachés in the service on the 15th of September, 1862. Their salaries will be issued according to the scale established for the particular Embassy or Mission in which they may be actually serving, without reference to any previous amount of salary they may have received.

6. Rules as to Pensions of the fourth class.

In virtue of Her Majesty's Commissions, the service of Second and Third Secretaries will count for their pensions, under the Act of 2 and 3 Wm. IV, cap. 116, from the date of the issue of their first Commission; but the amount of pension to be assigned to them will be calculated, so long as they are eligible for a pension of the fourth class only, on the basis of each year that has elapsed since the date of their first Commission at one-thirtieth part of the last salary of which they were in receipt at the time of the pension being granted; provided that no pension shall continue to be issued to a person not incapacitated by ill-health, medically certified, who may decline active service before he has reached the sixtieth year of his age, after which age no person shall be required to serve as Second or Third Secretary.

7. Provisions for the transfer of the Junior Members of the Diplomatic Service from one post to another; and payment of their expenses of removal.

Second or Third Secretaries, and Attachés, as a general rule, will not be employed for more than two years, exclusive of the periods during which they may have been absent on leave, in the same Embassy or Mission, unless for special public reasons. Secretaries of Embassy or Legation, Second and Third Secretaries and Attachés, will, on their first appointment, or on any subsequent removal by reason of promotion or otherwise on public grounds, receive such an allowance as shall be sufficient to cover the actual expense of their personal journey by land, or the actual amount paid for their personal passage by sea, either from England to their post, or from one foreign post to another; and in the case of Secretaries of Embassy or Legation, and of Second Secretaries, a similar allowance for one servant, if they have one; but no allowance will be made for the expense of the journey or subsistence of the families of any such Secretaries or Attachés. In the case of a mere change of post, not carrying with it increase of salary, an allowance of one pound a-day as subsistence money during a journey by land, will be given for each day actually employed in travelling by the direct road. In the event of a passage being afforded to Secretaries or Attachés on board of one of Her Majesty's ships of war, the allowance made will be in conformity with the Admiralty Regulations.

No allowance will be made to the Junior Members of the Diplomatic Service for journeys undertaken for their own convenience, in pursuance of leave of absence; but in such cases the expense of the journeys from and on returning to their post will be exclusively at their own charge.

It is understood, moreover, that in the case of any journey of which the expense is to be allowed, Secretaries or Attachés, unless specially excused from doing so, will be bound to take charge of despatches, if required; and in that case they will be expected to perform the journey without delaying on the road.

The Secretary of State will, should he see occasion, for the advantage of the Public Service, allow Second and Third Secretaries, and Attachés, to interchange for a time their duties with Clerks of the three Junior Classes in the Foreign Office; the several parties being bound for the whole period through which the interchange extends, in every respect to perform the duties and to submit to the obligations attaching to the situation which they may temporarily occupy.

8. Interchange of employment between Second and Third Secretaries, and Junior Clerks in the Foreign Office.

The Secretary of State will, moreover, if he sees reason to do so, direct such temporary interchange of duties to be made, irrespective of the wishes of the parties, between Second or Third Secretaries, or Attachés, and Clerks in the Foreign Office; or he will direct such persons to be employed for a time, at home or abroad, without any interchange, making in either case such an allowance to the parties as he may consider just and reasonable. In the event of any Attaché being so employed in the Foreign Office, the period over and above the six months which are obligatory, as stated in section 2, during which he shall be actually employed in the Foreign Office, shall reckon towards the three years during which he is, by these Regulations, to reside at an Embassy or Mission abroad.

In the case of temporary interchanges between Secretaries and Clerks, they will respectively rank, in the Embassy or Mission and Foreign Office, as the case may be, during the period for which the interchange shall last, after the Junior in the class of Secretaries or Clerks to which either of them belongs.

If a Clerk in the Foreign Office should be permanently transferred to the Diplomatic Service, or should be temporarily employed with a Special, or with an Ordinary, Embassy or Mission, he will receive a Commission or an acting appointment, as the case may be, as Secretary of the Second or Third Class.

A First-Class Junior Clerk who has acquired a standing in the Office which qualifies him to act as Assistant Clerk will receive an Acting Commission as Second Secretary; and a Second or Third Class Junior Clerk will receive an Acting Commission as Third Secretary.

With a view to relieve Heads of Missions on leave of absence on private grounds, the deduction to be made from their salaries will in future be limited, for a period not exceeding sixty days from the date of their departure from their posts, to the sum required to provide for the allowances of the Acting Chargés d'Affaires according to the present Regulations; on the expiration of which period the deduction will be at the rate of one-half of their salaries. Such period of sixty days may either be one of sixty consecutive days, or of sixty days occurring at intervals in the course of one year beginning on the 1st of January and ending on the 31st of December.

9. Deductions to be made from salaries of Heads of Missions on leave of absence.

Should an Ambassador, Minister, or Secretary, by reason of war or other interruption of Diplomatic relations, be withdrawn from active service before his services shall have qualified him for a Diplomatic Pension of the class under which he would otherwise come, the Secretary of State will, as he may see fit, assign to any such person who cannot otherwise be immediately employed, and during any period not exceeding the continuance of such war or interruption of Diplomatic relations, a temporary allowance calculated on the rate of pension assigned to the class to which he belongs, regard being had to the length and general character of his services; such allowance being, however, strictly subject to the condition in regard to employment specified in the 7th section of the Act of 2nd and 3rd William IV, cap. 116.

10. Allowances during war or interruption of relations.

EXTRA RECEIPTS.

COPY OF TREASURY MINUTE,

Dated 2nd November 1867.

MY LORDS have before them the Estimates of the current year.

It has been brought to their notice that an uniform system does not prevail in the mode of preparing the Estimates for those Services where, in addition to the Grant of Parliament, certain extra receipts are appropriated in aid of the Vote. Extra receipts are in some cases paid into the Exchequer as revenue, but in other cases the gross amount to be expended is shown on the Estimate, and a deduction is made on account of extra receipts from the total amount of the Grant; whilst in others the net expenditure only is included in the Estimate, and the extra receipts do not appear.

In order that my Lords may be in possession of full information upon this point before deciding upon any alteration in the shape in which the Estimates are to be laid before Parliament, they desire that each department charged with the duty of preparing the several Estimates, be informed that those now in course of preparation are to show the gross amount of charges which may come in course of payment in the year, and that the estimated amount of extra receipts may be given separately at the foot of the estimate, with a statement showing the manner in which they have been heretofore appropriated, in order that they may be dealt with as my Lords may direct.

Let a copy of this Minute be transmitted to the several departments concerned, for their guidance.

Statement respecting Foreign Office Agencies.

THE Undersigned, the present holders of Agencies in the Foreign Office, understanding that Lord Stanley contemplates the abolition of the Agency system, but is willing to receive from the Agents any Statement which they may wish to make upon the subject, beg leave respectfully to lay before his Lordship the following observations.

In order to place the whole question clearly before his Lordship, the Agents have embodied, in the following Statement, a reference to the principle facts and discussions which have taken place since the passing of the Order in Council of February 27, 1795, which, on the recommendation of the three Principal Secretaries of State, authorized the continuance of the Foreign Office Agencies, and which Order is still in force.

The Agents have not conceived it to be necessary that they should attempt to trace the system of Agency back to its origin in remote times; for they are aware that its antiquity alone could give to the system little claim to consideration, unless it were, at the same time, supported by other and more practical recommendations, and that it by no means follows that a practice which was proper and suited to a state of things which existed in the last century must necessarily be equally proper and well adapted to the state of things existing at the present day.

It is rather for the Agents to endeavour to show, as they venture to think they can do, and that on the highest testimony, that the Agency system has been a benefit to the public service; that it has met with the entire approval of successive Secretaries of State; that its advantages to members of the Diplomatic and Consular Service have been fully acknowledged by them; and that it has never in any way interfered with the efficient discharge of the Agents' official duties.

The Undersigned are desirous that the Agency system should be considered upon its own merits, and not with reference to their individual claims alone, which, however, they feel assured will meet with Lord Stanley's full and impartial consideration.

Reserving, however the few remarks which the Agents may wish to offer as to the practical value of the Agency system, they beg leave, in the first instance, to submit that the system sanctioned and adopted by the Government of 1795, was not so adopted on imperfect information, or without ample consideration and discussion.

The circumstances to which the Agents would wish to refer Lord Stanley are these: Commissioners had been appointed in 1785 "to inquire into the fees, gratuities, perquisites, and emoluments, which were or had lately been received in the several public offices; to examine into any abuses which might exist in the same, and to report any observations which should occur to them for the better conducting and managing the business transacted therein;" and in the course of their recommendations, as to the future arrangements and organization of the Secretary of State's Office—then recently reconstituted on the discontinuance of the previous division of the Office into the two Departments of North and South,—the Commissioners had expressed an opinion adverse to the Agency system.

The Government, however, before giving effect to those recommendations, deemed it advisable to refer by an Order in Council of October 14, 1798, the several Reports of the Commissioners for the consideration of the Privy Council; and it is recorded in the preamble of the subsequent Order of February 27, 1795, that the Lords of the Committee thought it expedient, "prior to offering any opinion to His Majesty upon the Regulations proposed, to order that the Reports should be transmitted to the Heads of the several Departments of His Majesty's Government to which they respectively referred, in order that they might consider of the Regulations proposed, and all matters contained therein and report what part of the proposed Regulations they might approve as fit to be adopted and, if there should be any of the proposed regulations to which they might object, to state their objections and the grounds thereof." Accordingly the three Secretaries of State—the Duke of Portland, Lord Grenville, and Mr. Dundas—made to the Committee of Council, a full report on the subject referred to them, and the Committee concurring generally in the Report of the Secretaries of State, embodied it in the Order in Council of 1795.

That portion of the Report thus embodied in the Order in Council which relates to the Agency system is as follows :—

“ There does not appear to us to be any substantial objection to the permitting the “ Clerks in our respective Departments to act as Agents to foreign Ministers or Consuls,
“ when their attention to that business may not be found to interfere with their official “ avocations. The duties of these Agencies consist merely in the receipt of the salaries
“ and contingencies allowed to such Ministers and Consuls, and in applying the same to “ their use; and as all bills for contingencies must necessarily undergo the immediate “ inspection and approbation of the Secretaries of State, before any charge on that “ account can be admitted, we do not see that any imposition on the public can follow
“ from the present mode of executing Agencies of this sort which might not take place “ were they to be executed by any person totally unconnected with the respective “ offices.”

It thus appears that the Government in 1795 did not, after full inquiry and consideration, see fit to adopt, as regards the Agency system, the adverse opinion of the Commissioners of 1785; but, on the contrary, pronounced judgment against it.

The Order in Council of February 27, 1795, concludes with these words :—

“ His Majesty, taking the said Report into consideration, was pleased, with the “ advice of his Privy Council, to confirm such of the regulations respecting the offices of “ His Majesty’s Principal Secretaries of State, proposed by the Commissioners appointed “ by the said Act passed in the 25th year of His Majesty’s reign, as appear to be “ approved of by His Majesty’s said Principal Secretaries of State. And His Majesty is “ likewise pleased, with the advice aforesaid, to approve and confirm the further regula“ tions proposed by His Majesty’s said Principal Secretaries of State, with the exceptions “ above stated, in the said Report of the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council, and
“ to order, as it is hereby ordered, that the same be adopted and carried into execution.
“ And the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty’s Treasury, and “ His Majesty’s Principal Secretaries of State, are to give the necessary directions
“ herein, as to them may respectively appertain.”

The Agency system, thus approved and confirmed by an Order of the King in Council, has accordingly, from the year 1795 down to the present time, been carried on under the express sanction of that Order; and although it has never, so far as the Agents are aware, been alleged that the Order of 1795 has become obsolete, or that it has ceased to have effect from any other cause,—that Order being in fact, in regard to some of its main and essential provisions, the law which still defines the responsibilities and regulates the proceedings of the Foreign Office,—it may be as well to remind Lord Stanley that any doubts on that point, should any such have been previously entertained, were effectually set at rest by the opinion which the Law Officers of the Crown gave on the 15th of June last* with reference to the audit of the accounts of the Foreign Office.

The Agents beg leave, therefore, respectfully to submit that the Order of 1795 amply covers and protects the Agency system, more especially in view of the recent opinion of the Law Officers that its provisions are still in force, the Act 29 and 30 Vict., cap. 39, notwithstanding.

Lord Stanley is aware that the Treasury now propose that those portions of the Order in Council of 1795 which relate to the accounts of the Foreign Office shall be revoked simultaneously with the coming into operation, so far as regards the Foreign Office, of the Exchequer and Audit Departments Act; but unless those portions of the Order which refer to the Agencies should be at the same time revoked, the authority given to the Agencies by that Order will remain untouched.

It should also be observed that the system received further sanction and countenance from the Regulations framed by Lord Castlereagh, in 1816, for the guidance of those concerned in Agencies; and it may be sufficient, with regard to these Regulations, for the Agents to assure Lord Stanley that, to the best of their knowledge and belief, their spirit has been loyally adhered to during the fifty years which have elapsed since their promulgation.

* Extract from Report of June 15, 1867, signed by Sir J. Rolt, Sir J. Karslake, Sir R. Phillimore :—

“ We are of opinion that the Order in Council of 1795 is not affected by the Act 29 and 30 Vict. cap. 39 (the Exchequer and Audit Departments Act), and that until that Order is properly revoked, the accounts of the Secretary of State’s offices, and specifically those of the Foreign Office, should be submitted for audit in the manner prescribed by the Order.”

The Agents will next advert to the Report of the Commissioners appointed by a Minute of the Lords of the Treasury, dated the 3rd of November, 1836, for the purpose of inquiring into the fees, gratuities, perquisites, and emoluments of Public Offices. In their Report the Commissioners, referring to the evidence and documents annexed thereto, said it was manifest with regard to the Agency system, that the objections urged against it by the Commissioners of 1786 had been obviated by the salutary regulations then in force: they also admitted that the convenience of the Diplomatic and Consular Servants of the Crown might be promoted, and the facility of dispatching business might probably be increased, by the presence of an Agent in the Office who had ready access to those in authority; but they still entertained objections to the system, and without pointing out any abuse, said that after the best consideration they were enabled to give to the subject, those objections were not removed by the reasons adduced in support of a practice already abolished in some Public Offices, and which should, in their opinion, be altogether prohibited. The Commissioners nevertheless added, at the conclusion of their Report, that "we submit to your Lordships that the interests of individuals which may be affected by a compliance with our recommendations should be duly considered, and any arrangements consequent on the abolition of fees will be facilitated by the granting of due compensation." Mr. Backhouse's opinion as to the unimportant nature of the objections advanced by the Commissioners is fully stated at page 6.

Of the evidence and documents to which the Commissioners referred, as having been laid before them, the following important statements respecting the Agency system, addressed to the Commissioners by the two Under-Secretaries of State, Mr. Backhouse and Mr. Fox-Strangways, though not entirely applicable to the state of things existing at the present day, seem to merit that they should be reproduced in full:—

Statement of John Backhouse, Esq., to the Commissioners on Fees, &c., on the Subject of Private Agencies in the Foreign Office.

"I consider the employment of Clerks in the Foreign Office, as the private Agents of British Ministers and Consuls abroad, to be an arrangement attended with conveniences, not only to the Ministers abroad, but especially to the business of the Department at home.

"Among the conveniences to the Ministers (which again connect themselves in some degree with those which result to the Department also), I consider the facility of communication on minor matters of practice, regulations, precedents, and other details of office. The Agents, who are, generally speaking, Clerks of old standing, are consulted by the Ministers, and receive suggestions from them on these and other points connected with their service under the Department; many official applications to the Secretary of State which could not be granted, are thus anticipated and prevented, and much trouble and interruption, both to the Secretary of State, and especially to the Under-Secretaries, both in correspondence and personal communications are thus avoided.

"Among the duties of a private Agent are those of receiving and transmitting to a Minister his private correspondence and other things of which he has need. A Minister expects that advantage should be taken of every occasion of a messenger coming to or passing through or near the residence where he is stationed, for sending to him, besides his private correspondence, various articles of necessity or convenience, which he has no other means of receiving safely or expeditiously; such as articles of stationery, packets of dimensions too large for the post, or packets of value which he would not trust to any other conveyance. In estimating the advantage which a Minister derives in these respects from having a Foreign Office Clerk as his private Agent, it is necessary to bear in mind the irregularity and uncertainty of the periods of the dispatch of those messengers, that they are almost always sent off at a late hour of the night, and sometimes upon a few hours' notice. To Agents, strangers to the Office, it would be necessary to send out notices on all such occasions; but it would often happen that either in the hurry of business, or owing to the hour of the night, or to the distance of the Agents' residences, such notices could not be sent, or would arrive too late, to say nothing of the inexpediency, in many cases, of sending such notices to persons not belonging to the Office or connected with the Government: but by the employment of a Clerk as Agent, all risk of missing a messenger is avoided, without the objection just alluded to, and without trouble or interruption to the business of the Office.

"I have already alluded to some of the conveniences resulting to the Department, and especially to the Under-Secretaries, in the transaction of the business of the Office, from the employment of Clerks as private Agents: but the advantage of the presence of the Agents in the Office is more peculiarly felt when information is suddenly desired respecting an individual Minister's private arrangements, his wants, his wishes, his direction, or his movements when he is absent on leave, and many other particulars which are known to the Agent, and which are thus obtained at once without difficulty or delay, but which might otherwise not be obtained when immediately wanted, or not without correspondence or inconvenient delay.

"The regulations now in force preclude any abuse in these Agencies in pecuniary matters; and, from my own observation, I believe the discharge of the duties of them does not practically interfere with the official service of the Clerks. The case might probably be different in other Offices of Government, in which the time devoted by a Clerk to the public service is regularly limited to fixed hours, at the expiration of which the Clerk is entitled to close his services for the day; but such is not, and cannot be, the case in the Foreign Office. The general business of the Department is of a nature to require that it should be completed off-hand, at whatever sacrifice of the time of the Clerks; and their attendance, and especially that of the class usually employed as Agents, is extended almost constantly beyond the ordinary hours established for official duty in every other Department of Government, and often, and especially when messengers are to be despatched abroad, to an advanced period of the night. In this respect the Foreign Office differs essentially from every other Department.

"In answer to the inquiry of the Committee, whether there is not risk of communications, inconvenient to the public service, being made by the Agents in their private correspondence with their employers, I have to state that I do not apprehend such inconvenience. I am not aware that any instance of it has ever occurred. Much of the business of the Department is of the most confidential nature: important State secrets are often unavoidably known to the Clerks; and I believe that the same spirit of honourable fidelity to the confidence reposed in them, which preserves them from making improper disclosures in other quarters, would equally preserve them from the indiscretion of conveying to Ministers abroad information which their experience in business would enable them to understand that the Secretary of State would desire should not be so communicated.

"For all these reasons which have reference, almost exclusively, to the peculiar character and circumstances of the business of the Foreign Office, and to the manner in which the Clerks are employed, and which, perhaps, may not be applicable to any other Department under the Government, I believe the employment of the Clerks of the Foreign Office as private Agents to be free from any valid objection; and I should consider the abolition of the Agencies to be inexpedient, as diminishing the conveniences for transacting the public business of the Foreign Office; whilst the substitution of Agents, strangers to the Foreign Office and to its business, would deprive British Ministers abroad of some of the conveniences which they possess under the present system, and would be productive of additional trouble and occupation, especially to the Department of the Under-Secretaries.

(Signed) "J. BACKHOUSE.

Foreign Office, February 7, 1837."

Statement of the Honourable W. Fox-Strangways, supplementary to that of Mr. Backhouse, on the subject of Private Agencies in the Foreign Office.

"I would add, from my own knowledge, acquired by long residence abroad in various diplomatic situations, that the present system of Foreign Office Agencies affords many advantages which may not be apparent to those who have not been in the way of experiencing them. The system is not only of the greatest convenience to Diplomatic Servants abroad, but contributes in no small degree, though indirectly, to the good of the public service. In numberless instances, more easy to conceive than to specify, it prevents the persons of all ranks and standing, employed abroad, from becoming strangers to the Office under which they serve, and vice versa, which is a defect that exists in some of the foreign Diplomatic Services. For this reason, I think it no trifling object to keep up that easy habitual intercourse and mutual understanding between the Foreign Office and its servants of all classes abroad which now exists; and for want of which familiarity with the Office to which they belong, I have seen various public Agents of foreign Powers grow careless, and little disposed to exert themselves for their Governments. This applies more particularly to the more distant and minor posts of diplomacy, in which there is greater risk of being left unacquainted with the spirit of the Government at home. Much friendly caution and advice may be given by a Foreign Office Agent to a Minister,

Chargé d'Affaires, or Consul abroad, which it would not fall in the way of either Secretary of State or Under-Secretary to give. Without such communications they may imperceptibly and involuntarily become, to a certain degree, estranged from the interests of their Government, and ignorant how to serve it in the many cases which arise, for which they have no previous or precise instruction. No extra-official Agent could supply the want of frequent informal communication with the Under-Secretaries.

"If the Foreign Office Agencies were abolished, what other class of persons would the Secretary of State choose or permit to become Agents for the Ministers, &c., abroad? Who could fill their place with the same degree of utility? If the Ministers were obliged to name Agents, not of the Foreign Office, one would appoint his lawyer, another his banker, some a merchant, others their friends or relations unconnected with or hostile to Government, and over whom Government could have no control, who might have various interests, to serve which an apparent connection with the Foreign Office might not be indifferent.

"Such persons, too, might sometimes abuse, for political or private purposes, that access to the interior of the Foreign Office which their character of Agent would entitle them on all occasions to claim.

"Over Agents, chosen by Diplomatic Servants in their private capacity, the Foreign Office would have no command, though they must be in daily contact with it, and it would be a continual interruption to the current business of the Department. Even on their selection the Foreign Office could exercise no veto, however improper or inconvenient to it the choice might be.

"It should be added, to obviate a misconception which it is probable may have arisen, that the system of Agencies in the Foreign Office has not crept in of late years by any unauthorized latitude of custom; that it is in no way to be regarded as an abuse; on the contrary, the system is of long standing, and has been gradually ameliorated by various regulations; nor do I think a better plan could readily be devised for its purposes. It is managed by those who understand the business, and may be controlled at any moment by those who have full authority so to do; it suits the arrangements, both public and private, of the Foreign Office, at home and abroad; it is not objected to by either the Office or the persons for whose use and convenience it exists; and any other system which might be substituted for it, would run great risk of being directly as well as indirectly, detrimental to the public service.

(Signed)

"W. F. STRANGWAYS.

"Foreign Office, February 12, 1837."

It was also urged, in a Memorandum prepared by the Agents, that as the existing Regulations prescribed in minute detail the principles and the particulars of the circumstances under which allowances, either of an ordinary or extraordinary nature, were granted to any Foreign Minister, and there were other safeguards against the possibility of abuse, no objection could be fairly raised to the continuance of Agencies on the ground taken by the Commissioners in 1786. The Clerks were not indeed aware that that view of the subject had been revived by the Commissioners then sitting; their objection to the practice was stated chiefly to rest on the assumption that the Clerks might be led to employ, in the business of their private Agencies, time which properly belonged to the public service, and this was more likely to happen when the elements of the private and the public business were found under the same roof. Upon this latter ground of objection the Clerks observed that the chief part of the Agency business was done by the Agent out of Office hours, and that it did not diminish, and never had been allowed in any way to interfere with, the ordinary duties of the Clerks.

In a further Memorandum it was pointed out that the practice of allowing Clerks in the Foreign Office to act as private Agents to Ministers and Consuls abroad involved no charge upon the public; that it was not liable to any pecuniary abuse; and did not trench upon or interfere with the duties of the Clerks as public servants; for that, if a portion of their time was occasionally employed with Agency business during the official hours, it was amply compensated for by the unlimited time and labour which the Clerks were constantly giving at all hours and all seasons to the business of the Department; a statement which elicited from Lord Palmerston the observation that "it must undoubtedly be acknowledged that the business of the Foreign Office is done well, ably, diligently, promptly, and without arrear."

The next notice taken of the question was in January 1840, when, with reference to a plan then before the Treasury for adding to the establishment of the Foreign Office, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir F. Baring, made, through Mr. Backhouse, a verbal proposal to Lord Palmerston for the abolition of the Agencies.

Mr. Backhouse in reporting that proposal to Lord Palmerston accompanied it by the following observations:—

“I feel confident that your Lordship will be fully convinced by an attentive perusal of the evidence laid before the Committee of the Treasury on Fees, that so far as concerns the business of this Department, and the public and personal interests of our Ministers abroad, a great injury would be done by the abolition of these Agencies, against which no one valid objection has been proved; which cost nothing to the public; which contribute essentially to order, regularity, and the convenient dispatch of the business of the Office; and the abolition of which, and the consequent introduction of private Agents, strangers in the Department, would produce a vast increase of trouble, irregularity, and embarrassment in a Department already overburthened beyond other Departments, and beyond its fair proportion of labour, and would be liable to other objections of a most serious nature.”

“The abolition of these Agencies,” continued Mr. Backhouse, “ought not to be adopted, at least without much further and mature consideration than has yet been given to the question. Even the Report of the Commissioners admits, though not so amply as the case required, that the convenience of the Diplomatic Servants of the Crown is promoted and the facility of dispatching public business is probably increased by maintaining them, and it does not adduce as a set-off against these advantages any one specific and practical objection, but recommends their abolition on some vague general principle of uniformity about fees, which does not strictly apply to the character of these private Agencies.”

In a further Memorandum Mr. Backhouse took the same grounds of objection to the abolition of the Agencies, and he observed with regard to that paragraph of the Commissioners’ Report in which their opinion is expressed that the Agencies should be abolished, that “it did not allege any specific reason for adopting that opinion; it stated no abuse to which the Agencies had actually led, or to which they could be alleged to be liable. It seemed merely to say that because some Agencies had been abolished in other public offices, therefore the Agencies in the Foreign Office ought to share the same fate, without advertg to the respective characters of the different Agencies referred to, or to the fact that no Agency in any other Office furnished a precedent precisely parallel to those then in question in the Foreign Office. Why, then, was the Department to be deprived, for the attainment of no one practical benefit, for the removal of no one alleged or existing abuse, and for no object of pecuniary saving to the public revenue, of one great source of order, regularity, facility and dispatch in the execution of the business of the Office?”

Mr. Backhouse at the same time asked for, and submitted to Lord Palmerston, a statement of the opinion with regard to the Agency question of one of the Clerks holding a high position in the Office, who was not in any way connected with the Agencies, but whose opinions, owing to his acknowledged pre-eminence among his colleagues, carried with them, and deservedly so, great weight. The following is the statement referred to:—

“1. In many cases it would be highly inconvenient to inform a person not belonging to the Office, and not under its control, that a messenger was about to be dispatched abroad, and consequently the Minister abroad would be deprived of the convenience of receiving by a messenger so dispatched his private correspondence and packets, which are now invariably sent to him by every messenger who has the means of conveying them.

“2. Even with respect to the dispatch of messengers when no secrecy might be required, it would very inconvenient to have to send out of the Office to announce that a messenger was about to be dispatched, especially as messengers are frequently detained from day to day. But the inconvenience would be intolerable if the extra-official Agent should be allowed to come daily to the Office to make inquiries as to the probability of a messenger being dispatched. The difficulty of exercising control over private Agents (strangers) with respect to the contents of the packages which they may send in the bags to a Minister abroad, might become very troublesome and embarrassing. It is entirely avoided under the present management so far as relates to things sent abroad.

“3. But if it is supposed that the Clerks Assistant (i.e., those in charge of Divisions) would take charge of the letters and parcels belonging to foreign Ministers, it is not too much to state that it would be most unreasonable and unjust to impose that duty upon them. It would be unreasonable because the avowed object of the abolition of agencies being the demand which those Agencies are alleged to make upon the time of the Clerks, to impose upon the Clerks’ Assistants the duty of taking charge of the letters, &c., belonging to foreign Ministers, would encroach upon their time as much as it can do now upon that of the Agents under the existing system; and from the peculiar nature of the duties of the Clerks’ Assistants this increase of their duty would tend much more to the prejudice of the public service than a continuance of the present system can by any possibility do. And the injustice of imposing this extra duty upon them without remuneration is too obvious to require to be dwelt upon. But the majority of the Clerks Assistant would probably deprecate the imposition of a duty of this kind upon them, even if they were to be remunerated for it. It is not every one who would choose, in addition to his official work, to have all the trouble which the care of foreign Ministers' letters, &c., entails upon the present Agents.

"4. With regard to the assumption that because Agencies have been abolished in the Colonial Office, they should also be abolished in the Foreign Office, it is to be observed that there is no analogy between the two cases. The Agencies in the Colonial Office were Public Agencies, and appointed for the furtherance of the public business of the Colonial Governments rather than for the private business of the Governors; whereas the Agencies in the Foreign Office are exclusively for the private business of foreign Ministers, and only so far recognized by the Secretary of State as being restricted in the amount of emolument, &c., which the persons who hold them are allowed to receive. The objection now raised to the continuance of the present system would apply equally to any Clerk undertaking any private business out of office hours; and it might even be said that the time which a Clerk might give to literary pursuits, if he derived emolument from them, was liable to the same objection."

Lord Palmerston's decision upon the proposal of Sir F. Baring, above referred to, is recorded in a letter signed by Mr. Backhouse on the 26th of February, 1840, of which the draft, as was explained in a private note to Sir F. Baring, had been written by direction of, and corrected by, his Lordship. It was stated in that letter "that Lord Palmerston was not prepared to concur in the proposed abolition of the Agencies. His Lordship did not find in the Report of the Commissioners on Fees any allegation of irregularity or abuse in the present management of those Agencies, nor the statement of any practical objection to the continuance of them, nor of any objection of any kind which could appear to demand from the Department the sacrifice of those ascertained and positive advantages and conveniences affecting its business at home and its Ministers and Consuls abroad, which result from those Agencies as then conducted by responsible Members of the Department, under the sanction and regulations of the Secretary of State."

Mr. Backhouse concluded his letter by stating that if it should be the desire of the Lords of the Treasury to go hereafter into a further examination of the Agency question, and if such desire should be signified in a letter explaining their Lordships' specific objections to the present system, Lord Palmerston would be quite ready to enter into such examination, and to explain in further detail the reasons on which his present opinion in favour of the maintenance of the Agencies was founded.

No answer appears to have been returned to that letter.

In 1850, however, the question would seem to have been again mooted on the occasion of a Treasury Commission, of which Sir C. Trevelyan and Sir W. Gibson Craig were members, appointed to inquire into the constitution and methods of conducting business of the several Public Offices. It is believed that the Commission (to which Mr. Addington, then Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, was joined for the purpose of conducting the inquiry into the organization and arrangements of the Foreign Office) did not make any Report; but the opinion of Mr. Addington with regard to the Agency Question, is recorded in a letter which he addressed to Sir C. Trevelyan, on the 25th of March of that year, in which the following paragraph occurs:—

"My own views respecting Foreign Office Agency remain hitherto unaltered, and I consider such Agency a benefit both to the Office and to the persons who act abroad under it."

It may here be observed that the opinions of Mr. Addington and Mr. Fox-Strangways, already given, upon the advantages and conveniences of the Agency system, are peculiarly worthy of attention, from the fact of Mr. Addington and Mr. Strangways having both held Diplomatic appointments abroad previously to their selection for the office, the one of Permanent, the other of Parliamentary, Under-Secretary of State in the Foreign Office.

The opinion of the Earl of Clarendon, also a distinguished Diplomatist, as well as Minister for Foreign Affairs, has likewise been expressed in favour of the Agency system. In the letter which Lord Clarendon caused to be addressed to the Treasury on the 20th of March, 1854, stating his willingness to consent to the abolition of the Agencies provided it could be effected with perfect fairness towards individuals, and without prejudice to the Public Service, his Lordship observed "that he did not think that inconvenience had resulted to the Public Service from the Agency system, which had so long been openly sanctioned by successive Governments, and had unquestionably been productive of great advantage to the Diplomatic and Consular Functionaries."

The working of the Agency system has, moreover, as is well known, been fully examined into and discussed before the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the Consular Service in 1858, and again before the Select Committee of the same House on the Diplomatic Service in 1861:—and it may be convenient to Lord Stanley to have before him, in a somewhat classified form, some of the most important portions of the evidence upon the Agency question, given by Mr. Hammond on those two occasions.

Evidence of Mr. HAMMOND.

First.—As to the engagement by the Client of the services of the Agent being a purely optional matter on the part of the former.

“Q. 91 (Mr. Wise). Can you give the Committee any information with reference to the system of Agency in the Department?—A. It goes back a very long period, at least as far back as 1786. There is on record the opinion of the Secretaries of State, given in 1795, in favour of the system of Foreign Office Agencies; it is quite optional whether Consuls employ an Agent in the Foreign Office or not; they may do it or not, as they like.”

“A. 94. It is not at all obligatory upon any Consul or Servant of the Crown to have an Agent in the Foreign Office.

“Q. 96. As a general rule, how many of the Consular Body do employ Agents in the Foreign Office?—A. I am told there are twenty or thirty Consular officers who do not.”

“A. 97. It is quite a voluntary thing.”

“Question 104. Is the employing an Agent entirely voluntary?—A. Quite.”

“Q. 110. Do not you think, as regards small Consulates, and with reference to persons of small salaries, this charge or fee is a very undesirable one?—A. It is perfectly optional whether they pay Agency or not; they have no occasion to employ an Agent unless they like.”

“Q. 140. It is entirely a voluntary arrangement between Ministers and Consuls, and the Agents in the Office?—A. Yes.”

“Q. 593 (Mr. Hankey). Is the commission which is paid to the Clerks in the Foreign Office by way of Agency entirely a voluntary arrangement, as between the Diplomatic Body and the Clerks?—A. Quite so.

“Q. 594. May any Diplomatic Servant change his Agent at the Foreign Office whenever he pleases?—A. Yes.”

“Q. 600 (Mr. Layard). Are those who are employed abroad satisfied with the arrangement?—A. I have no reason to doubt it; and I believe, so far as I am aware, that it would be the greatest hardship upon the Diplomatic Body to put a stop to the existence of the Foreign Office Agencies. I will not say that a Minister, in reckoning up the deductions from his salary, may not have reckoned the deduction for Agency; but I do not believe that it has been a subject of complaint, except under a wrong impression that the deduction was made on the public account. I believe all persons understand that it is a perfectly voluntary arrangement.

“Q. 601. But the practice does not operate to the prejudice of any one employed in Diplomacy abroad if he does not employ a Foreign Office Clerk as his Agent?—A. Not to his official prejudice, nor to his advancement in the profession. If he does not employ a Foreign Office Clerk as Agent, he might suffer personal inconvenience; but he would certainly not be prejudiced in his profession.

“Q. 602. There would be no ill-feeling entertained towards him in the Office?—A. Certainly nothing of the kind which would at all injure him in the Office. The Office would look upon him just as well as if he had employed a Foreign Office Clerk as Agent.”

“Q. 604 (Chairman). Can you state to the Committee, authoritatively upon your own experience, that the arrangements with regard to these Agencies are entirely voluntary on the part of the persons in the Diplomatic Service?—A. Certainly; they are entirely voluntary.”

Secondly.—As to the advantage of the system to the Office and to the Service abroad.

“Q. 97 (Mr. Wise). As a general principle, do you think that it is desirable that Clerks in Public Department should be Agents for Servants of the Crown in that way?—A. There is a good deal to be said on both sides. I do not see any objection in principle, and I see a great convenience in practice. In the first place, it makes the Minister or Consul personally acquainted with the Clerks in the Office, which I think is always a good thing; and then very often it enables the Secretary or Under-Secretary to convey to the Minister or Consul communications not of an official character, but which could not be conveyed by the Under-Secretary of State without bearing an official character; and there are many other little conveniences to the public service. It is a great convenience to the individual, and I believe many people would regret it if Agencies were abolished; all the people who now employ them would, and the Foreign Ministers I am sure would, regret it."

"Q. 146 (Mr. Wilson). For all the other parts of the duties which the Agents perform, except the pecuniary one, you would see no objection to the Office being responsible through some portion of its Clerks?—A. No; but we should not have the same advantage that we now have. In the first place, there would be none of that connexion between our servants abroad and the Office in England, which is a very good thing. We find that by a little friendship all the business goes much more smoothly than in the dull routine of official forms.

"Q. 147. It would weaken the personal communication?—A. It would weaken the personal communication. A sort of friendship grows up from private correspondence. It is hard to define what benefit we derive; but I feel that there is great benefit derived from the general harmony which prevails in all branches of the service."

"Q. 186 (Chairman). And you think that the relation between the servants of the Crown abroad and the Foreign Office, which is brought about indirectly by this Agency system, is generally beneficial to the public service?—A. Certainly."

"Q. 599 (Mr. Hankey). Do you consider that the arrangement is a beneficial one to the Clerks in the Foreign Office?—A. Of course it is a beneficial arrangement for the Clerks of the Office, and it is beneficial to the general service of the Office.

Evidence before
Committee on Diplomatic Service.

"Q. 611 (Chairman). Therefore, neither the public service nor the public, nor the Office itself, being at all affected by these Agencies, you do not consider that any advantage would be derived by preventing the Clerks in the Foreign Office from holding them?—A. I think that not only would no advantage be derived by doing away with them, but I think that very great inconvenience would result to the service abroad, and very great disadvantage to the Office at home.

"Q. 612. Has the system of foreign Agencies any collateral advantage in keeping up the esprit de corps and friendly personal relations between the Diplomatic Service and the Foreign Office?—A. Unquestionably it has the greatest possible advantage in that respect.

"Q. 613. Do you think that that of itself is likely to produce good feeling, and to promote the public service?—A. I cannot speak too strongly upon that point."

Thirdly.—As to the Agency not interfering with the public business of the Office.

"Q. 100. (Mr. Wise). If the Clerks have salaries from the State to discharge certain duties, how do they find time to transact the business of a large body of Consuls?—A. The Clerks are not expected to work the whole twenty-four hours. There are office hours, out of which they can do things of that kind. And if they work for the Office beyond office hours, and their aggregate of work is such as we are entitled to, I do not see any objection to their performing other duties out of office hours."

Evidence before
Committee on
Consular Service.

"Q. 158 (Mr. Lindsay). You do not consider it injurious to the public service that those Clerks who are paid by the Government should also do business on their own account?—A. I do not consider that it interferes with the public service. I scarcely know whether that is the right way to put it. There is nothing in the Agency business that is transacted in the Office which at all interferes with the business of the Office. The nominal hours are six hours a day. Our men work now six, seven, eight, or nine hours, as the public service requires, and you may say it is a give-and-take thing. Whatever time is required for the performance of public duties, that time is not interfered with by the Agencies. The duty is done; and it is done as accurately, as quickly, and as completely as if no Agencies were in existence.

"Q. 159 (Chairman). Have you any reason to believe that in any case the public duty is left undone in consequence of the performance of the private duties?—A. Certainly not.

Q. 160 (Mr. Lindsay). Then it is your opinion, and it agrees with your experience, that it is sound in principle for a servant of the public to be doing business on his own account?—A. On all questions it is much better to look at the practical part of the thing, and in this case there is practically no inconvenience in it, and it is scarcely what you can call business on their own account,—it is business entirely connected with the Foreign Office. It is not as if a man were engaged in a course of business out of doors that might take him out of the Office, but it is strictly in connection with the business of the Office, and I say I have not the least reason to suppose that it at all interferes with the duties of the office; if I had, I should take care that it did not interfere. I have never had occasion to find fault with any Clerk for neglecting his public duties in consequence of his private Agency.

"Q. 161. You think, then, there is nothing unsound in the principle?—A. I say that, testing it by the practical result, there is not."

"Q. 174 (Chairman). If the Agency system were abolished, would you get any more work out of the Clerks than you do now?—A. Certainly not; we get as much out of our Clerks as can be got out of men, and how they do their business is always a mystery to me."

Evidence before
Committee on Diplomatic Service.

"Q. 608 (Chairman). Can you state to the Committee from your experience whether the time occupied in these Agencies has been in any degree substracted from the time that ought to have been given by these persons to the public service?—A. Certainly not. The Clerk, whether he be Agent or not Agent, does for the public whatever the wants of the public service in the course of a day requires. If a man is by accident idle in the Office, which not very often happens, there is no harm in his employing himself about something else, but it does not in the least interfere with the execution of his public duties. We do not in the Office tie ourselves down to require from a Clerk only a certain amount of work in the day, or a certain number of hours' attendance, but he is always liable to be called upon to attend at whatever time we may require him to attend."

Fourthly.—As to the Agency system not giving rise to abuse.

Evidence before
Committee on
Consular Service.

"Q. 99 (Mr. Wise). Is it not possible that the system is liable to abuse in reference to patronage and promotion, and that communications may be made with regard to vacancies?—A. Even if they were made, as the Agent has no power of making the appointment, the only inconvenience might be that he might lead to the application being made to the Secretary of State. No Clerk in the Foreign Office has any power of patronage; it is entirely in the hands of the Secretary of State."

"Q. 111. Do not you think it acts injuriously to the public interests?—A. I do not see that it acts injuriously to the public interests. If I saw an Agent promoting the interests of his client in his capacity of an Agent, I should put a stop to it.

"Q. 112. Is it not an old saying that a friend at Court is a very desirable thing?—A. I have not seen anything of the sort; I expected to be asked a question of that kind, and I cannot say that during the time I have been in the Foreign Office, which is a period of thirty-four years, I ever saw anything which would lead me to believe that the Agency was exercised for an improper purpose.

"Q. 113 (Chairman). Is there any way in which this Agency can be practically conducted by any Clerk in the office for the professional advantage of the party employing him?—A. I do not know that there is; the Agent cannot do more than any private friend could. I might say to the Secretary of State such and such a man is a good man, if there were an opportunity for promoting him; the Agent might say that to me, but I should judge for myself and test it. I can only say, though I have had nothing to do with the Agencies since I have been in the Office, that I cannot tax my memory with any conduct on the part of the Agents which would in my mind make the continuance of the System objectionable.

"Q. 114. (Mr. Kinnaird). You have stated that there are some twenty or thirty Consuls who do not avail themselves of the system of Agency; are you aware whether there has been any difficulty or obstacle in the payment of their salaries?—A. Not the least in the world."

Evidence before
Committee on Diplomatic Service.

"Q. (Chairman). Have you ever heard any complaints as to any indirect influence which these Agents in the Foreign Office exercise in favour of persons who might be considered as their clients?—A. No, I never heard any complaints of that kind.

"Q. 610. You do not believe there has ever been any ground for a suspicion of that kind?—A. Not that I am aware of."

Fifthly.—Anticipated inconvenience to the Office from visits of private Agents not connected with it.

Evidence before
Committee on
Consular Service.

"Q. 122 (Viscount Palmerston). Would there not be some inconvenience in the multiplicity or frequency of visits to the Office of persons who do not belong to the Office?—A. I should be sorry to bring many such people about the Office till we have a better building."

" Q. 144 (Mr. Wilson). You have named several important objects which these Agencies serve in a public point of view; supposing it were thought necessary, as it has been a matter very much discussed of late years, to abolish the Agencies in the Foreign Office, what system would you propose to introduce to serve those particular objects which you have described?—A. What I should wish to have done would be, that the Passport Clerks should receive the letters and forward the letters, for it is often undesirable, especially in the case of our Ministers, to let their private letters go through the post; I should not like to have out-of-door people coming to make inquiries as to opportunities for forwarding such letters; and yet a Minister might complain that his letters were not sent to him by all suitable opportunities. All such matters are better kept to ourselves."

" Q. 150 (Viscount Palmerston). Would there not be much inconvenience to the Office from the interruption arising from the visits of private Agents, coming under the pretence of obtaining information, and doing things connected with their duty towards the Consul for whom they were Agents?—A. It would be an intolerable nuisance."

" Q. 151. Would not those visits give to persons who did not belong to the Office opportunities for picking up information, which they might make a bad use of afterwards?—A. Of course; they might come into a room where papers are collected; they might hear conversations passing, and great inconvenience to the Public Service might result."

" Q. 152. Might it not give to those Agents the power of pretending to have information which they did not really possess, and of turning that pretended information also to a bad use?—A. Certainly."

" Q. 162 (Mr. Lindsay). Lord Palmerston asked you a question in reply to which you said that if other parties not Clerks in the Foreign Office were appointed to receive the salaries and act as Agents for the Consuls, you thought they might have opportunities for obtaining information unduly by coming into the Office; how could they obtain such information as that? I understand you to say that the duty of the Agent would be principally to collect the salary of his client?—A. An Agent might go in to one of the rooms to ask for a Consul's life certificate or make some inquiry on behalf of a Consul or Minister. He might be an amusing man, and he might come and talk in the Office, or he might come into the Department when they were reading an important political despatch, the reading of which would be stopped and business interrupted; or if not, the man might gain information of something that was passing which it might not be desirable that he should know; he might come in at all hours, when there were no Clerks in the room and papers were lying about. It is always a bad thing to have strangers walking about your room when papers are about."

" Q. 163. Would it not be in the power of the head of the Department to put a stop to that?—A. The head of the Department may be in another part of the Office."

" Q. 164. Would not he lay down regulations upon which those persons would have to act?—A. It is very difficult to carry out those arrangements. You may lay down a thing on paper and give all sorts of positive directions, but you could not get them kept; people would wander about the Office."

" Q. 165. Do you allow strangers to come into the Foreign Office, and allow them to walk about the Office?—A. They do come in; they may have some business there; they often mistake the door and come in at my door. It is very difficult in a public office to make those arrangements; a man asks for such and such a person: you cannot take the man through the office, especially in such a building as the Foreign Office now is."

Sixthly.—Objections to the Government undertaking the Agency for Ministers and Consuls abroad.

" Q. 124. (Mr. Wise). Why should not there be a Clerk especially appointed for these Agencies, so that they should be arranged in an office for the benefit of the whole body, and so that communications might be addressed to this single officer, who could exercise and transact the whole of the business connected with the Agency Department?—A. The only objection would be that the Government would in that case make themselves responsible for the person entrusted with the duty, and it would render it obligatory upon the Consul to have transactions with the person whom the Government chose."

" Q. 125. Do not you think that a Consul ought to be secured his salary?—Q. The Consul takes care of his own interests; the Consul may draw it how he likes; but I think it would be a mischievous thing to make the Secretary of State responsible for the proper conduct of the Consul's Agent."

" Q. 126. Do not you think that service in foreign parts is different to that at home, and that a servant abroad should be more looked after?—A. I think a man can look after his own pecuniary interests best.

Evidence before
Committee on

“Q. 127. Do not you think that the Government are more or less morally responsible for the conduct of their Clerks in a great Public Department like the Foreign Office?—A. If anything went wrong in the case of an Agent, we should not be responsible, but we should take notice of it. But that is a very different thing from telling a man you must entrust your money to such a man.”

Seventhly.—Any Clerk in the Office is at liberty to act as Agent.

Evidence before
Committee on Diplomatic Service.

“Q. 94 (Mr. Wise). Will you state to the Committee any facts as to the system pursued in reference to Consuls appointing Agents?—A. The system pursued is that the Consul on his nomination selects any person in the Office whom he chooses. There are a certain number in the Office who do not act as Agents; anybody in the Office may do it.”

“Q. 101. Is the permission to act as Agent thrown open, or only to a part of the Clerks?—A. To anybody; it is practically limited to a few, but theoretically anybody might set up an Agency if he liked.”

“Q. 118 (Chairman). How does it appear that these Agencies are concentrated so much in one or two individuals?—A. I think there are about six or seven; I do not know exactly the number, but I think there are six different Agency Establishments in the Office.”

“Q. 172 (Mr. Lindsay). To which Clerks is the Agency business considered to appertain?—A. To the aggregate body of the Clerks of the Foreign Office; every one might set up an Agency, but some do not like it, and do not choose to do it.”

Evidence before
Committee on Diplomatic Service.

“Q. 614 (Mr. Layard). Can all the Clerks in the Foreign Office become Agents?—A. They all may, if they choose.

“Q. 615. And not the Heads of Departments only?—A. No, all of them in differently.”

The above evidence seems to have made a strong impression upon the Members of the two Committees before whom it was delivered, and that impression was, doubtless, confirmed and strengthened by the evidence of those Diplomatic and Consular Officers who were questioned upon the subject of the Agency system, one of whom, Lord Wodehouse, had previously held the appointment of Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. The following is the evidence thus given before those Committees:—

Evidence of LORD WODEHOUSE.

Evidence before
Committee on
Consular Service.

“Q. 893. Did you employ a Clerk at the Foreign Office as your Agent?—A. Yes.

“Q. 894. Did you pay him a per-centage?—A. Yes; the usual per-centage.

“Q. 895. Do you think that that is a good and convenient system?—A. I think that it is a great convenience to a Minister abroad, because a Clerk in the Foreign Office is able to transact his business more easily than any other person he could employ.

“Q. 896. You would not suggest that any other alterations should be made in that respect?—A. No.

Evidence of SIR A. BUCHANAN.

“Q. 1222. You have, I suppose, paid the usual charges to a Clerk in the Foreign Office for receiving you salary?—A. Yes.

“Q. 1223. Is that, in your opinion, a good arrangement?—A. I do not think that it is objectionable.”

Evidence of THE RIGHT HONOURABLE HENRY ELLIOT.

“Q. 1528. Have you had an Agent at the Foreign Office?—A. Yes.

“Q. 1529. Have you found that arrangement a necessary or convenient one?—A. I have found it decidedly convenient.

“Q. 1530. Have you found any special convenience to result from that system which could not be equally enjoyed by the employment of an Agent not connected with the Office?—A. Yes. I think there are many conveniences in it; for there are many things that we wish to be done for us that our Agent executes in a way that would be rather difficult to have done by anybody out of the Office.

" Q. 1531. Are you aware of any suspicion in the Service of any undue influence being used in consequence of those Agencies?—A. No; I never heard of anything or of any suspicion of the kind.

" Q. 1532. Do you know instances of Diplomatic friends of your own who have not Agents in the Foreign Office?—A. I have heard that there was one person who had not got an Agent at the Foreign Office; but I know of none now in the Diplomatic Service.

" Q. 1533. Do you think that indirectly a man would suffer in his profession from his being an exception to the rule?—A. No; I do not think that would affect him in the least."

Evidence of Mr. R. A. EARLE.

" Q. 2102. Had you, when you were Paid Attaché, a Clerk in the Foreign Office as Agent?—A. Yes; I was Paid Attaché for a very short time; but I had an Agent all the time I was employed abroad. An Unpaid Attaché appoints an Agent, but, in this case, his services are gratuitous. The Unpaid Attachés have their Agents as much as the Paid Attachés; every one appoints an Agent.

" Q. 2103. Are there any complaints of the charges made by the Clerks in the Foreign Office?—A. I never heard of any: the only thing I have heard complained of was the delay in the payment of the salaries; but I am not sure that they are responsible for that inconvenience, which often arises from circumstances concerning the receipt of the certificate of residence. Before drawing his salary, every Diplomatic Servant is required to write a despatch, stating the number of days, during the expired quarter, that he has passed away from his post. When the capital of his residence is distant, many days may elapse before the certificate can reach the Foreign Office, and the consequent formalities can be accomplished.

" Q. 2104. There is only a charge of 1 per cent. made by an Agent in the Foreign Office?—A. Yes. I do not think they ever receive less than 5*l.*, but all considerable salaries are charged for Agency at the rate of 1 per cent.

" Q. 2105. Whatever the salary of a Paid Attaché may be, he pays 5*l.* to the Clerk in the Foreign Office?—A. Yes.

" Q. 2106. Have you ever heard that complained of?—A. No.

" Q. 2107. Do the Unpaid Attachés pay the same?—A. No; they pay nothing.

" Q. 2108. Do you think it is convenient to the Attachés to have such an Agent in the Foreign Office?—A. I really think it is."

Evidence of Mr. SIDNEY LOCOCK.

" Q. 3270 (Mr. Hankey). Have you experienced any inconvenience from the system of Agency which exists at the Foreign Office?—A. No inconvenience, with the exception that the Agent has so much a year for his trouble.

" Q. 3271. Do you think that the system of Agency, so far as the Diplomatic Service is concerned, works satisfactorily for the Diplomatic Body?—A. I think that, as far as it works, it is quite satisfactory.

" Q. 3272. You do not complain of having to pay, nor do you think that others complain of having to pay, 1 per cent. upon their salaries to the Agents at the Foreign Office for doing work for them?—A. Of course, it would be more agreeable not to have to pay it.

" Q. 3273. Could you get the same work that is done for you at the Foreign Office performed for you, without any such payment, through your ordinary London Agent?—A. No, I think not; because one of the chief duties of the Agent is to forward to us our letters. Of course, a banker could receive our salary, but the Agent in the Foreign Office has to forward us our letters, to send us any little parcel, and to look after our interests generally, in a way that a banker could not do; and it requires some one in the Foreign Office.

" Q. 3274. Do you think that the Agent has any influence in forwarding the interests of those whose business he specially transacts at the Foreign Office?—A. He is generally understood to have some little influence.

" Q. 3275. Do you believe that it is so?—A. To a certain extent; in obtaining an exchange, for instance. If a man wishes to exchange with another (I do not mean with regard to promotion); but if a man wishes to effect an exchange, he writes to his Agent, and asks his Agent to find out whether there is any other man in the Service who is willing to exchange with him; and if there is, all that is required then, to effect the exchange, is the consent of the Foreign Office.

"Q. 3276. Do you not think that you would have the same right to make that communication through the Under-Secretary of State without the intervention of an Agent?—A. I think that the Under-Secretary of State, would probably be too busy to make the inquiry whether a man here or a man there was willing to exchange with you.

"Q. 3277. Do you think that your chances of promotion, or such changes as you might consider would be advantageous to you, would be damaged if you did not employ an Agent in the Foreign Office?—A. The chances of promotion would certainly not be damaged if the whole system were swept away, but it might sometimes be more difficult to effect an exchange."

Evidence of the HON. JULIAN FANE.

"Q. 2374 (Mr. Hankey). Have you ever found any inconvenience arise from the system of Agencies as it exists at the Foreign Office?—A. No; it is an anomalous proceeding altogether: the inconvenience is, that one's pay is docked so much per cent.; but I must say that I have found the convenience of it very great in this way. You have an Agent there who receives your account, and pays it into your banker, with the proper deduction for income tax; he considers that for the profit he gains for what he does for you, he is more or less your representative in the Foreign Office, and constantly when you want things done, which it would be perhaps inconvenient to ask for officially, you may have them done through him. Perhaps you want books and papers sent out to you, and you apply to the Agent, who immediately brings the case before the Under-Secretary. There is a great deal of business that he does which I should be sorry to lose the benefit of.

"Q. 3375. Do you think that you get an equivalent for the 1 per cent. that you pay to the Agent?—A. Yes; but I think that the matter rests entirely upon a man's personal opinion. If I were asked this question: do you think that for the proportion of your salary which is deducted by the Agent, you get an equivalent in work done by the Agent, I should say, yes; and I am willing to pay him that proportion for the work he does for me; but there may be persons in the Diplomatic Service who think otherwise.

"Q. 3376. Do you think that you would suffer, or that the other Members of the Diplomatic Service would suffer, if they had not an Agent at the Foreign Office, and therefore were without some person to look after their promotion a little, and to any exchanges that they might wish to make?—A. As far as my experience has gone, that is a matter with which the Agent has nothing whatever to do; he merely acts in doing business for you, which it is for your personal convenience should be done at the Foreign Office. You immediately write to him to supply any little omissions which may take place; perhaps there is a Blue Book that you wish for, and you write to him immediately for it, and he sees that it is sent out to you; and there are many things besides of that sort that an Agent does which, I confess, I am very willing to pay for.

"Q. 3377 (Sir Minto Farquhar). In any case it is perfectly voluntary, is it not, to have an Agent or not?—A. Perfectly; I have always understood so.

"Q. 3378. Have you ever known cases where there has been a suspicion of any undue influence being exercised by an Agent in favour of his client?—A. Never.

"Q. 3389 (Mr. Hankey). Do you know what amount per cent. you pay to the Agent at the Foreign Office?—A. I cannot say that I have ever been able to discover quite what it is; but it is something I think, a little above 1 per cent.

"Q. 3390. Is there any regular scale upon which it is based?—A. Yes, there is; but I confess that I have not ascertained what it is.

"Q. 3391. Do you receive a quarterly account from your Agent?—A. Yes.

"Q. 3392. Does he make a deduction from your salary?—A. He deducts a very small sum. I have very often tried to ascertain what proportion it was of the sum paid, but I have never been able to hit upon the exact sum; it always seemed to me to be a little more than 1 per cent.

"Q. 3393 (Chairman). Is there any other point that you wish to mention?—A. No."

Evidence of CONSUL-GENERAL LONGWORTH.

"Q. 3092 (Sir Minto Farquhar). Have you an Agent in the Foreign Office?—A. I have.

"Q. 3093. What fee do you pay him?—A. It is a trifle, a very small per-centage, but I have never found any inconvenience from the practice; the service he renders is more than adequate to the fee I pay.

"Q. 3094. It being optional with you to have an Agent at the Foreign Office or not, you consider it more convenient that you should have that Agent, and you are not influenced by any feeling that you ought to have one there?—A. I conceive there is no obligation to employ one.

“Q. 3095. You employ an Agent because you prefer to do so, and find it an advantage?—A. Decidedly.

“Q. 3096. It is an advantage that the Consular and Diplomatic servants should be brought into personal communication with the gentlemen employed at the Foreign Office?—A. Decidedly.

“Q. 3097. That interchange of communication which is carried on, both while you are at your Consulate and when you come home, makes you better known to one another?—A. Certainly; it facilitates the intercourse between the Consul and the Foreign Office. The Consul may have doubts upon particular matters, and there may be misconceptions which the Agent may understand and more easily remove.

“Q. 3098. Upon trifling points?—A. Yes. If the Consul is inexperienced, on his first appointment, on matters of routine duty, he derives valuable information from his Agent.

“Q. 3099. So that you think Consuls have no reason to complain with regard to the system of Agency at the Foreign Office?—A. None at all; on the contrary, I think it is a great convenience to them.”

Evidence of CONSUL W. P. MARK.

“Q. 4044. Do you employ an Agent at the Foreign Office?—A. Yes.

“Q. 4045. Do you approve of that system, or do you think you would be better without it?—A. My father had no Agent in the Foreign Office; having been in the Navy, he had a Navy Agent. When I was appointed, I appointed an Agent at the Foreign Office, as I happened not to have any. I consider I should pay the same to any other Agent that I do to the Agent in the Foreign Office, and I do not think there is any disadvantage arises, as far as I am concerned, from the Agency in the Foreign Office; I, of course, have to pay my commission the same as anybody else.”

Evidence of CONSUL-GENERAL WARD.

“Q. 4265 (Mr. Gregory). Do you employ an Agent at the Foreign Office?—A. Yes.

“Q. 4266. Do you find any inconvenience to arise from that system, or do you think it at all an unfair tax?—A. I find it a very great convenience to me. I approve of the system very much, I am at liberty to employ an Agent or not. I do it voluntarily.

“Q. 4267 (Mr. Kinnaird). You consider that the public service is benefited by it as well as the Consul?—A. I consider the Consul is benefited by being allowed to do so if he chooses; but I would not force any man to do it.”

Evidence of CONSUL FEATHERSTONHAUGH.

“Q. 5215 (Sir Minto Farquhar). Have you an Agent at the Foreign Office?—A. Yes; I have.

“Q. 5216. Do you object to that system of Agency at the Foreign Office?—A. Mr. James Murray has always been my Agent, and I am more obliged to him for the information and advice that he has given me upon particular occasions than I can really express. I have the highest opinion of him, and think that with ten guineas a-year he is but indifferently paid.

“Q. 5217. Then your opinion is that the system of Agencies is acting satisfactorily to the Consular Body?—A. Quite so.

“Q. 5218. You think it an advantage that you should have those personal communications with the Agents, whether by letter or in propria persona?—A. I should be embarrassed if I had not Mr. Murray; he is an honourable and useful man.

“Q. 5219. As a system, you approve of Agency?—A. Quite so. I believe that all the gentlemen at the Foreign Office who act as Agents are highly appreciated by the Consuls.”

Evidence of CONSUL BERNAL.

“Q. 5744 (Mr. Lindsay). Have you an Agent who acts for you at the Foreign Office?—A. Yes.

“Q. 5745. As you appear to have given great attention to the Consular system altogether, perhaps you will state what is your opinion with regard to the system of Foreign Office Agencies; what does the Agent at the Foreign Office do for you?—A.

The Agent at the Foreign Office does this for me: he receives my salary, and he pays it into my bankers for me; anybody who does not exactly know my address sends letters for me to his care, and in a similar case I send letters to his care; and if I want any little question cleared up as to the best means of doing anything connected with my business on which I do not want to trouble the Office formally, then I write to him and ask him what he would advise me to do. If you will allow me to say so, I look upon the question of the Agencies as a private affair between A and B, with which a third person, C, has really no right to interfere; I look upon it as a private arrangement, because it is not obligatory upon us. I must confess it brings one more into communication with the Foreign Office; if I had no Agent I do not suppose I should put my foot in the Foreign Office while I was in England.

"Q. 5746. Do you pay your Agent a commission, or a fixed amount?—A. A fixed amount.

"Q. 5747. You think it is a great convenience to you to have an Agent in the Foreign Office?—A. Certainly; if I did not think so, I should tell him I had no longer any occasion for his services.

"Q. 5748. Could not any other Agent collect your salary?—A. He could; we are not obliged to choose an Agent in the Foreign Office.

"Q. 5749. Could not any one wishing to know your address ascertain it by simply inquiring at the Foreign Office?—A. No doubt he could, but I really cannot positively see the shadow of any objection to the system; as I said before, I look upon it entirely as a matter of private arrangement between myself and my friend in the Foreign Office.

"Q. 5750. It is much to your convenience to have an Agent at the Foreign Office, you think?—A. Decidedly to my convenience.

"Q. 5751. Not so much on account of receiving your salary and giving information, as of the private correspondence which you find it necessary to maintain at different times?—A. A variety of things from time to time occur in which my Agent helps me.

"Q. 5752. Does that private correspondence relate to public matters?—A. Never; sometimes a point occurs which I am not quite certain about, and I then say, 'What would you advise me to do; shall I address an official letter?' But they are nothing of any importance; they are mere trifling matters.

"Q. 5753. Then in fact the Agent at the Foreign Office acts in some respects as your friend?—A. As a private friend.

"Q. 5754. Does he advise you as to any changes that are about to take place in the Service?—A. Never: I can only speak for my own Agent; he has never advised me of any changes either having taken place, or likely to take place.

"Q. 5755. In what way does he act as your friend?—A. It is really in matters of a trifling nature; sometimes to send me out a Foreign Office List, and on one occasion, none of my family being in town, and wanting a prescription made up, I wrote to my Agent requesting that he would send it out to me.

"Q. 5756. Could not any other friend out of the Foreign Office have done those matters quite as well as a friend in the Foreign Office?—A. Most decidedly; but I choose to select him as my Agent in a private matter.

"Q. 5757 (Mr. Kinnaird). Have you ever known any evil to arise from the employment of such Agents in the Foreign Office?—A. I never hear of any, and I do not see how any could arise.

"Q. 5758. You consider it entirely a private matter between yourself and your Agent?—A. Entirely.

"Q. 5759. Do you find that the Public Service may sometimes benefit by those friendships subsisting between the Consuls and the Foreign Office?—A. I think so; if I had not an Agent, I should never put my foot into the Foreign Office while in England.

"Q. 5760. You think yourself that the system of Agency is rather to the benefit of the Public Service than otherwise?—A. I see certainly some benefit in it, and I see no disadvantage.

"Q. 5761 (Mr. Lindsay). You see no disadvantage to the Public Service?—A. Certainly not.

"Q. 5762 (Mr. Wise). You cannot conceive the possibility of any Clerk in the Foreign Office, who may be an Agent, having the power or being presumptuous enough to attempt to prejudice the interest of his client with the Secretary of State or the Under-Secretary?—A. I should consider it absolutely absurd if he were to attempt it, and that my interests would be damaged by his trying to do so."

Lord John Russell (his Lordship being at that time Foreign Minister) was also examined before the Select Committee on the Diplomatic Service.

Evidence of LORD JOHN RUSSELL.

Q. 3435 (Chairman). There has frequently been a question before this Committee with regard to the effect of persons in the Foreign Office being allowed to act as Agents for members of the Diplomatic Body; has your Lordship found any practical inconvenience to result from the occupation of the time of the Clerks in the Foreign Office, upon matters which are considered essentially private?—A. No; I cannot say that I have found any inconvenience result from that.

“Q. 3436. Your Lordship has no reason to believe that this business takes up so much of the time of any of the Clerks as to diminish their efficiency in the Foreign Office?—A. No; I should say that I have always found the duties of the Clerks in the Foreign Office, and the duties of the Foreign Office generally, exceedingly well performed. There are certain hours at which they attend; if it is necessary, or there is an urgent press of business, they must attend at other hours: but I never found that this Agency, or any of their private affairs, interfered with the performance of the public duties of the Office, which I consider, as I have already said, exceedingly well discharged.”

The Agents may mention, as an additional proof of how thoroughly the Agency question has been investigated (although it may not be necessary here to quote the Evidence in extenso), that one of their number was under examination for two days in 1858 before the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the Consular Service, and that the late Chief Clerk of the Foreign Office was also examined on the same subject before the Select Committee on the Diplomatic Service in 1861.

It may further be permitted to the Agents to refer to the action taken by those two Committees subsequently to the evidence on the Agency question being laid before them.

When the Draft Report upon the Consular Service was under the consideration of the Select Committee of 1858, one Member (Mr. Lindsay) moved the insertion of a clause in condemnation of the Agency system, but the Blue Book states that the motion was negatived without a division, and no reference whatever was consequently made to the system, condemnatory or otherwise, in the final Report.

The feeling which pervaded the Select Committee on the Diplomatic Service of 1861 may be gathered from the questions put by the Chairman, and the course taken by the Committee. Had not the subject, the Chairman inquired of one witness, been very fully gone into before the Committee on the Consular Service? And was the witness aware whether there was anything in the Report of that Committee showing that the general opinion of the Committee was condemnatory of the system? These questions being answered satisfactorily, the Committee proceeded to the consideration of other matters.

Now each of these Committees comprised statesmen from both sides of the House, as well as members distinguished in law, in literature, in commerce, and in diplomacy. On both occasions the doors of the Committee-room were open, the discussions were full, the opportunities for investigation ample. Witnesses were freely examined, searching questions were put, objections were invited, alterations were suggested. The supposed incompatibility of the system with the canons of modern official practice, its assumed interference with the ordinary work of the Office, the abuses it might generate, the jealousies to which it might give rise—these and other objections were freely advanced, and would seem in the judgment of the Committee to have been fully and fairly answered; the system was shown to be sound in practice and irreproachable in its conduct, and a due regard for the comfort and convenience of the members of Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Services required that it should be maintained.

As further evidence that this was the general feeling, the Undersigned request permission to call Lord Stanley's attention to what passed on this subject in the House of Commons on the 8th of July, 1861, after the Diplomatic Committee had closed their inquiry, but before they had issued their Report. On that occasion, Lord Palmerston, Lord Russell, and Mr. Monckton Milnes, Chairman of the Committee, severally expressed their approval of the Agency system; Lord Palmerston and Mr. Monckton Milnes avowing that the doubts which they had entertained at one time with regard to the system had yielded upon investigation to a conviction of its convenience and propriety. This testimony, which the Agents submit, tells most forcibly in favour of the Agency system, and which, taken in conjunction with the course pursued by the two Select Committees of the House of Commons, may fairly be regarded as having given to it a Parliamentary sanction, will be found printed in extenso in the Appendix. It will not escape observation how close is the parallel between the course adopted on this question in 1786-95 and that taken in 1858-61; with this distinction, however, that in the one case the sanction was given by the Government, whereas in the other case it emanated from the House of Commons.

The Agents had proposed to themselves to offer a few observations with respect to the practical value of the system to the Office and to the Service abroad, but although prepared to do so, on consideration they believe it will be a more becoming course that they should content themselves with referring to what has been so clearly and ably stated on this point by others; for such evidence given by persons high in office, who were well qualified to form a correct opinion, and who could not be supposed to be in any way prejudiced or influenced by any other motive than that of a desire to promote the public good, hardly need be strengthened by any additional arguments which the Agents might bring forward.

They would, however, request permission to add, that, in their capacity of Agents, they frequently transact duties which prevent the Secretary of State from being unnecessarily troubled about minor details which appertain to the Duties of Diplomatic and Consular Agents abroad, and which no one but an Agent in the Office could, from the nature of the case, perform in a manner which would be equally satisfactory to the Secretary of State. Much official correspondence is thereby prevented.

After the evidence which has been quoted above, it may hardly be necessary for the Agents to assure Lord Stanley that they have at no time claimed a monopoly in the Agency business, which is open to all the Clerks alike; and that it is entirely optional with a Minister or Consul whether he shall or shall not have an Agent in the Foreign Office. Instances on the one hand, are not unfrequent in which persons holding appointments abroad, and commencing their official career without a Foreign Office Agent, have subsequently found it for their convenience to employ one; and, on the other hand, there have been cases in which, in the exercise of his discretion, either a Client has ceased to avail himself of the services of the Agent, or the Agent has of his own accord terminated his relations with his Client.

These breaks in the chain of Agency serve sufficiently to prove that the connection, when it exists, is a voluntary one, and that there is entire liberty of action in this matter between the Home and the Foreign Services.

The Agents may further instance the case of members of the Diplomatic Service transferred from European or other posts, and subsequently employed in China and Japan. The salaries in those countries being drawn from the Treasury Chest at Hong Kong, the payment of Agency commission ceases as soon as the client proceeds to one or the other of these countries; but the services of the Agent are, as a matter of course, continued to him gratuitously.

Again, some of the Consuls in China, though regularly paid from Hong Kong, and consequently still less than others under any obligation to employ an Agent, have, nevertheless, found it for their convenience to be in relations with some one in the Foreign Office who should take charge of their letters and perform other friendly services for them.

Other cases have occurred in which unsalaried Consuls or Attachés have availed themselves of the services of the Agent for a period of many years, when the connection has ended as it commenced, with being entirely unremunerative to the Agent.

On all such occasions the gratuitous services of the Agents, when sought, have been readily and cheerfully accorded.

It seems scarcely necessary for the Agents to observe that the relations between Agent and Client have had no undue influence upon the official prospects or fortunes of the Minister or Consul concerned. The Clerks respectfully disclaim all such powers and attributes as this idea would seem to invest them with; their duty is not to originate, but to carry out the orders of their official superiors, and Lord Stanley, who has had experience of the Office both as Secretary of State and as Under-Secretary, is well aware that the entire control and direction of affairs rests with the Secretary of State, and with the Under Secretaries acting under his orders.

The Agents have it at heart to establish beyond the possibility of contradiction that their Agency business has not been allowed in any way to interfere with their official duties. The evidence on this particular point is, the Agents submit, clear and decisive, and the opinions already quoted of two such experienced Ministers as Lord Palmerston and Earl Russell have, of course, an especial value. With this specific object in view, it may, perhaps, be allowed to the Agents to place on record what those Ministers, as well as other distinguished statesmen who have held the seals of the Foreign Office, have on various occasions said as to the way in which the business of the Office is conducted.

Lord Palmerston, on the 19th of November, 1834, requested Lord Fordwich to explain how much he regretted that he had been prevented from having any personal communication with the Clerks before he quitted it; his Lordship said :—

“I regret this circumstance, for I should have wished to have thanked them for the able assistance which they have afforded me in the performance of the important duties with which I have been charged, and to have expressed my sense of the indefatigable zeal and unwearied cheerfulness with which they have, during the last four years, gone through the unusual labour and submitted to the excessive confinement arising out of the extraordinary pressure of public business. Pray be kind enough to help me to repair this involuntary omission, by conveying to the gentlemen of the Foreign Office this expression of my acknowledgment and thanks.

(Signed) “PALMERSTON.”

At a later period Lord Palmerston did not see any reason to modify or change the favourable opinion above expressed; what his Lordship said in 1837, has been stated in the earlier pages of this paper; and on quitting office in December 1851, he wrote to Mr. Conyngham as follows :—

“I can assure you that I feel great regret at finding myself separated from my fellow-labourers in the Foreign Office, to whose assistance I have been so much indebted for the success which has attended our united exertions; and whose ability, intelligence, industry and zeal, have made the Foreign Office a model Department.

(Signed) “PALMERSTON.”

On resigning the Seals of the Foreign Office, in 1858, Lord Clarendon issued the following Minute :—

“It was my intention to have taken leave to-day individually of the gentlemen of the Office; but as this was rendered impossible by the pressure of business, I must request Mr. Hammond to bid them farewell in my name, to express to them the high sense I entertain of the talent and ability by which, as a body, they are distinguished, and to assure them that I shall hold in grateful remembrance the zeal with which their arduous duties have been performed during the five years that I have been at the head of the Department. I shall always take an interest in their welfare; and it is a source of great satisfaction to me that, while I was Secretary of State, arrangements were made by which the position and prospects of the Clerks in the Foreign Office have been improved.

(Signed) “CLARENDON.”

“To Mr. Under-Secretary Hammond and the Gentlemen of the Foreign Office.

“I cannot part with you for the second time in my official capacity without sincerely thanking you for the continued assistance you have rendered me during my tenure of, perhaps, the most arduous post under the Crown. My former experience of the laudable esprit de corps which pervades you all ensured me the aid which you know to be indispensable to the creditable conduct of a great Public Department, and I feel assured that for your own sakes you will always afford it to every Minister equally; but I must be allowed further to notice with gratitude the spontaneous and obliging manner in which that aid has been rendered by all with whom the duties of the time may have brought me into personal connection. It has displayed a sentiment of personal regard and respect which I can never forget, and which I earnestly assure you is sincerely returned by

“Your faithful Servant,
(Signed) “MALMESBURY.”

Lord Russell in 1865 expressed himself as follows :—

“Being about to give up the Seals of the Foreign Office, Lord Russell requests all the members of the Office to accept the expression of his grateful thanks for the energy and goodwill that they have shown, and the zealous and able assistance they have rendered to him during the time that he has had the honour of being Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

"He wishes this Minute to remain in the Foreign Office, and he requests Mr. Hammond to communicate it to his successor.

(Signed) "RUSSELL."

Lastly, Lord Clarendon, on the 6th of July, 1866, on a similar occasion, addressed the following letter to Mr. Hammond :—

"My dear Hammond,

"Grosvenor Crescent, July 6, 1866.

"Will you have the goodness to convey to the Clerks of the Foreign Office my cordial thanks for the assistance they have given me during the time that I have presided over the Department.

"It will be to me a matter of lasting regret that I did not personally become better acquainted with them, and particularly with those gentlemen who have from time to time furnished me with such valuable Memoranda for my information and guidance; but when I was at the Office the pressure of business was so great that I deferred, until it was too late, giving effect to my intentions.

"I have always felt, however, that whoever was at the head of the Foreign Office might well feel proud of his staff, as I am certain that there is no Department in the country where the public business is conducted with the same zeal and completeness, or where confidence is repaid by such perfect integrity and honour.

"Yours, &c.

(Signed) "CLARENDON."

The Undersigned are most anxious that their object in bringing forward the above approvals of successive Secretaries of State may not be misunderstood: They need hardly point out that those observations refer to the Clerks collectively; but when it is borne in mind that in the great majority of cases the Foreign Office Agencies have been conducted by those Clerks who have held onerous and responsible positions in the Office, it is a fair inference that the above expressions of satisfaction could scarcely have been recorded if the Agents had permitted their Agencies in any way to interfere with the proper performance of their official duties.

The Agents beg to be allowed to express their confident hope that should it be determined to abolish the Agencies, notwithstanding all that has been said in favour of the maintenance of the system, their claims to be compensated for the loss they would thereby sustain will be unreservedly recognized.

In justification of the grounds upon which they make this appeal, they beg leave to lay before his Lordship the following statement bearing upon this particular point.

In one of a series of Memoranda on the Agency question, addressed to Lord Palmerston, the late Mr. Backhouse, repeating that no abuse of the Agencies had taken place, or had even been suspected, and that they cost nothing to the public, observed that "if the abolition of them did not lead to the establishment of a paid Agency at the charge of the public, it would at least be attended with expense in satisfying the just claims of the present authorized Agents to Compensation for their loss."

Again, in 1850, Mr. Addington, whose views in favour of the system have been already recorded, in writing to the Treasury on the subject of abolition, observed as follows :—

"But, supposing it were determined to abolish the Agency such as it at present exists, I cannot conceive that there can be two opinions as to the justice of making full Compensation to those who have hitherto carried it on with the sanction of the Secretary of State and of the Government; and I think that the Agents are fairly entitled to have an assurance given them, in a formal manner, that such full Compensation will be made to them before they respectively give in the accounts desired of them of their Agency transactions."

The Treasury did not dispute the soundness of this proposition. In the answer returned to Mr. Addington on the 11th of April, Sir C. Trevelyan said :—

"Sir W. Craig and I feel ourselves at liberty to state that, under any circumstances, we should not recommend any change unless we were satisfied that the parties interested would receive just Compensation for any advantage they now enjoy."

Four years later, viz., on the 20th of March, 1854, Lord Clarendon in the letter to the Treasury, from which an extract has been already given, made his consent to the abolition of the Agencies contingent upon its being effected "with perfect fairness towards individuals and without prejudice to the Public Service." Before any step was taken in that direction, Lord Clarendon felt it to be necessary that the terms of the Compensation to be allowed to the individual holders of Agencies should be clearly and definitively laid down and agreed upon between the Foreign Office and the Treasury; for, his Lordship observed, it would obviously be an injustice towards those gentlemen to abolish a system in which they might justly be considered to have a vested interest derived from long-established usage and official sanction, without having first settled the conditions of such abolition. If, therefore, the Agency system was to be compulsorily abolished on public grounds, the Agents had, in the opinion of Lord Clarendon, an equitable claim to Compensation to the full amount of the loss they would sustain; but, with the view of anticipating any reasonable objection on the part of the Treasury, his Lordship proposed that there should be granted to the Agents a Compensation allowance less by one-fifth than the amount of their actual receipts. Such Compensation Lord Clarendon would consider fair and just, and he therefore recommended it on behalf of the actual holders of Agencies as a necessary condition of any new arrangement.

Lord Clarendon added that whenever the Lords of the Treasury should have informed him that the principle and the conditions of Compensation thus placed before them, namely, the allowance of the amount of each Agent's actual receipts, with a deduction of one-fifth would be admitted, his Lordship would endeavour to make such further arrangements as might be necessary for providing a substitute for the system which it was proposed to discontinue.

The Paper presented on that occasion by the Agents to Lord Clarendon, and in which they express their assent to a deduction of one-fifth in calculating the amount of Compensation, will be found in the Appendix.

Again, in August 1855, the Treasury were informed that Lord Clarendon would be prepared, when the question of Compensation was settled, to make arrangements for the abolition of Agencies, sufficient time being afforded to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants to make their own arrangements for receiving their salaries without the intervention of Agents in the Foreign Office.

It will be observed from the papers just referred to that Sir C. Trevelyan, when giving assurances as the representative of the Treasury, and Lord Clarendon, when writing on behalf of the Foreign Office, made the settlement of Compensation to the Agents a condition precedent to the abolition of the Agencies.

The question of Compensation was also raised before the Select Committee on the Consular Service in 1858, when the following evidence was given by Mr. Hammond on the subject:—

“Q. 105 (Mr. Wise). If the practice were abolished to-morrow there would be no difficulty as regards the Office?—A. If it were abolished to-morrow, I think, considering the length of time these gentlemen have been allowed to practice as Agents, that we should be bound to make Compensation to them on the abolition of the practice. It has been received and admitted at least since 1786 that some of the Clerks should be allowed to act as Agents. There was an objection raised but not acted upon in 1786, but the opinion of the Secretaries of State was pronounced in favour of it in 1795.

“Q. 106. Do not you think that instead of compensation, considering what their duties are, the Government should give them proper salaries?—A. I do not think the Agency business interferes with the duties of the Office, and I think the Clerks are paid sufficiently for the discharge of their public duties, and I do not see any objection to the Agency business, seeing that it is for the mutual accommodation of the parties. If the Clerks manage to do it without interfering with the business of the Office, I do not see any serious objection. If it was decided to abolish the practice, I think that the parties who have been allowed to carry on these Agencies in conformity with a practice of sixty or seventy years' standing would be entitled to a fair amount of Compensation.”

“Q. 138 (Mr. Wilson). The Agency is an institution which you do not recognize in the Department?—A. We recognize it entirely, because the foundation of the whole, as now carried on, are rules of 1816.

“Q. 139. You do not recognize it as involving any responsibility?—A. Not the slightest.

“Q. 148. This matter has been carefully considered, has it not, and it has been considered wise to continue it?—A. It has been considered a very doubtful thing whether the theoretical advantage of abolishing the Agents would not be more than counterbalanced by the practical inconvenience of losing their services; and then comes the pecuniary question, that it would be unfair to deprive those Clerks of their vested interest in this sort of work without adequate Compensation.

“Q. 149. Admitting the principle of Compensation, and that it could be satisfactorily adjusted, would you then be of opinion that the Agents might be made perfectly independent, and that those Agencies could be performed in the Office, separating from them altogether the pecuniary engagements?—A. The mere function of sending the letters of the Consuls could be performed, but we should lose the advantage of the intimacy between the Agent and his clients which exists at present.”

“Q. 170 (Mr. Wise). Will you explain your meaning with regard to the vested interest in the Agencies?—A. They have been allowed to exist time out of mind; it has been a recognized thing since 1786.

“Q. 171. Surely the same gentlemen did not hold the offices then?—A. The Agency business has always been considered to appertain to the Clerks of the Foreign Office.”

Undoubtedly it has always been so considered, and the Undersigned entertain a confident hope that when Lord Stanley takes into account that the Agencies exist under Order in Council, that the system has been supported and approved by the highest authorities, and that it enjoys the sanction derived from Parliamentary and other inquiries, his Lordship will readily admit that the emoluments accruing to the Agents from their Agencies can in no way be held to be derived from any precarious or unrecognized source, and that, consequently, their claim to Compensation, should the Agencies be suppressed, has not been advanced on insufficient grounds.

It may safely be affirmed that to the system of Agency it is in great measure owing that men who in early life have worked at the same desk, and have thus been thrown into habits of social and familiar intercourse, have, in such frequent instances, formed with each other the closest friendships, which neither time nor distance have availed to lessen, for the feeling thus engendered has been sustained by a sense of mutual obligation, and refreshed by the habit of almost uninterrupted communication. In such cases there has been no commission, however confidential,—no service, however varied,—no friendly office, however far removed from the generally accepted ideas of an Agent's duty, which a Foreign Office Clerk, regarding himself as at once the Agent and the friend, has not been ready to perform; and it may fairly be doubted whether such a result could be secured for the members of the Diplomatic and Consular bodies abroad under any other arrangement that might be devised.

As to the paramount considerations which might require that these intimate relations should henceforth cease, that these voluntary associations should be discountenanced, and that the interchange of mutual advantages between the Home and Foreign Services should be foregone, it is not for the Agents to presume to judge; it would under any circumstances be their duty to defer with respect to the decision of the Secretary of State, and not to set themselves up as judges in a cause which is to so great an extent their own; but the Agents may be excused for saying that they cannot contemplate without regret the possibility of the forced cessation of an institution in which they have played so prominent a part, and which, in the opinion of those so well competent to judge, has worked with much advantage to all concerned: and they may also, it is hoped without impropriety, record their humble opinion, that if it has been hitherto found a material benefit for the public service that servants of the Crown employed under the Department abroad should be thus personally known to those in the Foreign Office, it might, if the existing link were broken, possibly be productive of greater inconvenience to individuals, and still more so to the public service, than may now be anticipated.

It is worthy of remark that on all essential points comprised in the inquiry respecting the Agencies, the testimony of witnesses has been uniformly in one direction. Secretaries and Under-Secretaries of State, Ministers and Consuls, Clerks and Attachés, though starting from different points, have all arrived at the same conclusion: And it is a satisfaction to the Agents to be able to say that no charge or insinuation has been advanced against the Agencies which has not been immediately and triumphantly repelled. The Clerks cannot mention the honoured name of Lord Palmerston, nor, amongst living statesmen, those of Lord Russell, Lord Clarendon, Lord Malmesbury, and Lord Houghton, without feeling conscious of the support they derive from the favourable verdict of so many eminent and able men, and they cannot doubt that such testimony will have due weight with Lord Stanley in the ultimate decision of this question.

The Agents have fulfilled their task, and have only to apologize to his Lordship for the length to which their observations have unavoidably extended. To explain the grounds upon which they would rest their claims to Compensation, in the event of the Agencies being abolished, was a duty which they owed to themselves and to others. It is obvious that their domestic arrangements—the scale of their establishments—their life assurances—the course of education of their children—have hitherto been regulated with reference to the emolument which they derive from these Agencies; and to materially diminish their income from that source would necessarily cause the Agents very serious anxiety. They feel assured, however, that no such sacrifice will be required of them, even should it be determined that there now exist considerations of such weight as make it desirable or indispensable that the institution of Foreign Office Agencies should finally cease.

APPENDIX.

House of Commons, Monday, July 8, 1861.

On proposal of Vote for 46,715*l.* to complete the sum for the Foreign Department.

Mr. Lindsay said, there were five or six gentlemen in the Foreign Office—the Chief Clerk and the Senior Clerks—who were receiving from 1,000*l.* to 1,200*l.* a-year each, who were allowed to act as agents for Consuls and persons engaged in the Diplomatic Service abroad, and receive fees for so acting. He considered that such a practice was at variance with the rules laid down for the guidance of the clerks in public offices. This matter had been discussed before the Committee on Consular Services, and he asked Mr. Alston, one of the gentlemen who acted as agent, what he did; and he replied that he drew the salary and took charge of the letters; and on being further questioned he said, “I believe I stand their friend in all things. I endeavour to be so, and do all I can for them.” Now, this might be attended with prejudice to the public service. Suppose that he (Mr. Lindsay) were to complain of a Consul for not having attended to his duty in reference to one of his ships. He brought the matter before the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who referred the question to a clerk in the Department. It might so happen that that clerk might be the agent of the Consul complained of, and of course he would endeavour to put the case in a favourable light for his client before the Secretary for Foreign Affairs. If he did not get a satisfactory explanation he should consider it his duty to move to reduce the vote by 3,000*l.*, which he believed was about the sum these clerks received for these services.

Mr. Monckton Milnes, as Chairman of the Committee that was sitting on the Diplomatic Service, felt himself called upon to make an observation or two on this subject. At first sight it might appear to be inconvenient, and a practice liable to abuse, that the clerks at the Foreign Office should be allowed to act as agents in the way that had been described. Before he took part in the inquiries of the Committee he had formed that opinion; but he came out of the inquiry with a contrary conviction, and with a belief that the custom had sprung up naturally and inevitably out of the relation that subsisted between the Foreign Office and the Diplomatic and Consular services abroad. These services were, in fact, a portion of the Foreign Office, performing its functions all over the world. The gentlemen employed in these services found it convenient to be brought into connection with the Foreign Office by means of some persons connected with it, without the necessity of having to apply to the Foreign Secretary on matters on which the Chief Clerks were in possession of all the information; and he must say he was unable to find that any abuse had ever occurred from the fact of these gentlemen acting as agents for them. The relations, also, between the officials of the Foreign Office were of the most confidential kind, and it would be productive of public inconvenience if strangers were permitted to interfere between the Office and its agents. The question which, in his opinion, the House and the public had to consider was whether any Foreign Minister had ever complained of the system as one that interfered with the right discharge of the duties of clerks in the Foreign Office, and whether it in any way detracted from their usefulness as public servants. So long as no complaint could be made on those heads he thought it would not be right for the House to interfere.

Lord John Russell said, this was a matter upon which evidence had been taken before the Committees on the Diplomatic and Consular Service, and on which they could report if they thought fit. For his own part, he thought there was no public wrong done by the Chief Clerk and the Senior Clerks holding these agencies for our Ministers abroad. Those Ministers sometimes would be glad to receive information for which they could not write to the Secretary of State, and they could not with propriety get some agent out of the Office to go to the Foreign Office and obtain it for them, because the nature of the service in the Foreign Office was of the most confidential kind, and it required that there should not be reports spread abroad as to the changes likely to take place, or leave of absence, or anything of that kind. The Chief and Senior Clerks could give the information privately to the Diplomatic Minister without employing a great deal of time. There were certain hours, and certain duties that must be performed whatever the hours might be, and he could not find that those public duties were neglected in consequence of these agencies; while, on the other hand, he believed the public service was benefited by the arrangement.

Mr. Lindsay said, that at the War Office and Admiralty there was no objection to afford information to agents of officers of the army and navy, and he did not see why there should be objections to an agent visiting the Foreign Office.

Viscount Palmerston could confirm what had been stated by his noble friend (Lord John Russell). He had certainly in the first instance entertained the doubts which had been expressed by his honourable friend (Mr. Lindsay) as to the expediency of the arrangement in question; but inquiry had satisfied him that it was a desirable and proper arrangement to be continued. The Foreign Office was totally different from the Admiralty or the War Office, inasmuch as it had to do with very delicate diplomatic transactions; and if our Ministers and Consuls abroad could appoint persons not in the Office as agents, they must have the run of the Office, and they would thus often obtain a knowledge of facts which, put together by persons out of the Office, might be of very serious inconvenience to the public service by enabling persons to further their own interests in a manner which it was not proper to encourage. He had himself been sometimes engaged in difficult and delicate negotiations upon which foreign Ministers took a different view to that which he himself took; and those persons might consider it of great importance to know when a messenger was going to leave, the hour of the day, or the day of the week. The knowledge of that simple fact might be of great importance for thwarting the object in view. His honourable friend said that the system might lead to favouritism; but from the practice pursued in the Foreign Office he thought that this was not likely. He could assure his honourable friend that this system of agency could not lead to any indulgence to any particular Diplomatic Agent abroad.

Mr. Lindsay said that what he had heard from the two noble Lords had in no way altered his opinion of this arrangement. He made no charge against the honour of these gentlemen, but if they occupied any portion of the time between 10 and 4 o'clock in their correspondence with the Ministers, they were occupying upon their private concerns time for which they were paid by the nation. Why should there not be some person in the Foreign Office, not paid by the Crown, who should do all this business?

Mr. Disraeli thought that the matter was deserving of consideration, and that the honourable member had put it before the Committee clearly and without any partiality; but at the same time he should remember that there was a Committee sitting upon the Diplomatic Service, which Committee had investigated this matter, and were about to report to the House. Probably, under these circumstances, the honourable member would not think it necessary to ask the opinion of the Committee. He must, however, express his regret that the Chairman of that Committee (Mr. M. Milnes) should have thought fit to favour them with the foregone conclusion of the Committee upon this subject; it would have been far better if he had stated that the Committee were still receiving evidence, and, of course, had not concluded their labours.

Mr. Monckton Milnes said, that this was a question which did not necessarily or even naturally come within the purview of the Diplomatic Committee; and therefore he could not accept the reproach of the right honourable gentleman.

Lord John Russell considered he was bound to answer the question put by the honourable member—namely, whether he thought the public lost the salaries or time of the Senior Clerks by these agencies. He had to reply that the public service did not suffer thereby, and he should have left an unfavourable impression if, as suggested by the right honourable gentleman, he had declined to answer the question until the Committee had made their Report.

Vote agreed to.

Memorandum on the Contemplated Abolition of Agencies in the Foreign Office.

THE system of Agency to Her Majesty's Diplomatic Servants and Consuls abroad has been so long in existence with the express sanction of the Secretary of State, and even after repeated investigations by Parliament and by the Treasury, that it is taken for granted on all hands to be impossible to abolish it on grounds connected with the public service, without giving compensation to the present Agents.

The principle of compensation being thus admitted, the point for consideration is reduced to the simple one of the calculations according to which the compensation is to be given.

The Foreign Office Agents are well aware that as Clerks in a Government office they are and must be, in respect even of their private Agencies, entirely in the hands of the Secretary of State to deal with them as he thinks right and proper. But having thus frankly acknowledged their dependent position, and admitting, as they also do, that those Agencies may be somewhat anomalous in their character, they trust that Lord Clarendon will forgive them if they venture to place on record their conviction that the principle of compensation adopted in cases of abolition of office, where the Government is the employer, and the Officer whose situation is to be abolished is the person employed, would be clearly inapplicable to the present case; because, in whatever light these Agencies may be viewed, and by whatever name they may be called, it will be found on investigation that they differ in few material respects from an ordinary profession or business occupation, and ought therefore to be regarded in the nature of private property.

If, therefore, the Agency system in the Foreign Office is to be compulsorily abolished on public grounds, the Agents consider that they have an equitable claim to compensation to the full amount of the loss which they will sustain by that measure, such compensation to be ascertained and fixed either according to the amount of profits actually received during the past year, or according to the amount received on an average of the last two or three years, and to be enjoyed by them as long as they remain in the Office. To this they conceive they have a just title, on the same principle on which compensation is claimed by, and universally held to be due to, any individual whose property in which he has a vested interest, may be taken from him for public purposes by the authority of Parliament.

Lord Clarendon, however, has intimated that he does not think the Agents can fairly claim the full amount of their receipts, as they will be relieved from considerable anxiety and trouble, and the Treasury must to a certain extent be governed by practice; and his Lordship, in illustration of this view, observes that in superannuation cases, the full amount of compensation is rarely, if ever, given for the longest period of service.

Passing by the question as to the relief from anxiety and trouble which the Agents would obtain by the suppression of their Agencies, and with respect to which much might no doubt be said on both sides, the Agents beg respectfully to observe that they are aware that in cases of superannuation it has been the practice of the Treasury, though only of late years, where the services of the individual have not been of a more than ordinary character, to deduct one-fifth from the amount of superannuation allowance which the Law authorizes; and although the Agents conceive that there is no analogy between the case of superannuation granted to a public servant on his retiring from office, and that of compensation given in lieu of a long-established and recognized source of profit of which he is compulsorily deprived, they would, nevertheless, cheerfully acquiesce in the grant of a compensation allowance less by one-fifth than the amount of their actual receipts, if Lord Clarendon, on a full consideration of what they have advanced, should continue of opinion that that deduction ought to be made.

Having thus stated their views in regard to this matter, the Agents place themselves in Lord Clarendon's hands with full confidence in his justice.

Correspondence respecting the Abolition of Foreign Office Agencies.

No. 1.

Mr. Addington to the Secretary to the Treasury.

Sir,

Foreign Office, March 20, 1854.

THE question of dispensing with the system of private Agency in the Foreign Office to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Servants abroad, has been for some time under the consideration of the Earl of Clarendon. It is not that his Lordship thinks that inconvenience has resulted to the public service from that system, which has so long been openly sanctioned by successive Governments, and has unquestionably been productive of great advantage to the Diplomatic and Consular Functionaries. But as this description of extra-official Agency has been discontinued in other Departments of the State, Lord Clarendon is willing to adopt a similar course, provided the abolition of the Foreign Office Agencies can be effected with perfect fairness towards individuals, and without prejudice to the public service.

Before, however, any step is taken in this direction, Lord Clarendon feels it to be necessary that the terms of the compensation to be allowed to the individual holders of Agencies should be clearly and definitively laid down and agreed upon between this Office and the Treasury; for it would obviously be an injustice towards those gentlemen to abolish a system in which they may justly be considered to have a vested interest derived from long-established usage and official sanction, without having first settled the conditions of such abolition.

I am, therefore, directed to request that you will state to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, that Lord Clarendon is of opinion that if the Agency system in the Foreign Office is to be compulsorily abolished on public grounds, the Agents have an equitable claim to compensation to the full amount of the loss which they will sustain by that measure; such compensation to be ascertained and fixed either according to the amount of profits actually received during the past year, or according to the amount received on an average of the last three years, and to be enjoyed by them as long as they remain in the Office. But with the view of anticipating any reasonable objection on the part of the Treasury to the amount of compensation which Lord Clarendon is of opinion should be made to the Foreign Office Agents, his Lordship, upon a full consideration of all the circumstances of the case, has determined to propose for the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, that there should be granted to the Agents a compensation allowance less by one-fifth than the amount of their actual receipts. Such rate of compensation Lord Clarendon would consider fair and just; and he therefore recommends it on behalf of the actual holders of Agencies, as a necessary condition of any new arrangement.

The aggregate amount of the receipts of the different Agents in the Foreign Office during the year 1853, was 3,673*l.* 11*s.* The average of the years 1851-2-3 does not materially differ from that amount, being 3,633*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*

Whenever the Lords of the Treasury shall have informed Lord Clarendon that the principle and the conditions of compensation thus placed before them, namely, the allowance of the amount of each Agent's actual receipts, with a deduction of one-fifth, will be admitted, he will endeavour to make such further arrangements as may be necessary for providing a substitute for the system which it is proposed to discontinue.

I am, &c.

H. U. ADDINGTON.

Mr. Addington to the Secretary to the Treasury.

Sir,

Foreign Office, March 20, 1854.

WITH reference to my other letter of this date, on the subject of the contemplated abolition of the system of Agency in the Foreign Office, to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular functionaries abroad, and with a view to prevent any possible misconception as to the amount upon which compensation to the present Agents would have to be provided in the event of such abolition being carried into effect, I am directed by the Earl of Clarendon to transmit to you a copy of a Memorandum which has been presented to him by the Agents, explaining the grounds upon which they claim that the full amount of their actual receipts should form the basis upon which compensation should be calculated. Lord Clarendon desires me to request that in laying this paper before the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, together with my other letter, you will state to them that his Lordship, having satisfied himself that the statements made by the Agents are correct, entirely concurs in the view of this matter which is taken by them in their Memorandum, and is of opinion that the principle of calculation against which they contend could not, with justice, be adopted.

I am, &c.
(Signed) H. U. ADDINGTON.

Inclosure in No. 2.

Memorandum on the Contemplated Abolition of Foreign Office Agencies.

LORD CLARENDON, with reference to the question of Private Foreign Office Agencies, desires that "the points respecting the per-centage and the sum en gros should be clearly stated."

The Agents presume that Lord Clarendon refers to a scheme of compensation which is known to have been mooted and which would exclude from the amount, in respect of which compensation may be claimed, any amount of Agency charge in excess of 1 per cent. on the salary of the client, and also any amount of Agency charged on the expenses of special Missions, on the ground that such charges are inconsistent with the Regulations of 1816.

Upon this scheme of compensation the Agents beg leave to observe that the assumption that, according to the Regulations of 1816, the charge for Agency was to be confined to 1 per cent. on all salaries and pensions, is not only unsupported by the words of those Regulations, but is directly at variance with the uninterrupted practice both before and since that time.

The clause of the Regulations of 1816 which bears upon this question is as follows:—

"6. The Agent not to be allowed to deduct more than 1 per cent. upon the salaries and outfit of the Ambassadors and Envoys for the service rendered to them, and to charge no per-centage upon the extra disbursements."

It will be seen that the limitation of charge for Agency to 1 per cent. is expressly confined to "Ambassadors and Envoys," and in no way applies to Secretaries of Embassy and Legation, or to Consuls. Indeed, the effect of the 6th clause of the Regulations of 1816 was, not to alter the amount of Agency to be charged upon the salaries even of Ambassadors and Envoys (for, in point of fact, it made no alteration in that respect, 1 per cent. being the amount charged both before and since), but to draw a distinction between the salary and the extra disbursements of Ambassadors and Envoys. The Agency which had always been levied on the salary was by that Regulation approved and sanctioned, while the Agency which had before been charged upon extra disbursements was declared to be thenceforward inadmissible. The question of Agency on salaries, other than those of Ambassadors and Envoys, was altogether untouched by the Regulations of 1816; and with regard to the amount of Agency on such salaries, the Agents continued, after 1816, the same practice which, as can be proved by the Books of Agents of the time, was in force previously and must have been well known to the framers of the Regulations of 1816, namely, charging a fixed annual sum, and not a per-centage. It cannot be supposed that if it had been intended by those Regulations to make so vital a change in the then existing practice with regard to the charge for Agency on salaries other than those of Ambassadors and Envoys as the fixing a maximum of 1 per cent., that intention would not have been clearly and unequivocally expressed, like the change in the existing practice with regard to charging Agency on extra disbursements; but on the contrary, as has been shown, the clause of the Regulations says not a syllable on the subject, and the Agents, some of whom were in the office at the time the Regulations were established, had never heard of such an interpretation being put upon them until it was mooted not long ago. The change made by the Regulations in the practice, before 1816, of charging Agency on extra disbursements, has ever since been rigidly adhered to; and it cannot with any justice be contended that the Agents have violated those Regulations by simply adhering to their previous practice in regard to a point which not only is untouched by the Regulations, but seems to have been designedly excluded from their operation.

The Agents think, therefore, that they have clearly shown that there is no valid ground for the assumption which has been put forward on this point.

Neither is there, in the Regulations of 1816, any foundation for a further assumption which has been advanced, that the expenses of Special Missions should be classed with extra disbursements.

The expenses of Special Missions are not specifically mentioned in the Regulations; and as the charge of 1 per cent. on the amount of such expenses has been sanctioned and allowed by successive Secretaries of State in every instance, without exception, both before and since 1816, the Agents would not have thought it possible that any question could now have been raised as to the charge been duly authorized. The Agency to a Special Mission involves more labour and trouble than the Agency to an ordinary Mission; the expenditure is in its nature analogous to salaries and not to extra disbursements; and the Agents are at a loss to conceive on what ground objection is now for the first time taken to a charge reasonable in itself, and constantly sanctioned by the competent authority.

For these reasons it is submitted that the only basis which can with justice to the Agents be taken for their compensation, is the actual amount of emolument of which they will be compulsorily deprived by a new arrangement adopted with a view to the public service.

No. 3.

Mr. Hammond to the Secretary to the Treasury.

Sir,

Foreign Office, August 10, 1855.

I AM directed by the Earl of Clarendon to request that you will move the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to have the goodness to inform him of the course which they are prepared to take on the recommendation submitted to them in the letters from this office of the 20th of March, 1854, as to the amount of compensation to be made to the Clerks in the Foreign Office acting as Agents to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Servants abroad in the event of their being required, by the abolition of Foreign Office Agencies, to cease to act in that capacity.

Lord Clarendon will be prepared, when the question of compensation is settled, to make arrangements for the abolition of Agencies, though he will require the concurrence of the Board of Treasury for such portion of those arrangements as regard the forwarding the correspondence of Her Majesty's Missions and Consulates: and it will of course be necessary to fix the date at which the abolition is to take effect, so as to afford sufficient time to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Servants to make their own arrangements for receiving their salaries without the intervention of Agents in the Foreign Office.

I am, &c.
(Signed) E. HAMMOND.

No. 4.

Lord Stanley to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury.

My Lords,

Foreign Office, February 17, 1868.

I HAVE the honour to request your Lordship's attention to the letters which were addressed to the Treasury by direction of the Earl of Clarendon on the 20th of March, 1854, and on the 10th of August, 1855, and of which, for convenience of reference, I now inclose copies,* explaining his Lordship's views on the subject of the private Agencies, on account of Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants, which the Clerks in the Foreign Office, in conformity with a practice of very long standing, were allowed to hold, and stating his readiness to abolish the system if adequate compensation were made to the Clerks at that time holding such Agencies in consideration of the losses which they would thereby incur.

The Board of Treasury, as far as I can ascertain, came to no decision at the time on the subject, and the practice has been allowed to continue as before.

The Committee of the House of Commons, which in the years 1858 and 1861 inquired into the Consular and Diplomatic Services, went very fully into the question of these Agencies, but pronounced no opinion upon them in their Reports. However, a reference to the proceedings of the former Committee, in page xxxiv, will show your Lordships that a proposition condemnatory of them was moved by one of the members of the Committee, and negatived without a division.

My attention, since I have held the seals of the Foreign Office, has nevertheless been turned to this matter, in connection with the arrangements for carrying out the provisions of the Exchequer Audit Act of 1836, under which the administration of all the funds required for the service of the Foreign Office both at home and abroad, involving the duties of issue and audit heretofore in a great degree discharged by other Departments, will devolve on this Department; and I have come to the conclusion that, all things considered, a question may arise whether the continuance of the Agency system would be compatible with the altered circumstances arising out of the application of the Act to the Foreign Office.

I need not, I am sure, tell your Lordships that I am not influenced in this opinion by any considerations incompatible with the fullest confidence in the personal honour and uprightness of the Clerks of this Office who may directly or indirectly, now or hereafter, be called upon to discharge any duties connected with the Act; but your Lordships will doubtless agree with me that it is important to forestall cavil and criticism, however misplaced, in regard to public servants whether employed in the Foreign Office or any other Department of the Government.

It is on these grounds, therefore, that I bring before your Lordships at the present time the Earl of Clarendon's letters of 1854 and 1855, and I earnestly request your Lordships to enable me to effect the proposed abolition of the Agency system, by consenting to grant to those Clerks who now hold Agencies liberal compensation, to which I consider they are fully entitled, for the loss to which they will be subjected.

It is right that I should place before your Lordships a Statement which the Agents have drawn up in support of their claims; and I add a Schedule showing the amount of the emoluments they have derived from their Agencies in the last three years.

The abolition of the present system will, as intended by Lord Clarendon, involve the necessity of making some arrangements for enabling Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants to obtain payment of their salaries and allowances which have heretofore been received on their account by their Agents in this Office.

I have consulted, as you will see by the inclosed copy of a circular despatch, Her Majesty's Ministers at the Courts of Europe and in the United States as to the practice observed on this point in the respective countries, and I will hereafter communicate further with your Lordships on the subject; while I shall also have to ask your consent to some arrangement, involving I hope but a very small expenditure,

Circular addressed to Her Majesty's Ministers.

MY attention, since I have held the seals of the Foreign Office, has been turned to the system which has been in operation for a very long period of time, under which the Clerks of this Department have been allowed to act as Agents for Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Servants. But the arrangements in progress for carrying out the provisions of the Exchequer Audit Act of 1866,—which, as regards the Foreign Office, will come into operation on the 1st of April next, and under which the administration of all the funds required for the service of the Department both at home and abroad, involving the duties of Issue and Audit, heretofore in a great degree discharged by other Departments, will devolve on the Foreign Office,—have induced me more particularly at the present time to consider how far the continuance of the Agency System is compatible with the altered circumstances arising out of that Act.

I have now arrived at the conclusion that they are incompatible; and, that being the case, it becomes necessary to ascertain by what means Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Servants abroad can be secured in obtaining, with punctuality, payment of their salaries and allowances as they become due, without the intervention of Agents connected with the Foreign Office, who, with few exceptions, have acted hitherto in their behalf for that purpose.

I have accordingly to instruct you as soon as possible to ascertain and report to me in what manner the Government to which you are accredited, provides for the payment of salaries and allowances due to their Diplomatic and Consular Officers in foreign parts, and whether the payments on this account are made without any charge on the recipients for agency, commission, discount of bills, or otherwise; and if not, what may be the estimated amount of such charges; and further, how soon after the expiration of each quarter such salaries and allowances are actually available for expenditure by the persons to whom they are due.

It is my earnest desire that the abolition of Agency in the Foreign Office, which I consider must be made absolute and complete, if made at all, should be effected with as little inconvenience as may be to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants, who have hitherto availed themselves of it; and I will give my best consideration to any suggestions that you may offer with that view. And under any circumstances sufficient time will be allowed to enable Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Officers to make such arrangements as they may think best to meet the change which I have in my contemplation to effect.

I am, &c.
(Signed) STANLEY.

No. 5.

The Secretary to the Treasury to Mr. Hammond.

Sir,

Treasury Chambers, May 13, 1868.

THE Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury have had before them Lord Stanley's letter of the 17th of February, submitting for the consideration of this Board a proposal for the abolition of the Agencies held by certain Clerks in his Lordship's Department, and for the grant of compensation in respect of such abolition.

I am to request that you will inform Lord Stanley that after full consideration of the subject, my Lords regret that they cannot concur with his Lordship in recognizing the claims of the Foreign Office Agents; and they are not prepared to admit that compensation for the abolition of their Agencies could, with justice, be made a charge upon public funds.

My Lords would, however, suggest whether the preferable course would not be gradually to abolish the Agencies by prohibiting the appointment of any new Agents, and at the same time directing that the present Agents should not undertake any new duties of this nature.

I am, &c.
(Signed) G. SCLATER BOOTH.

Mr. Hammond to the Secretary to the Treasury.

Sir,

Foreign Office, May 16, 1868.

I HAVE laid before Lord Stanley your letter of the 13th instant, stating that after full consideration of the subject the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury regret that they cannot concur with his Lordship in recognizing the claims of the Foreign Office Agents, and are not prepared to admit that compensation for the abolition of these Agencies could, with justice, be made a charge upon public funds.

Lord Stanley desires me to say that he has received this decision with much regret. His Lordship continues to be of opinion that if the Agencies were abolished, compensation would be due to the parties who in pursuance of a system recognized for many years, and sanctioned, with the knowledge of the Board of Treasury, by successive Secretaries of State, have been allowed to carry on the business of Agents to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants.

The suggestions contained in the latter part of your letter for the gradual abolition of Agencies, would, Lord Stanley apprehends, provide a very insufficient and dilatory course for carrying that object into effect.

I am, &c.

Further Papers respecting Foreign Office Agencies.

Memorandum.

THE inability of the Board of Treasury to concur in the views expressed by Lord Stanley in his letter of the 17th of February, in regard to the claim of the Foreign Office Agents to compensation if the system of Agency were abolished, renders it necessary for his Lordship to determine what steps it may be possible now to take with a view to the eventual abolition of that system.

Lord Stanley considers that a system which for more than three-quarters of a century has, after repeated and full inquiry, been sanctioned by successive Secretaries of State, and which was explained in the most complete detail to two Committees of the House of Commons, one of which absolutely refused a proposal for its abolition, while the other did not see occasion to call in question by their Report the propriety of its being maintained, and which, moreover, has been recognized by Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants, almost without exception, as conducive to their convenience and advantage, must be held to have acquired such a degree of admitted permanency as to entitle those Clerks who have been engaged in carrying it on, to look upon it as a recognized source of emolument, and to expect compensation if, on public grounds, it should be decided to put an end to it.

Lord Stanley, on the grounds stated in his letter of the 17th of February, was prepared to have made arrangements for the abolition, at the earliest possible period, of Foreign Office Agents on the one hand, and, on the other, for the convenience of Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants who might be embarrassed by being deprived of the services rendered to them by the Agents as regards the forwarding of their correspondence; but, as matters now stand, he can only lay down rules for the eventual abolition of the existing system of Agencies when the interests which have grown up under it may be extinguished.

For this purpose Lord Stanley has decided—

First. That no Clerk or other person connected with the Foreign Office, except such as are, at the date of this Minute, acting as Agents, shall hereafter, directly or indirectly, undertake to act as such for any of Her Majesty's Diplomatic or Consular servants.

Secondly. That, looking to the possibility of some arrangement being hereafter made for abolishing the Agencies on a grant of compensation, the emoluments derived by an Agent from any person who, after the date of this Minute, shall enter the service and appoint an Agent, shall not be taken into account in estimating the amount of compensation to be granted to an Agent on a general abolition of the system.

Lord Stanley directs that a circular should be sent to Her Majesty's Ministers, informing them, and directing them to inform the members of their respective Missions, that for the reason stated in this Minute, Lord Stanley is precluded from carrying out any part of the arrangements contemplated in his circular of the 18th of December last. Lord Stanley, if the abolition of Agencies had been adopted as a general measure, would have endeavoured, with the concurrence of the Board of Treasury, to provide a substitute for them, so far at least as regards the transmission of the private correspondence of Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular servants under official seal through the Foreign Office; but such a substitute could not be partially applied without serious inconvenience as regards the general arrangements of the office, and could only be adopted as part of a complete measure of abolition. Nevertheless, Lord Stanley thinks it right on this occasion to remind Her Majesty's Diplomatic servants that there is no obligation on them, if otherwise willing to dispense with such services as are usually rendered to them by their Agents, to employ as an Agent a Clerk in the Foreign Office for any purpose whatever, and specifically not for obtaining payment of their salaries or any other allowances, such, for instance, as Extraordinary Disbursements, which may be due to them. Her Majesty's Diplomatic servants may entrust to any person whom they may choose to employ, unconnected with the Foreign Office, their powers of attorney under which moneys becoming due to them may be regularly received, on application at stated periods to the Chief Clerk of the Foreign Office, to whom Her Majesty's Diplomatic servants would only have to send, as now, their life certificates at the expiration of each quarter.

Lord Stanley directs that a copy of this Minute shall be entered in the books of the Office, and a copy sent to each of Her Majesty's Missions, to be recorded and preserved in the archives; and Lord Stanley further directs that a circular founded on it shall be sent to all Her Majesty's Consular servants, for their information and guidance.

(Signed) STANLEY.

Circular addressed to Her Majesty's Representatives abroad.

My Lord,

Sir,

Foreign Office, June 30, 1868.

I INCLOSE a copy of a Minute dated the 24th instant, and also a copy of some papers recently laid before Parliament, explaining the circumstances under which I find myself precluded from giving immediate effect to the intention announced in my circular despatch of the 18th of December last, with regard to Foreign Office Agencies, and recording the arrangements which I have thought it right to make with a view to the gradual instead of the immediate abolition of that system.

In instructing you to communicate the contents of this Minute to the several members of your Mission, I have to remind you, and at the same time to direct you to remind the members of your Mission, that there is no obligation on Her Majesty's Diplomatic servants to employ as an Agent a Clerk in the Foreign Office for any purpose whatsoever; and that the decision whether, during the period that the system of Foreign Office Agencies may remain in force, Her Majesty's Diplomatic servants shall continue to avail themselves of the services, as Agents, of those clerks already acting as such, must rest entirely with them.

I am, &c.

(Signed) STANLEY.

No. 3.

Circular addressed to Her Majesty's Consuls.

Sir,

Foreign Office, June 30, 1868.

YOU are probably aware that Lord Stanley has had under his consideration the propriety of putting an end, as soon as practicable, to the system hitherto in force, by which Clerks in the Foreign Office have been allowed to act as Agents for Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular Servants abroad; and I am now directed by his Lordship to inform you that, after communication with the Treasury, his Lordship has issued a Regulation providing "that no Clerk or other person connected with the Foreign Office, except such as are, at the date of this Minute (June 24, 1868), acting as Agents, shall hereafter, directly or indirectly, undertake to act as such for any of Her Majesty's Diplomatic or Consular Servants."

Under this Regulation the abolition of the system will be gradual instead of being immediate; but in announcing this decision to you, for your information, I am to remind you that there is no obligation on Her Majesty's Consular Servants, if otherwise willing to dispense with such services as are usually rendered to them by their Agents, to employ as an Agent a Clerk in the Foreign Office for any purpose whatever, and specifically not for obtaining payment of their salaries and allowances due to them. Her Majesty's Consular Servants may entrust to any person whom they may choose to employ, unconnected with the Foreign Office, their powers of attorney, under which moneys becoming due to them may be regularly received, on application at stated periods to the Chief Clerk of the Foreign Office, to whom Her Majesty's Consular Servants would only have to send, as now, their life certificates at the expiration of each quarter.

I am, &c.

COPY of TREASURY WARRANT issued under the Act 29 & 30 Vict. c. 62.

After our hearty commendations,

WHEREAS at the time of the passing of the Crown Lands Act, 1866, there was a debt of 300,000 l., owing from the Land Revenue of the Crown to the Consolidated Fund, which debt will become payable in the event of the resumption of the Land Revenue by any of Her Majesty's Successors :

And whereas, pursuant to the 16th section of the said Act, the Arbitration directed by the Acts referred to in the first Schedule to the Crown Lands Act, 1866 has been had, and by the award of James Pennethorne (the Arbitrator appointed for the purpose of such arbitration), dated the 7th day of March 1867, he determined that 20,000 l. should be the compensation to be made to the Land Revenue for the land therein mentioned :

And whereas the said sum of 20,000 l. having, pursuant to the provisions of the Acts mentioned in the first Schedule to the Crown Lands Act, 1866, been deducted from the said debt of 300,000 l., there remains a debt of 280,000 l. due from the Land Revenue of the Crown to the Consolidated Fund :

And whereas the pensions, annuities, or other annual payments mentioned in the Schedule to this Warrant are payable out of the Land Revenue of the Crown :

And whereas by an award, dated the 9th day of June 1868, William Milbourne James, Esquire, one of Her Majesty's Counsel, and Percival Andree Pickering, Esquire, one of Her Majesty's Counsel, being the Arbitrators appointed pursuant to the 14th section of the Crown Lands Act, 1866, determined that the amount of the compensation mentioned in the same section to be paid to the Land Revenue of the Crown for the transfer effected by the said Act of the rights and interests of the Crown in the Foreshore mentioned in the said 14th section, should be the sum of 496,000 l. :

And whereas the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury have determined that the said sum of 496,000 l., being the amount of the said compensation, shall be made good to the Land Revenue of the Crown in the modes hereinafter mentioned :

Now we, being two of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, do by this Warrant under our respective hands, and made and issued pursuant to the 15th section of the Crown Lands Act, 1866, direct that the said sum of

496,000 l., being the amount of the compensation mentioned in the 14th and 15th sections of the Crown Lands Act, 1866, shall be made good to the capital of the Land Revenue of the Crown, partly in one and partly in the other of the following modes; that is to say,—

First.—By the release to the Land Revenue of the Crown of the said debt of 280,000 l., now due therefrom to the Consolidated Fund, and we do hereby release the said Land Revenue from the said debt of 280,000 l. accordingly; and

Secondly.—By the transfer to the Consolidated Fund of the charge for the pensions, annuities, or other annual payments payable out of the Land Revenue of the Crown, which are specified in the Schedule to this Warrant, which is to be taken as part thereof; and we do hereby transfer such charge as aforesaid to the Consolidated Fund accordingly, and do direct that upon the issuing of this warrant the charge for the same pensions, annuities, or other annual payments shall become and is charged on the Consolidated Fund, and that the Land Revenue of the Crown shall become and is discharged therefrom.

For which this shall be a sufficient Warrant. Whitehall, Treasury Chambers, this 30th day of June 1868.

G. G. Montgomery.

R E P O R T

REGISTRAR OF FRIENDLY SOCIETIES IN IRELAND,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING 31 DECEMBER 1867.

(PRESENTED PURSUANT TO ACT 18 & 19 VICT. c. 63, s. 45.)

---

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,

---

REPORT of the REGISTRAR of FRIENDLY SOCIETIES in Ireland, for the Year ending 31st December 1867, pursuant to 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63, s. 45.

DURING the past year the Registrar has certified the rules of 17 sickness and burial societies, and 30 amendments to rules of similar societies ; also the rules of seven burial societies and five amendments of their rules, and the rules of two co-operative societies.

No new building societies have been established ; two amendments to rules of those societies have been certified. The Registrar has refused to certify any new loan fund societies, but has certified the amendments of three loan societies already established. He has received and registered 77 notices of trustees and 40 notices of change in the place of meeting. One society has been dissolved, and the dissolution duly advertised in the " Dublin Gazette " ; and two societies have sent him notice of their illegal dissolution. One society has deposited its rules under the 44th section of 18 & 19 Vict. c 63.

A Return was ordered by the House of Lords on 17th August 1867, from the trustees or secretaries of every friendly society legally established (of which the Registrar only became aware on reading the Report of the English Registrar of Friendly Societies), and in his form of Return for the past year he called attention to its requirements (see Appendix, No. 1).

The Registrar has again to call attention to the effect of the repeal (by 18 & 19 Vict. c. 67) of the Friendly Societies Acts which were made applicable to building societies, and the consequent confusion in working those societies under the Acts 10 Geo. 4, c. 56, and 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 40, which, for all other purposes, have been long since repealed.

Several complaints have been made to the Registrar, that societies certified in England or Scotland, but not in Ireland, have established Irish branches, and thereby led members of those branches to conclude that they had the protection in Ireland of the Friendly Societies Acts, and it seems to the Registrar that those branches are not entitled to the benefit of the Friendly Societies Acts until their rules have been certified in Ireland, and he has therefore declined to certify branches of those societies except as distinct and independent societies.

The Registrar has received several complaints of misapplication of funds, but owing to defects in the law, pointed out by him in his former Reports, he has not been able to take any steps for punishing the guilty parties.

A Bill having been introduced into the House of Lords, by the Earl of Lichfield, for the Amendment of the Friendly Societies Acts, the Registrar made some suggestions, with a view to have the Friendly Societies Acts made conformable to Irish statutes in certain respects, and it is a matter of much regret that legislation upon the subject has been again postponed.

The Registrar has had several cases of illegal alterations of rules brought under his notice, and has required the printed rules in all such cases to be cancelled.

The Registrar has frequently had to advise persons whose claims upon benefit societies have been altogether repudiated, or perhaps referred to arbitration, the effect of which latter course has been to oblige the claimant to wait for 40 days (under 41st section of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63) before he could ascertain whether or not the arbitrators would sit to hear the dispute, so as to enable enable him to proceed at the quarter sessions court, the whole delay sometimes involving the loss of nearly five months before the final settlement of the claim ; and he has endeavoured to induce societies to adopt a rule giving members the option of proceeding to have their disputes settled by justices in lieu of arbitrators, and he considers that in all cases, whether the rules of a society provide that disputes shall be settled by arbitration, or not, that the claimants on the society shall be entitled to have their claims heard and decided by magistrates, if they so desire.

The Registrar has in Appendix No. 2 set out the names of all societies upon his books, specifying those from whom returns have been received, and the income and expenditure of each.

Secretary.

Trustees.

By the Act 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63, s. 45, the Trustees of Friendly Societies established under any Act relating thereto, or the officer thereof appointed to prepare Returns, is required once in every year to transmit to the Registrar a General Statement of the funds and effects of such Society during the past 12 months, or a Copy of the last Annual Report of such Society.

By 23 & 24 Vict. c. 58, s. 7, if default shall be made in transmitting to the Registrar before the First day of June in each year, the General Statement, or a Copy of the last Annual Report of any Society, in compliance with the provisions of section 45 of the Act mentioned above, the officer making such default is liable to a Penalty not exceeding Twenty shillings, to be recovered with costs at the suit of the Registrar, before two or more Justices.

Proceedings have been taken in England against the Secretaries of several Societies, and Penalties and Costs have been recovered. It is the intention of the Registrar to adopt the same course in Ireland.

The House of Lords has ordered a Return (17th August 1867) from the Trustees or Secretary of every Friendly Society legally established in England, Scotland, and Ireland, having Paid Collectors or Agents; of the Names, Residences, Title, Business, or Occupation of the Patrons, Presidents, Trustees, Committee, Directors, Collectors, and Agents of every such Society on the 1st January 1867, with the Name of the Place at which by the Rules such Society is established; and the Places at which the several Collectors and Agents reside, together with the Salaries, Allowances, and Emoluments of each Paid Officer, Collector, and Agent for the year ending 31st December 1866; with the Number of Members of each such Society, and the Amount of the Funds on the 1st January 1867, and also the Amount of Contributions received, and the Expenses of Management, under distinct heads, in the year ending 31st December 1867. This Return should at once be sent to the "Clerk of the Parliaments," House of Lords, London, S.W.

The Registrar has again to call the attention of members of Friendly Societies to the evils arising from the annual division of the funds of those Societies. Every member whose age exceeds 45 years is directly interested in having as large a sum as possible accumulated in bank to the credit of the Society; for upon these accumulations alone can he depend for relief and benefit after he has attained this age, and has thereby ceased to be eligible for admission into a new society. The Registrar wishes to apprise the members of Benefit Societies that by the Act 27 & 28 Vict. c. 43 (passed on 14th July 1864), the National Debt Commissioners can now insure life annuities and the payment of sums of not less than 20 l. or more than 100 l. at death. Some of the Post Office Savings Banks in Ireland now receive weekly or monthly payments of small sums from persons desiring so to insure their lives. The Working Classes can, under this system, obtain a larger benefit at death, and a larger superannuation, for much smaller payments, than they can insure in most Burial Societies, and besides have Government security for their investments.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES (SCOTLAND).

---

REPORT of the PROCEEDINGS of the REGISTRAR of FRIENDLY SOCIETIES in Scotland, in his Office of Registrar, and of the Principal Matters transacted by Friendly Societies which have come under his cognizance during the past Year.

IN submitting his annual Report to Parliament for this year, the Registrar of Friendly Societies, although he has not much that is new to report, is enabled to give a satisfactory account of the general success and prosperity of Friendly and Co-operative Societies in Scotland.

He is happy to say that the Returns transmitted to him by the various secretaries are very favourable. With regard to Friendly Societies, the amount of the funds stated is in some cases very high, for instance, as much as 9,900 l., 6,000 l., 4,600 l., 3,600 l., 2,396 l., and in one instance, no less than 34,172 l., and in another 18,756 l. Then there are others, 1,945 l., 1,749 l., 1,663 l., 1,774 l., 1,419 l., 1,600 l., and so on; in many other cases the funds are much lower, but the Societies are prospering, although in a more limited way, and from experience it has been found that even when the funds of a Society are very small, yet when perseveringly contributed, the Society has been preserved in vigorous action, and many a poverty-stricken family has received most important aid and relief in times of sickness and other occasions of distress, and when a member was removed by death.

In the instances mentioned above, there is one, that of a very prosperous Society, where a loss of 175 l. during the year is stated, and another where a decrease in the funds of 45 l. is mentioned, but all the rest have had more or less of increase.

With regard to Co-operative Societies, the profits during the past year show their prosperity. In one instance, the clear profits amounted to 2,300 l., in others, the different sums are stated of 1,985 l., 1,808 l., 1,284 l., 709 l., 659 l., 569 l., 596 l., 491 l., 415 l., 408 l., 377 l., 355 l., 383 l., 363 l., 309 l., 302 l., 285 l., 253 l., 247 l., 227 l., 205 l., 178 l., 157 l., 161 l., 133 l., 131 l., 171 l., 123 l., 105 l. In one Society a loss was stated of 138 l., in another, it is mentioned that they have had little profit, but no loss.

The Registrar has mentioned the above instances to show, in so far at least, the prosperity of the Friendly and Co-operative Societies; he might have added many more, but he considered the above sufficient as examples.

Since the Registrar's last Report there has been a considerable increase both of Friendly and Co-operative Societies, and there has only been a dissolution of one Friendly and one Co-operative Society which he has heard of; but he is sorry to say that he is not always informed of the dissolution of Societies. This is most blameable, and, in the case of Friendly Societies, is not in accordance with the Acts of Parliament.

The Registrar has repeatedly expressed his opinion of the great benefit of Female Societies, as tending much to elevate the condition and add to the comforts of females, by encouraging habits of prudence and economy, in saving for times of, it may be, future distress, and by relieving them in that distress should it arise; he therefore regrets much to say, that there has not been any increase of those Societies lately.

The Registrar has very frequently mentioned his great disapproval of Yearly Societies, and his endeavours to have them converted into Permanent Societies.

In many cases he has succeeded in this, in others he has failed to do so; he has now reason to hope that they are not increasing, as, since his last Report to Parliament, he has had fewer applications to certify the rules of such Societies than he ever had in former years.

There are other two subjects which the Registrar has repeatedly dwelt upon in his Reports, namely, that of "Strikes," for the purpose of raising wages, and that of a provision being made by Societies for the aid of industrious workmen when out of employment. With regard to the former, he has stated his opinion, that a rule might be made to the effect that any member of a Society joining a strike should be expelled; he may now mention that in the case of a new Society which occurred some months ago, he strongly recommended that such a rule should be made, but the manager and members of the Society were so much opposed to it, that he did not insist on it; in future, however, he intends to give the same recommendation, and it may be that it will not be opposed.

With regard to the latter of the two subjects referred to, there are some Societies which have a rule for aiding in cases of temporal distress, not involving sickness, but not nearly so many as the Registrar would wish, and he intends in future to recommend the adoption of such a rule, at the same time cautioning the office-bearers that there must be strict enquiry in order to ascertain whether the want of employment, or other distress, has proceeded from the fault of the member himself, otherwise the rule might be much abused, to the encouragement of idleness or imposture.

In conclusion; whilst the Registrar has still reason to entertain the same opinion, so often expressed by him in former Reports, of the great benefit of Friendly and Co-operative Societies to the community, and of the excellent way in which they are generally managed, he thinks it right to state that within the last few months the manager of a Friendly Society has been found guilty of embezzling the funds, and the Registrar has also heard of one or two Friendly Societies being very extravagantly and ill managed, an account which he fears is too true.

All which is very humbly and respectfully reported by—

(signed) A. Carnegie Ritchie,
Registrar of Friendly Societies in Scotland.

The law of mortality which has been observed in the construction of the Deferred Annuity Tables is set forth in the Observations Nos. 13 and 20 of the Report made on the 28th March 1829 to the Lords of the Treasury by the Actuary to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, and printed by Order of the House of Commons on 31st March 1829, in Parliamentary Paper 122. The rate of interest fixed by law for annuities granted under the Savings Banks Acts is 3½ per cent.; for other Deferred Annuities granted by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt under the Act 10 Geo. 4, c. 24, the rate depends upon the price of the public funds on the day the annuity is purchased.
